Hoover Asks Single-Line Agriculture Dept. Setup

Urges Regrouping Of Services for Saving Estimated At $80 Million

By Ovid Martin
Associated Press Staff Writer

A reorganized Agriculture Department with a single office in each farm county to handle the Government's multiple farmer-aid programs was advocated by the Hoover Commission yesterday.

Such an agency, said the commission, would end one of the major criticisms of the department—that the farmer must now deal with many separate agencies, which "too frequently follow conflicting policies."

Under the present setup, many counties have separate department agencies dealing with crop control, farm credit, price supports, soil conservation, school lunch activities, and forestry.

The department's rapid growth from 22,000 to 82,000 employes in the last 20 years, the commission said, has resulted in some 20 different offices reporting directly to the Secretary and causing "unnecessary diffusion" of authority.

"Loose Confederation"

"It is a loose confederation of independent bureaus and agencies," the commission said in a report to Congress.

The commission said a reorganization of the department could save taxpayers at least 80 million dollars a year, as well as save farmers a lot of confusion.

However, two members of the 12-man commission disagreed with this estimate of possible savings. The dissenters, Dean Acheson, now Secretary of State, and James H. Rowe, jr., explained they did not believe that the estimated savings had been "subjected to enough scrutiny."

Action of the commission's "task force" on agricultural activities in taking sides on a controversial issue of future farm price supports attracted attention. The commission itself did not mention the subject. It did say, however, that crop adjustment programs should be operated on a "standby, rather than continuous, basis."

Backs Flexible Supports

The task force said a system of flexible price supports embodied in the Aiken farm bill passed by the Republican Eightieth Congress was a step in the right direction. It opposed further extension of the present rigid supports at 90 per cent of parity.

(Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, designed to be equally fair to producers and consumers alike.)

A strong farm bloc in Congress is demanding repeal of the Aiken law, which would allow supports from zero to 90 per cent. This group wants the 90 per cent parity supports continued.

The task force also recommended that price supports be abandoned for perishable products. Farmers would be paid compensatory payments from the Treasury instead, designed to give them a fair return.

The commission proposed regrouping the various bureaus and agencies of the department into eight different services or units, as follows:

Research, extension, agricultural resources conservation, commodity adjustment, regulatory, agricultural credit, rural electrification and a Secretary's staff service, which would deal with such matters as finances, personnel, legal

Rich Virginian Murdered in New Orleans

Bristol Millionaire's Neck Broken, Head Beaten In at Hotel

New Orleans, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—James A. Mahoney, 55, a millionaire bachelor who owned about one-third of the commercial property in Bristol, Va., was slain in a French quarter hotel today, apparently by a bandit.

Mahoney

He was killed so quietly the guests in the rooms on both sides of his didn't know anything had happened. Police found $1400 in traveler's checks in his room, but no cash.

Mahoney had been scheduled to board an airliner at 8 a. m. for a vacation in Yucatan.

When he didn't answer his phone this morning, the operator told Marvin Peschlow, a bellhop, to open his door with a pass key. Peschlow found Mahoney lying dead and naked diagonally across the bed. He had been dead six hours or more.

A bloody towel was wrapped around his neck, which was broken. The bed was wet halfway across with blood. There were cuts all over his face and head and he had suffered a brain concussion.

"He had the hell beaten out of him," Dr. Philip Montelepre, assistant coroner, said.

Dr. Montelepre thought Mahoney's neck was broken by a powerful blow.

There was no sign of a struggle. The sheets on the bed where he was killed were scarcely rumpled.

Mahoney arrived here Sunday. Yesterday, he ordered that a cot which was in his room when he took it, be removed. At noon yesterday, officials of the hotel said, he ordered the cot put back.

Police believed the killer got less than $100.

Mahoney was one of the wealthiest men in Virginia. He inherited a fortune from his father, the late John Mahoney, who was a wholesale drygoods dealer in Bristol. Besides commercial real estate, he owned most of radio station WCYB there. He lived alone in a big mansion.

99c Typewriters, $5 Fur Coats Make Hundreds Wait in Line

By Judy Spivak
Post Reporter

Traditional George Washington's Birthday sales here yesterday produced record crowds, at least one broken nose, and a handful of emergency police calls to keep order.

The bargain sale advertisements boasting of ties at 10 cents, fur coats for $5, cameras at 50 cents, typewriters at 99 cents, and $40 women's dresses for as little as $1, lured thousands of Washingtonians to downtown shopping areas in the early morning hours.

Many in Line at 6:30 a. m.

Many came as early as 6:30 a. m., and were standing in line by the hundreds at 8 a. m., to reap the bargains offered in electrical appliances, men's and women's clothing, jewelry, office equipment and furniture.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, scheduled 55 extra police for early duty downtown, then called in about 25 more from outlying precincts after a 10 a. m. tour of the shopping section convinced him the crowd was up to "pre-Christmas rush" standards.

Capital Transit officials said 154 extra streetcars and buses, above the normal Saturday schedule, were put on the streets.

Visitor Struck in Nose

Outstanding casualties among the bargain hustlers was Harry P. Williams, 58, a Clarksburg, Md., resident, who got a fractured nose instead of the 99-cent typewriter he waited for six hours through the night.

Williams, staying in Washington at 1431 Rhode Island ave. nw., said he was one of about 16 persons in line for the bargain typewriters outside the United Typewriter Co., 813 14th st. nw. at about 3:30 a. m. yesterday. Williams, who got in line at 9 p. m. Monday, said a man came up and hit him in the nose "without any provocation."

Williams, who reported the incident to police at No. 1 Precinct Station and then went to Emergency Hospital for treatment, said he never did get his typewriter.

The five 99-cent typewriters advertised by the store went to J. C. Vance, 1434 T st. nw.; Ray Ivie, 1137 N. Utah st., Arlington; Eddie Towster, 1205 Trenton pl. se.; Carl

Parade Seen By 100,000 At Alexandria

Rain Has Little Effect On 2-Hour Event for Washington's Birthday

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Alexandrians yesterday honored a local boy who made good with the biggest George Washington's Birthday parade in city history.

Spectators, their umbrellas and newspapers protecting them from intermittent showers, stood four and five deep along the mile-long parade route down Washington Street.

Alexandria Police Chief Maj. Edgar Sims estimated that spectators numbered close to 100,000.

The parade, which lasted nearly two hours, came as a part of Alexandria's Bicentennial celebration and was staged by the local Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 609.

About 1000 paraders from nearly every community in Greater Washington, plus units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force, marched down the damp parade route to the blare of band music.

Heading the line of march were Police Chief Sims and Maj. Gen.

Step Toward Court Test

Full Loyalty Board Is Asked To Review Dismissal Case

By Bert Andrews
NYHT News Service

A move that may lead to the first court test of the Federal Government's loyalty program was made yesterday by counsel for Miss Dorothy Bailey, who was discharged recently from her job with the United States Employment Service, which comes under the Federal Security Agency.

The firm of Arnold, Fortas & Porter, in a letter to the full membership of the loyalty review board, asked the board to reverse the decision of a three-man panel which held that Miss Bailey was unsuited for Federal employment because of charges that she had been a member of the Communist Party and sympathetic to communism.

Requesting the 19 members of the board to consider the request at a meeting on March 19, the firm said:

"We are anxious for a speedy determination of this question. It is a stop prerequisite to our being able to present Miss Bailey's case in court . . . In order to make the issues in this case clear, we request that Miss Bailey be permitted to appear and be represented by counsel. Furthermore, we request that the hearing before the entire board be public since the decisions both of the regional board (which was the board of first instance) and the review board (the three-man panel) were given the widest publicity."

Miss Bailey's "immediate dismissal" from her job, which paid about $8000 a year, was recommended on February 9 by the three-man panel. She was an instructor to State employment service officials and had been suspended about three months before the final recommendation for dismissal. She was a former executive board member of the United Public Workers Union, a left-wing affiliate of the CIO, and a former president of the Washington local.

Her counsel told the full board she was ousted on "unsworn statements by unidentified witnesses," despite the fact that 63 persons of repute filed affidavits that she "never followed the party line or engaged in any Communist activities."

Counsel's letter, signed by Paul A. Porter, said in part:

"The record presents the following questions:

"1. May a Federal loyalty board convict and publicly brand a Federal employe as unfit for further Federal service on account of her loyalty in a case where all the uncontradicted testimony in the records shows her reputation has been good, her service efficient and her activities inconsistent with Communist sympathies?

"2. Should a decision of a Federal loyalty board be sustained when it is supported only by unsworn statements by witnesses unidentified even to those members of the board who have pronounced judgment upon the employe and which statements have never been disclosed to the accused employe?"

The letter declared that the record contains no information derogatory to Miss Bailey's loyalty other than statements made by the Fourth Regional Board examiner and by Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the three-man panel, that they were in possession of such information.

Eisenhower Favors Rotation Of Joint Chiefs' Chairman

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower looks like the forerunner of a new and powerful figure in the National Military Establishment.

He is expected to recommend to President Truman and Secretary of Defense Forrestal that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have a chairman, a sort of "admiral-general" who could rise above loyalty to his particular armed service and put an end to the squabbles and stalemates that now are so familiar in the Pentagon.

General Ike thinks that the post of chairman should be rotated, with an Army man serving for, say, a two-year period, then a Navy man and then an Air Force man—not necessarily in that order.

The distinguished World War II soldier, now on leave from Columbia University and wearing mufti, is himself presiding officer or chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but on a temporary basis.

When he retired as Army Chief of Staff last year and became president of Columbia University, he told President Truman that he would always be available if needed by the Government for any service.

Mr. Truman called Ike back to Washington because he was tired of the jealousies in the supposedly unified services, and tired also of the quarreling over "Who does what and when and how and

Sofia Reports Church Blast At Accused 15

Trial Set Friday For Protestant Leaders Charged With Espionage

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 22 (AP). The Communist Party newspaper quoted various Bulgarian Protestant churches today as denouncing 15 Protestant churchmen accused of spying for the United States and Britain.

The churchmen are scheduled to go on trial here Friday. The government has announced it has confessions from some of the accused.

(Dr. Paul N. Garber, Methodist Bishop for central and southern Europe, charged in Geneva that one of the defendants was tortured until he confessed crimes of which he was innocent. He said this was a confession attributed to the Rev. Yanko N. Ivanov, Methodist Church supervisor in Bulgaria. Ivanov has been quoted in Sofia as admitting he was a spy and that Bishop Garber also was involved in espionage.)

The newspaper Rabotnichesko said the Protestant groups attacking the arrested churchmen were the Hungarian Congregational Church, Sofia Baptist and Armenian Church.

AP Man Granted Visa, Now on Way to Sofia

By The Associated Press

A Bulgarian visa has been granted to Richard Kasischke of the Associated Press staff in Berlin. Kasischke is en route to Sofia, and presumably will be able to collaborate with Dimiter Mishev, the AP's resident correspondent there, in coverage of the trial of Protestant leaders, scheduled to start Friday.

Kasischke is an American and Mishev is a Bulgarian national.

The Hungarian government refused to grant the AP permission to send an American to Budapest to assist in coverage of the recent trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty. Hungary also refused to admit official United States and British observers to that trial, but the British Foreign Office announces that two of its Sofia staff have received permission to see the Sofia trial.

Archbishop Predicts 'Mimicry of Justice'

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle predicted yesterday that the trial of the 15 Protestant ministers in Bulgaria will be "another mimicry of justice."

Speaking at Washington's Birthday citizenship ceremonies at St. Matthew's Cathedral, the archbishop asked God to "give these ministers strength to bear their heavy burdens."

"Each time I read of violence heaped upon helpless human beings, violence forged in the same Stalinist crucibles which wrought the Iron Curtain, I thank God I am an American," the archbishop told the 1200 officials, educators and students assembled in the cathedral.

Merely New Victims

"When we see 15 ministers of the Protestant church in Bulgaria paraded before the world clad in garments of traitors, of spies and black-marketing criminals, you and I know that their trial will be but another mimicry of justice, that they are but new victims of the Communist philosophy which defies God and the sacred character of the individual in order to deify and enthrone the omnipotent state."

Contrasting the citizenship of Americans and of those behind the Iron Curtain, Archbishop O'Boyle said: "We do not speak of 'democracy' and legally establish slavery. We do not speak of 'rights' and crush out those who dare cry out for justice."

Before the archbishop spoke, Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, attacked Communist philosophy in a sermon.

He said "millions of serfs are guaranteed no rights" and "despotism is enforced by the prisons and truncheons of a brutal police."

In such a state, he said, spokes-

Racial Bars in Louisville Recreation Areas Are Upheld

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 22 (AP).—Resolutions barring Negroes from city golf courses and the amphitheater in Louisville were upheld today by the Kentucky Court of Appeals, the State's highest court.

The resolutions were passed by the former board of park commissioners and adopted by the department of parks and recreation. They were attacked by Dr. P. O. Sweeney, Louisville Negro.

The high court ruled the department has the discretionary authority to impose such regulations. It also noted that the city has provided recreation areas for Negroes only.

"In this State the principle of social separation of the two races has been universally recognized from the very beginning, and has been written into the statutes of the State and the decisions of the Court of Appeals whenever the question has arisen," wrote Appellate Judge Roy Helm.

"It is obvious that the rights attempted to be secured in this case are social and not political," Helm said.

"To grant relief which the plaintiff (Dr. Sweeney) seeks would compel white persons to associate with colored persons, whether it were to their pleasure or not," Helm stated, adding: "This would be an infringement on the rights of white persons who would object to being compelled to commingle with colored persons."

The decision affirmed Jefferson Circuit Judge Lawrence F. Speckman.

Britain to Cut Army

London, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—The War Ministry announced today it will reduce the army by 300,000 men during the next year and spend $221,200,000 less on it. The army now has 850,000 men.

Not Firing Aides For 'Any S.O.B.', Truman Asserts

Defends Vaughan, Military Aide, From Radio Blast Over Peron Decoration

President Truman said last night he would not permit "any S. O. B." to bring about the firing of any member of his Cabinet or staff by "some smart-aleck statement over the air."

The peppery language was used by Mr. Truman as he vigorously defended Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, his military aide, at a dinner honoring Vaughan.

Vaughan has been criticized recently by Drew Pearson, radio commentator and columnist, and by others for accepting a decoration from President Peron of Argentina.

At Reserve Officer Dinner

The President spoke informally at a dinner given by the Reserve Officers Association at the Army-Navy Country Club in Arlington, Va. At the dinner, Vaughan received the association's annual Minute Man Award.

Earlier speakers had praised Vaughan and referred to the criticism by Pearson. The Chief Executive took full cognizance of the criticism when he arose to speak.

"If any S. O. B. thinks he can get me to discharge any of my staff or Cabinet by some smart-aleck statement over the air, he has got another think coming," Mr. Truman said vehemently.

The President, in his address, used the letters S. O. B., which are often used as an abbreviation for profanity.

Later, when the official transcript of the President's remarks was issued at the White House, reporters found that the talk had been edited to omit the startling expression. The word "anyone" had been substituted for "any S. O. B."

Mr. Truman, who defended Vaughan at his last news conference, declared also that "no pollster" or anyone else is going to influence his selection of his Cabinet or members of his staff.

He said he alone will do any changing of his Administration.

He said the attacks on Vaughan actually were aimed at him as President.

"I'm a fair target for everything,' he said. "I have my secretaries and my military and other aides. They are able to take it."

Mr. Truman said there had been "very vicious attacks on my military aide." He said the attacks were "unjust, and I say it advisedly, vicious."

Never Goes Back on Friend

The President said he has known Vaughan "all his military life and some time besides" and added, "I never go back on a friend."

He said Vaughan was not only a friend but "an able and efficient military aide" as well. He said all his other aides and staff members are likewise efficient and "that's why we work together smoothly."

"That's the reason," said the Chief Executive, "we will be able to put over the program we promised the voters . . . and don't forget we're going to put it over."

On the subject of friends, Mr. Truman remarked that he had a great many "so-called friends" who got "a little jittery about me . . . but they weren't so jittery on the third of November as they were on the first."

Stressing again that no one else is going to tell him what changes to make in his staff, the President said:

"When the time comes for any of them to move on, I'll do the moving."

In Field Artillery

He recalled that he and Vaughan were in training together at Fort Sill in 1917 and that both served in the field artillery in France during the First World War.

While he was serving as Senator from Missouri, the President said, he appointed Vaughan as his secretary.

He said Vaughan could have remained his secretary if he had wanted but chose to answer the call to active service as a lieutenant colonel in the field artillery early in World War II.

The President said Vaughan served "creditably" in Australia until his chest was crushed and a leg broken in an airplane accident and he was returned to the United States.

He also recalled that when he was elected Vice President, he named Vaughan as one of his secretaries and military advisers, and that when he assumed the Presi-

Russian Sees U. S. Forcing Preparedness

London, Feb. 22 (AP).—Marshall Nikolai A. Bulganin, Soviet Minister of Armed Forces, said tonight Russian fighting men must "maintain constant combat preparedness on a high level" because of America's "policy of aggression," the Moscow radio reported.

He made the statement in an order of the day marking the thirty-first anniversary of the Soviet army. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported his declaration.

"The ruling circles of the United States which seek to establish their world domination by force pursue a policy of aggression and of unleashing of a new war," Bulganin said.

He said the Soviet Union "is successively carrying out a plan for the development of the national economy, and is perseveringly striving for lasting democratic peace throughout the world.

"In these conditions the Soviet armed forces must indefatigably maintain constant combat preparedness on a high level.

"The Soviet people may rest assured our Army, Air Force and Navy will vigilantly stand guard over their socialist homeland."

The United States was the only Western power singled out by Bulganin.

Lieut. Gen. S. S. Shatilov, deputy chief director of the political board of the armed forces, said over the Moscow Radio that the Soviet army had in its early days "routed the hordes of 14 powers—Britain, the United States, France, Germany, Japan and others."

Shatilov said when Germany attacked Russia in 1941 Soviet armies fought "for three years single-handed without the military support of the Allies, who sabotaged the opening of the second front."

Cabinet Pay Boosts Favored By House Unit

Strong Move Develops, However, to Cut Other Top-Level Increases

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Salaries of $25,000 for Federal Cabinet officers and $20,000 for undersecretaries won informal approval of a House Post Office and Civil Service Subcommittee yesterday.

But a strong move promptly developed to trim the proposed annual pay boosts for other high-level Federal officials. The increases may be held as low as $2500 a year for most of them if some of the Congressmen have their way.

These actions were disclosed by members after a morning executive session of the 10-member subcommittee. Representative Tom Murray (D., Tenn.), chairman both of the full House committee and the subcommittee at work on the executive pay bill, said the group will continue its session Tuesday. He said he hopes for final subcommittee action on the pay bill at that time.

Members said the section of the bill which would give District classified employes a retroactive $330 pay boost was not reached for discussion. They predicted that portion of the bill would be approved without major opposition.

On the top-level salary increases, however, a bipartisan group was at work to hold down the boosts proposed in the Administration bill introduced by Representative George P. Miller (D., Calif).

Of about 220 policy positions covered by the Miller bill, only a handful would get increases as low

Birthday Tributes Paid in Wind, Rain

Dollar Toss Tops Heave Of Johnson

Harding heaved a silver dollar 370 feet, nearly 100 feet beyond the far bank of the 273-foot-wide stream.

Five others of the nine high-school youths competing achieved the feat. Legend says Washington as a 17-year-old threw a silver dollar from his boyhood Ferry Farm home in Stafford County to the Fredericksburg side of the Rappahannock.

Harding's toss exceeded the 277-foot throw of the late Walter Johnson in 1936. One of the prizes won by Harding's throw was a silver dollar donated by Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians' pitcher.

Hobart R. Gay, commanding officer of the Military District of Washington, both of whom took places in the reviewing stand on Washington st. at Princess st.

Post of honor in the reviewing stand was reserved for Virginia's Governor, William M. Tuck. Flanking him were Alexandria Mayor William T. Wilkins and Lyall T. Beggs, VFW national president.

VFW officials said they were represented in the parade by members from 16 States.

First band was that of the District Police, followed by members of the District's Police Riot Squad.

Alexandria firemen swung by, to the beat of their own band and the applause of spectators.

Air Cover Rained Out

A group of Falls Church model airplane enthusiasts—the Balsa Beetles—created a stir when they produced model gas-powered planes and zoomed them around in circles on the end of long wires along the parade route.

An Army and Navy "air cover" over the route failed to materialize because of the poor visibility.

Reserved spectators, their enthusiasm possibly dampened by rain, broke into a cheer when the United States Marine Band and Marine Corps units marched by to the Marine Corps Hymn.

Also participating were the United States Army and Navy Bands, the Third Armored Cavalry Regiment and Third Infantry Regiment from Fort Myer, and the Fort Belvoir Engineer Battalion and band.

The Navy displayed its torpedoes and rockets, and the Army its light tanks and heavy earth-moving equipment.

Another cheer went up for the Army Air Force Band, attired in its new blue uniforms, and followed by an Air Force unit in traditional khaki.

Girls 'Step' for Governor

A bevy of VFW drum and bugle corps girls from Harrisonburg, Va., halted before the reviewing stand to do a high-stepping "snake dance" for Governor Tuck.

Cadet units and bands from the District, from Arlington's Washington-Lee and Alexandria's George Washington High Schools also stepped along the parade route.

Other veterans groups represented included the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans, American Veterans Committee, Irish War Veterans, and Jewish War Veterans.

The parade wound up with the sirens of fire units from nearby Virginia and Maryland, with pumpers, ladder wagons, and one antique pumper from Falls Church.

Braving a damp, biting wind and later a steady drizzle, the Capital yesterday carried its troubles to the shrines of George Washington to pause and revitalize a national faith.

The Federal city that proudly took the name of the Colonial patriot paid homage on George Washington's 217th birthday anniversary with daylong wreath-laying ceremonies and patriotic speeches.

The day's overcast skies, which threatened to eclipse the pyramid spire of the 555-foot Washington Monument, kept visitors to the Monument Grounds to a "little below normal holiday" total.

By nightfall, 712 Washington residents and out-of-towners had visited the flag-banked spire.

President Truman sent a wreath to the Washington Monument at 10 a. m. Seven other wreath-laying ceremonies in the memory of the first President were conducted under sponsorship of the city's leading patriotic organizations.

On Capital Hill, both branches of Congress met briefly, heard Washington's Farewell Address and then adjourned in his memory.

A bit of congressional history was made in the Senate with the traditional reading of the first President's valedictory. It was read for the first time by a woman Senator.

Maine's Republican Margaret Chase Smith, wearing a trim Navy blue suit and her usual red rose, read the message to her colleagues from a podium on Vice President Alben Barkley's platform. In the House, the reading was done by Representative Robert J. Corbett (R., Pa.).

It is traditional for Republicans to read the address one year and Democrats the next.

Holiday speechmakers—and there were many—unanimously struck the note of the cold war and Washington's precepts of American defense and vigilance.

Speaking at the foot of the Washington Monument, Representative J. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.) told a group of fellow Masons that "this majestic shaft is a symbol and inspiration for all freedom-loving people to redouble efforts for a solid and lasting peace."

He was speaking at the day's first wreath-laying ceremony sponsored by the advisory board of Masonic Clubs of the District.

The biggest rededication program here was a joint patriotic program at the Department of the Interior auditorium by the Sons of the Revolution, the Daughters of the American Revolution and Children of the American Revolution.

The program's top speaker was Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) who, after tracing the story of Washington, the soldier, statesman and gentleman farmer, raised the question:

"It would be interesting today to see George Washington's reaction to the proposed Atlantic Pact."

A hands-across-the seas touch was lent at the Monument Grounds shortly after noon when three representatives of the Council for Free Czechoslovakia—protesting their homeland's "Communist-dominated embassy here"—laid a wreath at the foot of the Monument.

Washington's Birthday had special meaning, too, for the sponsors of the Washington colony in the Holy Land. Sponsors of the children's agricultural settlement 18 miles south of Tel Aviv held commemorative ceremonies last night in the National Press Club auditorium. The cornerstone for the colony was sent to Israel in 1946 from Washington.

Following an annual custom of many years' standing, leading military and patriotic organizations made pilgrimages to Mount Vernon to lay wreaths on the first President's tomb.

President Truman's wreath was placed on Washington's tomb by Maj. Gen. Harry M. Vaughan, his military aide. Members of Congress and the Veterans of Foreign Wars participated in the Mount Vernon ceremonies. The George Washington Post No. 1, American Legion, also conducted a Mount Vernon wreath-laying ritual.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), speaking later at Mount Vernon rites, described the Nation's first President as a "world possession" whose influence will be felt in world affairs "so long as men love freedom and self-government."

Members of the Alexandria-Washington Masonic Lodge No. 22 (which was Washington's own lodge), yesterday morning traveled to Mount Vernon to lay a wreath at Washington's tomb.

Later in the day, John K. Collings, president of the National League of Masonic Clubs, led another wreath-laying ceremony at the tomb.

A group of 500 Boy Scouts representing the Washington area also made the pilgrimage to Mount Vernon.

Many hundreds of Washington visitors and residents joined the official treks to the nearby historic shrine. Local Mount Vernon excursion bus lines reported "brisk" morning business before the rain settled in in earnest.

The George Washington National Memorial Association held its annual meeting at the Masonic Memorial in Alexandria, and elected the following officers:

Dr. Elmer R. Arn of Dayton, Ohio, president; Allan A. Wilson, Manchester, N. H., first vice president; Bert S. Lee of Springfield, Mo., second vice president; Dewey H. Hesse of Portland, Mich., third vice president; C. Vernon Eddy of Winchester, Va., fourth vice president; Thomas E. Doss of Nashville, Tenn., fifth vice president, and Fred F. Schondau of Washington, secretary-treasurer.

Other groups participating in wreath-laying ceremonies at the Washington Monument included the Washington Monument Society, Association of Oldest Inhabitants, Sons of the American Revolution, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic of the District of Columbia and the American Legion Auxiliary, D. C. Chapter.

The Arlington Jewish Center saluted the First President by holding its annual B'nai B'rith memorial service for the late Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo. It unveiled a bronze plaque honoring deceased members of the congregation and marked the first anniversary of the dedication of the Center building.

Other events last night included: A musical program, "A Night at Mount Vernon," by the ladies' auxiliary, River Terrace Episcopal Church, Clay st. and Anacostia ave. ne.; House Minority Leader Joseph A. Pan America Unity Hailed Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22 (AP).—Diplomats of 19 nations today rededicated the Pan-American "friendship front" to the defense of democracy.

Ambassadors of the Western Hemisphere met on Washington's Birthday by invitation of the Maryland Legislature to "reaffirm to the world" the "staunch solidarity" of American democracies.

"We meet here today behind a solid front of friendship and cooperation, rather than behind an iron curtain where men rule through force and fear," said State Senator Roy Tasco Davis (R., Montgomery), former United States Ambassador and "adopted son" of Latin America.

Argentine Ambassador Enrique V. Corominas said Pan-American patriotism "will preserve us from foreign encroachment."

Woodlawn Estate Made Public Shrine

Historic Woodlawn estate in Fairfax County, once the gift of George Washington to his adopted daughter, yesterday passed formally to the American public as "a living, dynamic shrine."

In ceremonies at the estate, on Route 1 near Fort Belvoir, the mansion and grounds were formally accepted by the new owner, the Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc.

George Maurice Morris, chairman of the foundation, told reporters that Woodlawn will now serve as "a museum of the early Federal period," with authentic furniture and decorations of the period from 1800-1810.

He said he hoped it could serve as "a center for propagation of American ideas of life and citizenship." Patriotic societies will be allowed to meet there, Morris added.

More than 100 visitors swarmed over the estate grounds into the historic building during the presentation ceremonies.

Speaking at the transfer ceremonies, U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark said "we are attempting to instill in citizens of the whole world" the principles George Washington cherished.

Purchase of Woodlawn by the trustees was authorized Monday by Fairfax Circuit Court. At that time, trustees paid $95,000 down toward the $170,000 purchase price.

The estate was bought from the estate of the late Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama. Money was raised by public subscription, with matching funds from the Old Dominion Foundation.

Thorez Asks French To Welcome Reds

Paris, Feb. 22 (NYHT).—French Communist leadership told party members today that if the Red army should occupy France, it should be welcomed without opposition as a liberating force.

This statement of policy came from Maurice Thorez, secretary-general of the party.

There was immediate but mixed reaction. Georges Bidault, former Foreign Minister, said that while the statement was phrased conditionally, "it is very grave."

Supporters of Gen. Charles de Gaulle said the Ministry of Justice should consider whether there were grounds for prosecution.

Thorez views were outlined in a communique that followed a meeting of the party's policy-making central committee. The statement was addressed to one million party members and four million others who voted the Communist ticket.

Models for deportment in the event of Russian occupation of France were the people of Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia, said Thorez.

Thorez said the Soviet Union never had been and never could be an aggressor against any country.

He then outlined his policy of nonresistance in a rhetorical fashion. He said: "If our people were led in spite of their wish into an anti-Soviet war and if in these conditions, the Soviet army, defending the cause of the peoples, the cause of socialism, had to pursue the enemy right onto our soil, the workers, the people of France, would they be able to act differently toward the Soviet army than the workers, than the peoples of Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia?"

His answer, obviously, was "no."

Pope Pius Assailed by Italian Reds

Rome, Feb. 22 (AP).—Italy's No. 1 Communist, Palmiro Togliatti, today levelled an attack on Pope Pius XII which may mark an important change in Italian Communist policy.

Togliatti released proof sheets of an article to be published over his signature in the Communist weekly, Vie Nuove, accusing the Pope of seeking a "holy alliance" against Communist nations. Its caption: "God and the Atlantic Pact."

The Communist policy in predominantly Catholic Italy has been to avoid a fight with the Vatican. Observers feel abandonment of that policy would be an admission the Communists have failed to win Italy's masses with promises to improve their way of life.

Mindszenty Letter Text Is Released

By Endre Marton
Hungarian Correspondent of the A. P.

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 22 (AP).—The Foreign Ministry tonight made public the text of a letter it said the imprisoned Josef Cardinal Mindszenty wrote to his bishops, urging a reconciliation between the Roman Catholic Church and Hungary's Communist-led government.

Informed sources reported Saturday the bishops had studied such a letter and deferred a decision.

The letter said "Though we chose a fight instead of a reconciliation previously, I would like to support the case of peace at last now. I admit today that we saw only one side of the problem and did not aim to understand the problems of Hungarian democracy."

(The Vatican City newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, commenting on the reported letter, said Tuesday: "We believe in the words and the writing of a free man, not of the prisoner." The Holy See has declared it will not negotiate with Hungary until Cardinal Mindszenty is released and religious freedom is assured).

Argentina and Britain Make Big Trade Deal

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Secretary of Economy Robert Areas and British experts, headed by Commercial Minister J. G. Lomax, began bargaining today on the biggest Anglo-Argentine trade deal since the war.

Argentina was reported to be asking that payment for meat shipments to Britain be increased from 25 to 40 per cent, and that payment be made in dollars or convertible currencies.

More Mimicry Is Predicted

men for God and the soul are singled out as deadly enemies.

"The Catholic prelates Stepinac, Mindszenty, the Lutheran bishop Ordass, these men, representing God and the soul, represent also freedom," said Msgr. Cartwright. "In the exact logic of an evil policy they must be destroyed."

Msgr. Cartwright added that "if George Washington were to return to earth today his knightly sword would come out of its scabbard to salute the kindred hero soul beneath the bishop's cross of Mindszenty."

Archbishop O'Boyle presided at a special solemn mass "for the welfare of our country" attended by the senior classes of Catholic University, Dumbarton College of Holy Cross, George Washington University, Georgetown University, Howard University, the University of Maryland and Trinity College.

Participating in the mass were the Rev. Titus Cranny, O.S.A., chaplain of the Newman Club at Howard University, and the Rev. Alban McGuire, O.F.M., chaplain of the Newman Club at the University of Maryland, as Deacons of Honor to the Archbishop; the Right Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, S.T.L., rector of Catholic University, as celebrant; the Rev. John A. Smith, S.J., of Georgetown University, as deacon; the Rev. Aloysius K. Ziegler of Catholic University as subdeacon; the Rev. Walter J. Schmitz, S.S., as master of ceremonies, and the Rev. W. Louis Quinn as assistant master of ceremonies.

The senior class students marched in procession from Calvert School to the Cathedral, wearing caps and gowns. Members of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus were guards of honor.

A reception in the sacristy followed the mass. In the receiving line were Archbishop O'Boyle, Archbishop Paul Yu Pin of Nanking, China, Msgr. Cartwright and Bishop John M. McNamara.

Finn Cabinet Lives or Dies On Vote Today

Helsinki, Finland, Feb. 22 (AP).—Informed sources tonight said Finland's Socialist cabinet will have a fifty-fifty chance of survival when it faces a no-confidence vote in parliament Wednesday.

The prediction was made as Premier Karl A. Fagerholm's government remained under attack from both the left and right in sharp parliamentary debate.

The "no confidence" motion, if successful, will force a reorganization of the government.

Fagerholm, a Social Democrat, has been under frequent criticism from Moscow. The question of Finland's relations with Russia is under discussion, but the major debate centered on farmers' demands for better prices and lower taxes.

The conservative Agrarian Union assailed Premier Fagerholm's Social Democratic cabinet, demanding for the farmers higher prices and lower taxes.

The Communist-dominated Popular Democrats backed the Agrarians' complaints, and accused the government of having caused relations with the Soviet Union to deteriorate.

The Swedish People's Party, a Swedish-speaking minority group that Fagerholm had expected to support him and whose votes might be enough to swing a no-confidence vote either way, sprang a surprise and joined the opposition.

Fritz Kuhn Is Freed by German Court

Munich, Germany, Feb. 22 (AP).—A German appellate court today freed Fritz Kuhn, former German-American bund leader and convicted major Nazi, by cutting his 10-year prison sentence to 2 years already served.

Kuhn grinned at the decision. He said it was a fair trial. Then he heckled John Roy Carlson, a prosecution witness and author of the anti-Fascist book "Under Cover," in a corridor encounter.

"Get that Communist out of here," Kuhn shouted. "Get him out. I don't want to talk to a Russian. It is finished."

Carlson, an American citizen of Armenian birth, grinned broadly at Kuhn and shook his head.

Kuhn, who was born in Munich in 1896, said he would try to regain the American citizenship he lost June 1, 1943. Kuhn had obtained citizenship by naturalization in Detroit. The United States District Court of New York canceled it on grounds of fraud.

"No more organizations, no more anything," Kuhn said in reply to a question whether he planned to start another bund.

Reds Tighten Czechoslovak Rule

Prague, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Czechoslovakia's Communist regime today marked its first anniversary by tightening security measures and ordering followers to "go over to the offensive" against their enemies.

It criticized party officials and members for "wavering" under pressure.

These were the developments:

1. Armed party members were ordered to patrol the streets of Prague.

2. A confidential party circular issued to 10-man cells warned that "foreign imperialists" are Czechoslovakia's principal enemies, and called for an end to a "tolerant" attitude toward "capitalist remnants."

3. Highways leading out of Prague were checked closely and even cabinet ministers were stopped for identification.

4. Parliament today set the stage for a purge in the army by passing a bill to reorganize the officer corps and permit the dismissal of officers who "fail to comprehend principles of people's democracray."

German Steel Barons May Run Industry

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 22 (UP).—Several former German steel barons may be named to a board of trustees which will run the Ruhr steel industry under Allied supervision, an authoritative source disclosed today.

A ranking Allied official said top men from Germany's leading prewar steel firms may be included among the trustees because their participation is regarded by military government officials as both "a certainty and a necessity."

Creation of the board was ordered by Gens. Lucius D. Clay and Sir Brian Robertson, American and British military governors in Germany last November.

The trustees are to function as interim managers until final ownership can be decided by the new West German government.

Airlift Sets New Record On Supplies

Berlin, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Allied planes today set a record by bringing 7523.9 tons of supplies into Russian-blockaded Berlin.

Landing at the rate of one every two minutes, British and American transport fliers surpassed the previous 24-hour record of 6987 tons set on United States Air Force Day last September 18.

The 15 million-plus pounds of food, coal and other supplies they brought in with 876 flights between noon yesterday and noon today was almost double the minimum 4000 tons needed daily for the 2,250,000 residents of Berlin's British, French and American sectors. Officials estimated 9000 tons a day were brought in by rail before the blockade.

The achievement came amid two less-heartening developments:

1. Col. Frank Howley, United States commandant in Berlin, indicating that the blockade and the airlift would continue, said he had recommended that the Russian-backed eastern mark "must" be outlawed in the western sectors.

2. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor of Germany, said in his semimonthly report to Washington that unemployment reached a postwar high of 944,200 persons in the Anglo-American zones in January. In the western sectors of Berlin, he said, 14.6 per cent of the wage earners were idle.

The new airlift record was doubly noteworthy because bad weather slowed the fliers between 4 and 8 a. m. and because of fog conditions.

Spain and West Pact Asked

London, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Greek Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris has proposed a defense alliance that would link Spain with the western democracies, it was disclosed today.

He has also called for an eastern Mediterranean alliance. Tsaldaris submitted both proposals during a two-hour private talk yesterday with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. He suggested:

1.—A pact of Northern Mediterranean countries, including Spain, Italy, Greece, Turkey, France, and also Britain because of her strategic interests in the area.

2. A pact of Eastern Mediterranean countries, including Israel, the Arab countries, Greece, Turkey, Britain, and possibly Persia and Pakistan.

Britain Rejects Berlin Plan

London, Feb. 22 (AP).—A foreign office spokesman said today Britain turned down the report of a United Nations committee as a basis for settling the Berlin currency tangle with Russia, declared cause of the blockade.

Both the United States and France are understood also to have rejected the U. N. report.

Russia, according to Soviet sources here, was ready to discuss the proposals.

The committee's report went to the president of the Security Council with the observation that the basis of the quarrel between Russia and the West over Berlin's currency is political not technical.

Landing of Russian Rocket In U. S. German Zone Revealed

Berlin, Feb. 22 (AP).—A Russian rocket, fired in practice, landed in the American zone of Germany some time ago, but caused no damage or casualties, United States authorities disclosed today.

The incident was kept secret until now and details of both the bomb and the incident will remain secret, the officials said. They explained they felt no purpose would have been served by an earlier announcement.

A high Army officer said there was nothing unusual in construction of the rocket. It carried a smaller-than-usual charge of explosive, as customary in maneuvers. It cut a crater about a foot deep in an isolated area near the boundary of the Soviet zone.

The Soviet army engaged in maneuvers last fall and possibly the rocket was fired then. An airlift pilot said in November he had seen Russian tanks firing guns that seemed of an unusual type and which he thought were anti-aircraft weapons.

This is the only known instance of a Russian rocket falling into the American zone. German reports of other instances never have been substantiated.

Indonesia Decision Reached by Dutch

The Hague, The Netherlands, Feb. 22 (AP).—The Dutch government said today it has reached "important decisions" in regard to Indonesia.

The nature of these decisions was not explained in the communique. It announced that Dr. Louis J. M. Beel, the Crown representative in Indonesia, will return to Indonesia Saturday "provided with the necessary powers to carry out the decisions."

The statement coincided with a broadcast from Sumatra by Indonesian rebel leaders challenging Dutch sincerity. The rebel broadcast renewed demands for release of captive leaders of Indonesia, now held in internment despite United Nations Security Council orders that they be freed.

The Dutch indicated they will follow their own methods of creating a sovereign republic of the United States of Indonesia, rather than the detailed time-table plan ordered by the Security Council January 28.

Girl Who Quit

Diplomats Hit By Ex-Aide In Moscow

ELBRIDGE DURBROW
Named in Russian book

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, Feb. 22 (AP).—American diplomats are the target of a little book—newly published by the Russians—which bears the name of Annabelle Bucar, the Pennsylvania girl who quit her job with the United States Information Service here a year ago.

The book is called "The Truth About American Diplomats."

Its 132-pages contain such charges as these:

An "extreme anti-Soviet wing" of the United States State Department is trying to foment war with the Soviet Union."

Ambassador Slandered

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith operated in the black market and ordered Russian employes to sell valuables for him.

Counselor Elbridge Durbrow, a native of San Francisco, was an active speculator in the black market.

Large speculators go back to the United States with "tens of thousands of dollars worth" of art works, illegally exported.

(Ambassador Smith, undergoing treatment for a stomach ailment at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, declared the charges are "completely without foundation." Durbrow, now attached to the Army War College in Washington, said "this whole thing is absolutely cockeyed."

(Miss Bucar is understood to have been doing propaganda work for the Soviet government. Reports reached Americans in Moscow some months ago that she was traveling around Russian factories, telling the workers they lived better than workers in the United States.)

Married to Russian

Miss Bucar was an administrative assistant in the information service. She complained in her letter of resignation last year that embassy policy was directed against the Russians. At the same time she disclosed she had been married 13 months before to a Russian singer, Konstantin Lapshin. They now have a son. Miss Bucar is a former Pittsburgh University student from Clairton, Pa.

Her book, printed by the Literary Gazette, charged that State Department figures "strive to provoke war against the Soviet Union" and "they feel this is predestined by God."

"I know many of these persons, since I worked under the direction of several of them, and about others heard much from those who know them intimately," the book went on. "When I speak of their political views or about them in general I speak only of what is well known to me."

The book said Durbrow "decided all questions connected with embassy personnel" on his assignment there from the summer of 1946 to the summer of 1948. He was reported to have feared the influence of Russians on embassy workers and saw to it that individuals with Russian contacts broke them off, under threat of being sent home in disgrace.

It said the Moscow Embassy had an informer system for reporting on the activities and views of its personnel.

It listed as one of the chief informers Mrs. Patricia Grady Davies of Washington, D. C., wife of John Davies, one-time first secretary. It declared that Davies, now a member of the planning board of the State Department, had used certain correspondents for espionage work and sought, through them, to plant anti-Soviet information before the American public.

Ousted Head Of Senate Faces Charge

Manila, Philippines, Feb. 22 (AP).—Jose Alvelino, ousted president of the senate, was ordered today to appear before a committee investigating charges that he received more than $250,000 illegally.

Elpidio Quirino, president of the republic, formally recognized the ouster of Avelino and the selection of Mariano J. Cuenco as senate president, the post next in line to the presidency.

Twelve of Quirino's supporters conducted a rump session of the senate yesterday, deposing Avelino in a riotous meeting marred by fist fights inside the chamber and the firing of a pistol outside the chamber.

Avelino, who is Quirino's opponent for leadership of the dominant Liberal Party, and 10 other senators planned to file court proceedings questioning the legality of the ouster. They charged that 13, not 12, was a quorum for the senate.

Chinese Peace Flight Readied

Nanking, China, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—The head of the Nationalist government's peace mission was scheduled to leave Peiping today for a conference with Communist leader Mao Tze-tung that might pave the way for peace in China by spring, reliable sources said.

These sources said Shao Li-tze, chairman of the peace mission appointed by Acting President Li Tsung-jen, and W. W. Yen, head of the unofficial Shanghai peace delegation, planned to fly today to Communist headquarters at Shichchihchuang.

Mao was said to have cabled Communist leaders at Peiping that he would welcome a visit from the Shanghai peace delegation.

A Communist radio broadcast said a formal peace conference would begin in the "not very distant future," but did not elaborate.

U. S. Woman Rescued From Burma Terror

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Charles Conrad of Louisville, Ky., a frail Baptist missionary, has been rescued after 24 adventure-filled days in which she was caught in the midst of the Burma civil war.

The United States Embassy announced today she was evacuated by a Burmese navy frigate from the battered delta city of Bassein, 70 miles west of Rangoon.

Mrs. Conrad described harrowing experiences after she was left behind because of her health when other missionaries were evacuated from Bassein, January 30. Fighting between rebel forces and government troops swept the city, and she had to flee her burning home, she said. Rebelling Karen tribesmen befriended her and gave her refuge in a school during the heaviest fighting.

After the fighting subsided, Mrs. Conrad made her way afoot through the burning town. Friendly Communists, who were neutral at that stage of the fight, escorted her from the city. She returned after government forces had reoccupied Bassein, and they cared for her until she could be removed.

She plans to return to the United States in April.

Government reports told how Karen rebels, backed by Communist guerillas, were overrunning wide sections of central Burma around Mandalay with the help of a captured plane.

Cairo Chiefs Study Draft Of Armistice

Rhodes, Feb. 22 (NYHT).—United Nations authorities reported tonight the Egyptian cabinet met this morning in Cairo to debate acceptance of the draft of the Israeli-Egyptian armistice agreement. No decision had been received late tonight at headquarters here.

U. N. authorities are thus hopeful the Egyptian delegation will arrive at Rhodes Wednesday morning. If their government has approved the pact the formal signing ceremony will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, acting Palestine mediator, received word that Trans-Jordan would send a strictly military delegation to Rhodes Thursday for talks with Israel.

Viennese Jews Enter 'Oliver Twist' Protest

Vienna, Austria, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Jewish leaders in Vienna today sent a telegram of protest to the government against the scheduled showing of the film "Oliver Twist" in two Viennese theaters, starting Friday.

It is the same picture which led to street fighting between German police and Jewish demonstrators in Berlin yesterday.

Learning to dance is fun when you put yourself in the hands of an Arthur Murray expert

Vivian Marnett, another charming teacher whose specialty is the Rumba, says, "People who don't know, think the Rumba is only for experts. The steps and rhythm seem so tricky. They're always amazed when they find themselves doing it in just 5 minutes."

Lovely Lorie Hilton, a typical Arthur Murray teacher, says, "'The New Arthur Murray Way' is such a direct method that everyone grasps it the first time you show them. In no time they can do all the dances gracefully, expertly. It's fun to teach dancing this new way."

1948 Business Jump From Lag Recalled

The Commerce Department recalled yesterday that 1948 snapped out of a business lag like today's, and went on to record highs in production, prices, employment and income.

The end result last year, the department said, included a "gross national produce" (of goods and services) worth 255 billion dollars, compared with 232 billion dollars the previous year.

Also, a national income ("the total earnings of residents of the United States from current production") of $224,500,000,000, a big jump from 1947s $202,500,000,000.

Rose for Several Months

The department reminded that after "prices had been rising uninterruptedly over a period of several months as 1948 opened," last year had a period like the present.

"In February," it said, "optimism was jolted and a sharp decline in price occurred. This was accompanied by some hesitation in buying and by inventory accumulation."

Yet when April arrived, it continued, "the developments in domestic and international fields touched off renewed expansion.

Parallel May Not Hold

But the department, reviewing the 1948 economy in its monthly publication, Survey of Current Business, indicated that 1949 is unlikely to parallel 1948 all the way through.

Noting that prices slipped downward in the final month of 1948, the department said:

"Price developments during 1948 confirmed the impression . . . that a rather impressive shift away from an intensely inflationary position has occurred."

Failures Drop for Week; Still Above 1947, 1948

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Business failures declined to 180 in the week ended February 17, but were still well above those for the same weeks of 1948 and 1947, Dun & Bradstreet announced.

The credit reporting agency said the figure compared with 192 the previous week (the highest weekly total since June of 1942), and with 107 for the corresponding week last year and 62 for the 1947 week.

However, the business casualties were considerably less numerous than the 293 reported in the same week of prewar 1939.

Manufacturing and commercial service failures rose slightly while there were moderate declines in all other industry and trade groups.

Failures in three general areas were at the highest level since 1942: East North Central States with 31, South Atlantic States with 22 and West South Central at 11. Three regions reporting declines were the Middle Atlantic region with 46, Pacific States with 40 and New England States with 20.

Jobless Veteran Rolls Double in Four Months

Unemployment among war veterans was more than doubled in the past four months. The Veterans' Administration said yesterday.

Spokesmen for the agency pointed out, however, that much of the increase in joblessness is seasonal, since major construction projects lay off workers during the winter.

As of January 31, the agency said, 570,539 World War II veterans were drawing "readjustment allowances"—unemployment checks up to $20 a week each. Payments during the month totaled $37,921,000. A month earlier 354,711 veterans were receiving the checks, whereas in October only 230,000 were on the jobless lists.

The areas where veteran unemployment increased included (figures are for October and January):

Maryland, 1700 to 5600; Virginia, 2600 to 9200; West Virginia, 4000 to 8000.

Virginia Unemployment Drops About 600 in Week

Richmond, Va., Feb. 22 (AP).—The Virginia Unemployment Compensation Commission reported today that initial claims for compensation dropped from a peak of 3966 in the week ended January 8 to 3039 last week.

In the week ended February 14, 1948, the figure was 3523.

UCC said the figures indicated unemployment in the State is "leveling off somewhat."

The "continued claims" records showed 17,000 Virginia workers drew compensation benefits last week, compared with 8475 in the comparable week last year. The average check was $15.19, more than $3 above the average a year ago.

U. S. Railroads Report 1949 Declines in Both Freight and Passengers

By the United Press

The Association of American Railroads said yesterday that freight shipments the first six weeks of this year were 392,204 carloads below the first six weeks of 1948, and 658,066 carloads under the corresponding period in 1947.

A spokesman for the association estimated railroad passenger traffic so far this year at "10 to 14 per cent below the comparable period of 1948."

Meanwhile, government figures showed that rail industry employment is at the lowest level since the spring of 1942—just after the start of World War II.

Government employment experts said rail workers probably have been the hardest hit in the current industrial layoffs. Rail industry officials agreed there have been "many" cutbacks in rail employment but they said most of these are "temporary" layoffs of maintenance and clerical personnel brought on by what they hope is a "temporary" business slump.

Mine Owner Warns Of Strike Dangers

By The Associated Press

A spokesman for mine owners told Congress yesterday the country may be confronted with another crippling coal strike "unless the safeguards in the Taft-Hartley law are continued."

The statement was made to the Senate Labor Committee by Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers' Association. He said the T-H law forced John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers to bargain collectively with the association last year after Lewis first refused to recognize the operators' group.

Moody sounded his warning about a possible new strike after another coal industry official, with a wary eye on Lewis, urged the committee to keep the Taft-Hartley law provision authorizing 80-day injunctions against critical strikes.

James W. Haley, secretary and general counsel of the National Coal Association, pointed up his argument with figures showing 12 "major" strikes in the soft coal mines since 1935.

Moody told the committee: "We feel that unless the safeguards in the Taft-Hartley law which enabled us to reach a contract in 1948 are continued, the country may again face a crisis in coal." He added:

"Since the Taft-Hartley Act has been in effect, there has been but one strike and today the country has the best supply of coal on hand in over 10 years . . .

"It would seem reasonable to conclude that, far from having the Taft-Hartley Act precipitate this industry into confusion, it has established for the first time in many years an orderly procedure to encourage and develop collective bargaining.'

Haley's advocacy of the Taft-Hartley injunction provision prompted Senator Morse (R., Ore.) to tell him:

"You may labor under the impression that you can mine coal with an injunction, but I don't share your view.'

Morse said that regardless of the injunction granted in last year's strike, the miners actually did not return to the pits until they got what they wanted and Lewis then ordered them back to work.

Haley and Moody testified after:

1. Gerhard P. Van Arkel, former general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, called the Taft-Hartley law a "union-busting weapon." He demanded repeal of the law.

2. David R. Clarke, general counsel of the Illinois Manufacturers Association, lit into the measure which the Truman Administration wants to substitute for the T-H law. Clarke told the committee, in fact, that the Government should get all the way out of "the business of regulating unions and employers."

3. Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the NLRB said in a letter to Senator Morse (R., Oreg.), a committee member, that the Taft-Hartley Act has caused friction between the board and its general counsel, Robert Denham. Morse said the counsel should be made subordinate to the board again.

4. Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) protested that the Senate hearings, due to end today, are "being rushed in a manner not consonant with the best public interest." He added:

"I should like to see the hearings extended for at least two more weeks."

Some Southern Senators said some Administration supporters had made overtures to them for a compromise under which: (1) the Taft-Hartley Act would be repealed in part and (2) much of the Truman civil rights program, bitterly opposed by Southerners, would be shelved. However, nobody was willing to be quoted by name on these reports of a deal, and only the futhey will pan out.

The Administration's labor bill would wipe out, among other provisions of the Taft-Hartley law, the section which lets the Government get court orders to block strikes which endanger the national health or safety.

Nation's Security Psychosis Alarming, Businessmen Told

Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.) last night cited four symptoms of a disease in this country which is "not yet fatal but which may become fatal" if we don't remedy the symptoms.

Speaking before several hundred persons, including scores of Congressmen, at the annual dinner of the Conference of American Small Business Organizations, at the Wardman Park Hotel, Representative Gossett said the country is suffering from "value blindness, security psychosis, propaganda and political cowardice."

Value blindness, he called the people's failure to see the "immutable principles of right and wrong" amidst the great clamor for change.

Representative Gossett expressed strong opposition to the security psychosis which he said is giving people the desire to get something for nothing. "We want people to have security but we want them to earn it," he declared.

He called much of what goes into the newspapers and over the radio "propaganda," for which the country and Congress are "suckers."

Threatened by "gigantic industrial and labor monopolies," small businessmen are afraid to organize to take effective action, Representative Gossett said. He called their fear of taking a stand, "political cowardice."

But Representative Gossett saw a ray of hope in a speech by Mrs. Agnes Meyer reported in The Washington Post attacking a compulsory health insurance plan and an article by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt urging venture capital to seek new fields for investment.

There's room for optimism, he said, "when we find such distinguished liberals coming around to our side."

The 51 committees of the conference yesterday continued their spadework of forming resolutions to be submitted for open forum discussion today.

Speakers scheduled at the concluding session today include E. V. Hickey, chief of production of the National Security Resources Board, and Mr. Richard C. Cooke, director of the Small Business Division of the NSRB at 9:30 a. m., and Senator Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) at 1 p. m.

The commission also recommended that land, forestry and soil saving activities of the Interior Department be transferred to the Agriculture Department. Water development activities of the Agriculture Department, on the other hand, would be transferred to the Interior Department.

The commission urged a drastic change in the present system of farmer committees, first set up under AAA crop control programs of the thirties. These committees now help administer various department programs in the field.

The commission said such committees should be divorced from administrative duties, and should act only in advisory capacities. The administrative work would be done by regular department employes in unified local farm offices.

This change alone, the commission said, would save about $4,300,000 a year. The farmer committeemen draw pay from the department. Under the proposed setup they would receive only out-of-pocket costs in connection with attending meetings.

Similiarly, State farmer committees would become advisory councils instead of administrative units.

In the field of regulation, the commission said there is much conflict among various agencies. It cited the fact that the Agriculture Department, the Food and Drug Administration of the Federal Security Agency, and the Federal Trade Commission, an independent agency, all have regulatory powers over food.

All regulatory matters relating to food, the commission said, should be transferred to the Agriculture Department.

The commission proposed an overhauling of the department's soil conservation program, particularly that under which subsidies are paid farmers. In some years the subsidies have totaled more than 500 million dollars. They will be about 265 million dollars this year.

Under the present setup, a farmer may get payments by carrying out one or more soil or water conservation practices recommended by the department.

Under the Hoover Commission plan, payments to farmers would be restricted to those which would bring about the adoption of a complete and balanced conservation program on the farm. Payments would be stopped when the plan has been completed.

The commission said conservation payments "should not be used as income supplements in disguise."

The commission also recommended that borrowing authority of some of the department's credit agencies be sharply curtailed. It named such agencies as the Commodity Credit Corporation, the unit that finances the department's farm price support programs.

The CCC has authority to borrow $4,750,000,000 to carry out its activities. The commission would cancel this authority and give the CCC a three-billion-dollar revolving fund, which Congress would supplement from time to time as needs arose.

Hospital Acquires Site at Catholic U.

Providence Hospital has acquired a 15-acre tract of land at Catholic University as a site for a new building to replace the present 84-year-old stucco structure at 2d and D sts. se.

The Right Rev. Msgr. P. J. McCormick, rector of Catholic University, announced yesterday that the Catholic Sisters College, a division of the university, has signed a contract for the sale of land at 12th and Varnum sts. ne. The sale price was not disclosed.

Providence Hospital officials said there are no immediate plans for construction of the new building. Site acquisition is but the first step in a long-range project looking to the eventual relocation of the hospital, it was said.

Financing Remains

"Many further conditions, including the financing of the large costs of modern hospital construction, remains to be worked out."

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington and president of the Catholic Sisters College, in commenting on the purchase, expressed the hope the hospital will be successful in raising funds to permit plans to go forward at an early date.

The site was purchased after several years of negotiations conducted by the hospital's advisory board.

Early Plans Abandoned

When the Catholic Sisters College expressed interest in locating the hospital on their grounds more than a year ago citizens and physicians in the Southeast petitioned the hospital to remtain in the neighborhood.

Plans to rebuild on the present site were abandoned after the board decided the land was inadequate and rebuilding would force closing of the 340-bed, 60-bassinet institution during the construction period. At one time the hospital offered to trade its land for any available site in the area.

Yesterday's announcement said that the Sisters of Charity, who operate the hospital, plan to continue the large out-patient clinic and possibly the day nursery at the present location after completion of the new building.

Map locates Providence Hospital's new tract (top) adjacent to Catholic University campus. Location of the present building is designated by lower X

Aden Tribe Retakes Fort; Bandits Gone

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 22 (U.P.)—Two thousand fierce camel-riding tribesmen, led by a desert chieftain bent on revenge, have recaptured the fortress of Hillin in Aden protectorate, it was reported today.

They met no resistance. A British plane had dropped leaflets warning the bandits to expect no quarter unless they surrendered.

A month ago, neighboring tribesmen paid a "friendly call" on Mohammed's father, Sultan Saleh Ben Omar, ruler of the region.

After they had been wined and dined, the visitors stole a page from the Arabian nights. While their hosts slept, they killed the Sultan and his entire family, except young Mohammed. He was away—just as the bandits were away when he came home for vengeance today.

Teachers Oppose Antisubversive Bill

Baltimore, Feb. 22 (AP).—An official of the State Teachers Association called today for the defeat of the Ober antisubversives bill unless it is amended to "safeguard our citizens" from "Gestapo methods."

The statement was made in an article written by Executive Secretary Milson C. Raver of the STA and authorized by its executive committee.

Appearing in the group's monthly, the Maryland Teacher, the piece was entitled, "Do You Want the Gestapo in Maryland?"

The bill now before the Maryland House after unanimous approval by the Senate last night would require loyalty checks of all State employes, including schoolteachers.

Membership a Felony

It would outlaw subversive organizations and make it a felony to belong to one. A special assistant attorney general would be appointed to investigate subversive activities.

"It cannot be denied that this (proposed) legislation sets up communistic methods for the suppression of communism," Raver wrote.

He noted that the Commission on Subversive Activities in its report on an investigation of Maryland's problems claimed and "effectively argued that" it had not attempted by criminal statute to limit the freedom of speech, or proposed any agency that could be accused of "witch hunting," but has confined itself strictly to the "definition and prohibition of criminal acts."

But as contrasted with its report, the legislation prepared by the commission is "quite another matter," says Raver.

"Highly competent legal opinion has . . . pointed out that it opens the way for spying and crusading against innocent public officials including all teachers."

Jefferson Cited

It "admits to fears within because of the threat of dangers lurking without," he argued, and "any legislation which puts such fear in the minds of innocent persons is undemocratic and therefore unsound."

He cited Thomas Jefferson's opposition to "such measures from the passage of the Alien and Sedition Act in 1798" but "making allowance" for changing times "the writer believes that some protection against subversive elements may be necessary."

But in "its zeal for protection from danger it has forgotten its promises concerning the sanctity of the individual citizen and the consequent effect on our democratic institutions," Raver said.

He cited the following possibilities, "lest we be thought of as shouting extremists:"

A pupil in a social studies class hears the teacher describe the totalitarian state. Johnnie, no admirer of the teacher, gets a garbled mental picture, tells his father—no admirer of Miss X either—who "writes to the special assistant attorney general and a witch hunt is on."

Bill to Have Hearing In House Committee

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22 (AP).—The Maryland House of Delegates took over today the campaign to disperse the Communist Party in the Free State.

Unanimously approved by the State Senate, a bill to punish subversives and require loyalty checks will get at least one more hearing before final action.

It was made clear that only those who have suggestions for improvement will be welcome. Those who are simply against the bill on principle have had their says as far as the House Judiciary Committee is concerned.

Chairman Melnicove (D., Balto., fourth) of the House Judiciary Committee said he expects to hold a "hearing or hearings" on the measure.

Among those invited is Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State superintendent of schools. Melnicove said that "these people in the education system seem to be alarmed about the bill in its present form. I would like to see what their objections are."

Special School Taxes Studied In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22 (AP). Governor Lane said today the administration is "seriously considering" special taxing powers for the counties to pay for new schools.

Officials of the Western Shore County Commissioners Association and spokesmen for other counties have asked the State for more help in building and enlarging schools.

Any additional sources of revenue would be similar to those authorized for Baltimore city and county by the 1947 Legislature. Their governments can tax such items as tobacco and liquor to raise money.

Lane said Attorney General Hall Hammond is still investigating the legality of suggestions that the State back county bond issues for new schools.

County financial problems are tied up directly with the need for more schools, Christian H. Kahl of Baltimore County has told the Governor. Kahl is chairman of the Western Shore Association and of his county's board of commissioners.

He has proposed quadrupling the incentive fund, by which the State contributes to county school construction funds, or one of these alternatives: (1) The State should issue all school bonds for the counties, (2) issue bonds on a 50-50 basis with the counties, (3) pledge State credit to county bonds, or (4) issue bonds for counties with so large a debt they can borrow no more on their own.

Portia Speechless, But a Winner

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LEGAL UPHEAVAL — Arturo Gay offers water to his wife, Mrs. Inez Gay, 24, a blond model, who became speechless in the final round of her personal property recovery suit against her father, but won the case. The amateur Portia held up proceedings an hour and a half by what a doctor termed temporary paralysis of the tongue caused by emotion. Later she said, "I'm going to ask the court to let me take the bar exam without a law degree. This law stuff isn't so hard and when I'm admitted to the bar I'm going to help all the people like me who can't afford lawyers. Mrs. Gay was awarded $1338.63 in cash, a pair of roller skates, a doll, a bicycle and a tennis racket

Prince Georges Asks State for School Aid

Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday asked the State of Maryland to underwrite county credit and increase fourfold the State school building incentive fund.

Action was requested by the commissioners in a letter suggesting a meeting with Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., to discuss "unprecedented" county school needs.

Even basements and hallways of schools are overcrowded now, the letter to Lane said, while "a very substantial increase in school children can be expected the coming year," because of increased population in the Greater Washington area.

Present school construction under previously authorized bond issues, and plans to erect 20 temporary buildings bought from the War Assets Administration, only go "a short way to meet the needs created by our unprecedented growth," the letter warned.

"The county has already nearly reached what is considered a reasonable debt limit and with a tax rate of $1.97, we feel that there is little, if any, we can do for ourselves, to meet these problems," the letter continued.

"Under these circumstances, the county is forced to request a very substantial increase in aid from the States, which the commissioners hope can be done by increasing the school building incentive fund four times what it is now and by making available to the county the credit of the State so that we may borrow at reasonable rates of interest and not impair our credit."

The letter was read at a meeting of the commissioners in the Upper Marlboro Court House. In other actions, the Commissioners:

Took under advisement a request by Police Supt. Ralph W. Brown and Lieut. Elon Turner, that police retirement provisions be liberalized. The commissioners warned this might prove prohibitively expensive, but suggested a meeting with police, insurance agents and State agencies, which might underwrite the program.

Read letters from the Democratic Club of Chillum District, Cheverly Post, American Legion and Hyattsville District Women's Democratic Club indorsing the commissioner-form of government.

Air Force Lifts Veil for Peek at 9-Ton Pack Plane

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 22 (AP).—The nearest thing to a flying locomotive is being designed here for the United States Air Force.

The Air Force opened its aeronautical roundhouse long enough for at least a peek at this new-fangled cargo plane, the XC-120. It's known as a pack plane and is a sort of first cousin to the familiar C-82 flying boxcar.

But where the C-82 must take its boxcar with it wherever it goes, the XC-120 can change cars, just like a locomotive. The new twist is a detachable cargo compartment.

The Air Force also pulled back the secrecy wraps long enough to disclose that the plane will be able to fly with or without its cargo pack and will carry a payload of nine tons.

Wallace, 1121 6th st. nw., and Silas Prioleau, 1948 3d st. nw.

Charles E. Hughes, Public Buildings Administration guard who was first in line, having reached the typewriter store at 4:30 p. m. Monday, didn't pick a 99-cent model after all. Hughes of 808 9th st. ne. said he chose a $4.88 portable instead.

Though crowds were easy to handle on the whole, about 125 persons in an over-eager line outside the Electrical Center, 514 10th st. nw., pushed up against the store's display window, cracking it.

Police kept watchful eyes on several especially long lines, including block-length crowds outside the Kaplowitz dress shop, 521 13th st. nw., queued up for dresses advertised at $1, $3, and $5 each. One patient-footed shopper reported it took her an hour and a quarter just to reach the door of the shop.

At Philipsborn, a woman's dress shop at 608 11th st. nw., 500 persons were lined up outside the store when it opened at 9 a. m.

A number of the shoppers, including O. S. Hallett of 8503 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park, said they were in line for women's suits erroneously advertised at 27 cents each.

The ad, a misprint which appeared in the first two editions of an afternoon paper, was later corrected to read $27. About 25 shoppers were sold suits for 27 cents, however, according to store manager Joseph Goldstein.

Another Philipsborn official called police about 1 p. m. and asked them to persuade several determined women shoppers, who were refused the 27-cent bargain price on suits, to leave. The women, who would not give their names, left the store after police explained they should take any further action through the small claims court.

Though lines outside stores diminished during the morning, clumps of 10 or 20 persons were a common sight even at noon, when police were still shepherding groups of half a dozen or so persons at a time into shops.

Biggest crush of the day took place at 1 p. m. on F st. sidewalks, as the large department stores and many smaller shops, began to close their doors. Most other stores were through doing business by 2 p. m. and bundle-laden shoppers gradually drifted homeward during the afternoon.

Store officials agreed the crowds were record-breaking, and one department store official called the throng "the heaviest I've ever seen in the whole 22 years I've been here."

Officials of one electrical appliance store on F st. said a corps of trucks was used during the day to move sold merchandise, and replace it with new stock from its warehouse. Bargains at the store included trade-in radios for as low as $2.77, and television sets at up to 30 per cent off.

Among the bargains which enticed Washingtonians downtown were all-wool men's suits reduced to $22; $55 men's overcoats at $27.75; reconditioned refrigerators as low as $29; neckties and bath towels at 10 cents each; glasses at 4 cents a piece; $200 fur coats at $5.

Many of the best bargains disappeared within an hour of the time stores opened. One jewelry store which advertised 100 silver charms and as many pairs of earrings at 9 cents a piece, reported they were all gone by 9 a. m. The $5 fur coats also disappeared in short order.

U. S. Aids Radio Freedom, Coy Tells Schoolboys

by The Associated Press

Wayne Coy, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, yesterday told four teen-age orators that the Federal Government has been a contributor to the freedom of radio.

"And in keeping radio free," he said, "we are furthering the cause of democracy in the United States and the world."

Coy spoke at a luncheon honoring the schoolboy winners of the second annual Voice of Democracy Contest.

Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, told the boys their writing and voicing of the best 250,000 scripts on the subject, "I Speak for Democracy," was work as important as their classroom studies.

Youngest winner this year is 14-year-old Charles Kuralt of Charlotte, N. C. The others are George Morgan, jr., of Hutchinson, Kans., and Kerron Johnson of St. Paul, Minn., both 16, and Richard Caves, 17, of Everett, Ohio. Each has won a $500 college scholarship. Attorney General Tom Clark will present the awards today.

Sponsors of the contest, in addition to the NAB, are the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Radio Manufacturers Association.

First, the period of time in which they may be used.

Second, that they may not be used for a return trip.

Third, that they must be presented at transfer points.

With the use of such a transfer arrangement within the District of Columbia . . . it will be possible for patrons . . . to select, without additional cost, a more direct route between their homes or places of business and various parts of the District of Columbia.

Free Transfers: Transfers will be issued for a continuation of a ride, in accordance with the following regulations:

Hearings Scheduled On Suburban Bills

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22—Public hearings on proposed controversial bills affecting the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission will be held Friday, Leroy Pumphrey, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, announced today.

Hearings will be held at 11:30 a. m. on the bills, introduced by the Montgomery County all-Republican delegation, seeking transfer of all the planning and enforcement functions of the commission to the Montgomery County council. The Sanitary Commission hearings will be held at 1 p. m.

Prince Georges County delegation members today introduced four more bills, all of which provide for referendums before they become effective.

Cheverly Charter Change

One would revamp the charter of the town of Cheverly in accordance with changes proposed by the mayor and council. Another would permit the mayor and council of Cheverly to establish and maintain a storm water or surface drainage system and to assess the cost against abutting property owners.

Another would increase in the fire tax of Riverdale from 5 to 10 cents, beginning with the levy year 1950, and another would increase the permissible tax rate for Fairmount Heights from the present 25 to 50 cents.

Senator L. Harold Sothoron (D., Prince Georges) introduced a bill permitting the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles to delay effective date of license plates if occasion demands.

Meanwhile, seven bills which had been introduced by Prince Georges County members cleared the House and are now enroute to the Senate.

Church Bill Passed

These include a bill to permit the Episcopal Diocese of Washington to hold lands in an equal amount to other churches in Charles, Montgomery, Prince Georges and St. Marys Counties. The diocese previously has been restricted to one acre while other churches are permitted five acres for church use.

Among the other House-passed bills are ones authorizing:

1. Increase fire tax rate from 10 to 13 cents;
2. Construction of a new $100,000 fire house for Hyattsville, subject to a referendum;
3. Repeal of an obsolete law requiring referendum every 10 years on public franchises;
4. Increase of the quarterly license fee for trailers parked in Prince Georges County trailer parks from $6 to $12;
5. Increase of the number of persons to be drawn for the Prince Georges County jury panel from 72 to 92, and
6. Addition of several new fire departments and election districts to the county fire tax law.

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22.—Opposition to a proposed bill to permit Hyattsville's City Council to construct sidewalks without obtaining the consent of 51 per cent of the abutting property owners was expressed by 25 of the city's residents here tonight at a public hearing.

The hearing was held by the Prince Georges County legislative delegation. The bill has been proposed by the Hyattsville mayor and council.

Majority Floor Leader LeRoy Pumphrey (D., Prince Georges) expressed doubt that a portion of the bill that would permit the council to improve several small patches of street without requiring approval of the property owners is constitutional. City attorney Nicholas Orem, jr., told the delegation he would look up authorities and submit them later.

Mayor Caesal L. Aiello and City Councilmen W. J. Hellman and Hiram L. Lawrence appeared in favor of the bill, which they said would permit them to construct sidewalks in places where it is necessary to protect school children.

Among those who spoke in opposition were Paul O. O'Dowd, Mrs. Dorothy Sousa, Harry Dengler, John P. Lautz, Mrs. Mary H. Broadus.

Russian Army Chief Attends Warsaw Fete

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 22 (AP).—Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, Soviet commander in Poland, arrived tonight to take part in Wednesday's celebration of the thirty-first anniversary of the Red army.

The marshal, whose headquarters are in Lidnicia, in southwestern Poland, is making his second visit to Warsaw since the war. He was heavily guarded on his arrival by Polish militia. Rokossovsky was guest at a dinner given tonight by Polish government officials.

Baby Reunited With Mother

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HAPPY—Mrs. Guy M. Jones and her 16-month-old daughter, Mary Jacqueline, were reunited and back home in Louisville, Ind., yesterday. Mrs. Jones left the child with its grandmother, Mrs. Myrtle Hamby, last week and went to visit her husband, Capt. Guy Jones, in Massachusetts. Police said the baby and grandmother disappeared but were found in Evansville, Ind. The child had been left in a taxicab, they said

Maryland Unit Backs State Correction Department

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22 (AP).—Establishment of a Maryland department of correction with a full-time director won approval of the State Senate Judiciary Committee today.

At the same time the House Judiciary Committee turned down a proposed law which would have allowed police to "frisk" suspects for concealed weapons.

The plan for a department of correction was part of an overall reshuffling of prison and parole affairs in Maryland.

The Senate committee also gave its approval to a bill to provide for full exchange of information between the department of correction and department of parole.

It further reported to the floor another measure to allow reduction of sentences for prisoners who show progress in learning trades or professions.

It delayed action, however, on one major bill which would transfer parole authority from the Governor to the parole department.

Committee actions were the main legislative business on this Washington's birthday. Both Houses took time out to welcome representatives from 19 Latin-American nations in a tribute to American republics.

The House and Senate held only routine sessions upon conclusion of the ceremonies.

The "frisking" bill, which has often drawn fire of senators and delegates from several counties, would have repealed the old Bouse act which prohibits search and seizure of weapons without a warrant.

"Frisking" is permitted now in Baltimore County. The bill was intended to make it Statewide.

Speeding Convictions Decline in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Feb. 22 (AP).—Speeders accounted for 36 per cent of all traffic law convictions in Virginia during January.

This was the report of the Division of Motor Vehicles today.

Of the 5016 motorists convicted for various driving offenses during this month, 1811 were speeders. The department said these figures represent a decrease of 792 convictions under the December, 1948, speeding total of 2603.

The Outer Shell

Little more than the shell of the President's Palace, as it was called in Major L'Enfant's plan, has withstood the ravages of time and haphazard alterations. The roof and third floor are of fairly recent vintage and in good shape. The thick outer walls, all that stood after the building was burned by the British invaders in 1814, are still in pretty good shape but need some underpinning. The innards of the White House, though, are pretty much a shambles of cracked walls and shaky floors. To put the building into first-class condition will take, it is estimated, close to a year and a half and 5½ million dollars.

Perhaps 20 per cent—nobody can be sure—of the cost comes from the fact that the job has to be done within the existing shell. It would be easier and cheaper to start from scratch, with steam shovels and bulldozers to do the excavating, for instance. But this would mean tearing down not just a ramshackle building but something that holds some of the historic values of this still young Nation. The difficult digging that must be done to deepen the foundations under the outer walls and put down footings for the interior walls is worth, we think, the added cost. So is the extra expense for preserving the unique interior decorations in wood and plaster that have been the familiar surroundings of every President since John Adams first moved in.

Five and a half million dollars is not peanuts, of course. There are many houses in Washington a good deal more rickety than the White House, and this amount of money would go far to better them. But the White House is not only a national shrine, which we should be shamed not to keep up; but the home of the Nation's First Family. The most shocking revelation about the White House is not the cost of repairing it but the acute danger it has been to its occupants and visitors. We can see no possible grounds for congressional objection to the President's request for funds with which to put the White House in safe and sound condition.

Free Speech For What?

A bare majority of the National Labor Relations Board has held that the "free speech" clause of the Taft-Hartley law does not justify peaceful picketing in furtherance of secondary boycotts. The issue is one of extreme complexity, involving as it does an apparent conflict in the labor law itself. The NLRB ruling is hardly more satisfactory than one of much criticized 5-4 Supreme Court decisions; the five-member board handed down three separate opinions, with Chairman Paul Herzog resolving the tie in a "reluctant" concurrence. On grounds of principle, however, it seems to us that the majority is entirely right: if the aim of union action is defined as illegal in the law, then any means chosen to effectuate that aim are per se illegal.

The case itself concerns the Carpenters' District Council of Kansas City and its relations with the Wadsworth Building Co., a manufacturer of prefabricated houses, and Klassen & Hodgson, Inc., an erector of the houses. The union engaged in peaceful picketing of a Klassen & Hodgson construction project and instituted a "We do not patronize" list to force the Klassen firm to cease doing business with Wadsworth because Wadsworth did not employ union labor. No outward forms of coercion were used. The question was simply whether the Taft-Hartley ban on secondary boycotts extended to these methods. From the legislative history of the Act as quoted by the majority, it seems clear that the intention of Congress was to outlaw all means of effecting such boycotts.

It is unfortunate, in our opinion, that the minority based its dissent on the provision of the Taft-Hartley law guaranteeing freedom of expression "regardless of any other provision." Guaranties of free speech, to be sure, are not something to be tampered with or lightly disregarded. But is free speech really involved? The courts have modified early interpretations of peaceful picketing as an exercise solely of free speech. For free speech is not to be considered in a vacuum; it must be judged by its aim. It is scarcely an abridgment of the liberty of expression, for example, to apply Justice Holmes' dictum that free speech does not include the right to cry "fire" in a crowded theater.

The majority opinion contains a healthy reminder that the function of the labor board is to interpret the law rather than to pass judgment on the merit of the practices. If the unions object to the ban on product boycotts, let them, the board suggests, address their arguments to Congress. This is precisely what has been done in the new Administration labor bill, which would remove economic boycotts from the realm of illegal practices. With respect to this particular case, it seems to us that to permit economic pressure would be to sanction unreasonable means of forcing union membership when the union had been unable to attain this through direct negotiations. Regardless of the scope of the new law, however, Congress ought to learn from the present confusion the necessity for saying explicitly just what it means.

Our Foreign Relations

The importance of the Hoover Commission's report on the administration of foreign affairs goes far beyond its plans for reorganizing the State Department. The need to reorganize has been plain for years. What has not been so plain until now has been the role of the Government outside the State Department in formulating our foreign policy and conducting our foreign relations. There is no divine or constitutional right which makes the State Department the President's only source of major help and guidance in the field of foreign affairs. There are enormous talents in other departments and a place for those other departments as well, and imperative reasons for using them.

A case in point is the President's now-famous Point Four of his inaugural address, calling for American help in developing backward areas. We suspect that many in the State Department found this a bewildering idea, although it was directly related to the aims of American foreign policy. The Department of Agriculture and other civilian agencies did not find it bewildering at all. They had been active for years in sending American technicians to undeveloped foreign countries, and bringing foreigners here for training. If we read the Hoover report correctly, it is a plea to marshal the combined resources of the Congress, the White House and the entire executive branch in the conduct of our foreign relations. The foreign affairs of the United States have become too vast and too complex for one department, or for haphazard dabbling elsewhere in the Government. In calling attention to this postwar truth, the Hoover Commission has done one of the finest of its many services.

The proposed changes within the State Department are generally sound and long overdue. Some of the Hoover Commission's reasoning, however, suggests a hankering for the more placid days of the Hoover Administration. The commission contends that the State Department should not "operate" any Government programs except in "unusual" circumstances. From this it argues that the State Department should not become responsible for governing occupied Germany and Japan, since "the present circumstances do not appear to be sufficiently unusual" to justify such a step.

How much chaos and confusion, one wonders, are needed to make the situation in Germany and Japan "unusual"? Has there ever been a clearer case for unchallenged civilian control? As an alternative, the commission would continue Army control or set up "a new administration of overseas affairs," subject to the instructions of the Secretary of State. We cannot help feeling that this is a weak evasion, a blemish on an otherwise courageous and common-sense report.

Dissecting Smears

Six prominent scientists have condemned, with a great deal of pertinence, the treatment accorded Dr. Edward U. Condon by the Un-American Activities Committee and the press. Their statement follows publication in the Scientific American of an article entitled "Trial by Newspaper," analyzing the news stories on the committee's charges against Dr. Condon carried by the nine New York newspapers. The survey was conducted by the Columbia University Bureau of Applied Social Research, and it doesn't make pleasant reading for the newspaper industry.

The abuses by the Un-American Activities Committee are now widely censured, and a reform movement to institute a code of fair practices toward witnesses seems to be making progress on Capitol Hill. What is not so generally understood is the manner in which newspapers, by injudicious featuring of flimsy smears, have contributed to and magnified those abuses.

For example, the survey shows that the source of most of the smears against Condon was the committee's vague and unsupported charge that he was "one of the weakest links" in American security. Statements in Dr. Condon's favor came from a wide variety of sources, including the Department of Commerce loyalty board, the Atomic Energy Commission and numerous scientists and scientific societies. Yet the mere repetition of the committee's charges accounted for 57 per cent of the material derogatory to Condon, whereas only 11 per cent of the criticisms of the committee were repeated. There was a marked difference in treatment between the four morning newspapers, which were predominantly fair, and the five evening papers, one of which ran a ratio of 82 per cent of statements unfavorable to Condon to 18 per cent stating his side.

Some of the implications of the analysis go into the nature of news itself. For instance, the mere fact that a member of the Un-American Activities Committee makes a charge against Condon is in itself news, whether or not the charge is well founded. Newspapers could not reasonably be expected to ignore such news; otherwise, they could legitimately be accused of suppression. What the survey does indicate is that some of the papers have exercised lax or warped judgment as to the kind of material that warrants feature play. It is regrettable in this connection that the analysis did not also include position in the paper, as well as the number and wording of headlines in the case. This probably would have documented even further the evidence of "trial by newspaper."

Which came first, committee irresponsibility or sensational treatment of loose charges, is a chicken-and-egg proposition. There is little doubt, however, that the one abets the other in building hysteria and contributing to a denial of essential rights. The lesson of the New York analysis is salutary for all newspapers — that newspapers should re-examine the real news value of repeated attacks carrying the same old stuff. What is needed is not suppression, but greater emphasis on placing out-of-focus accounts in their proper perspective.

World Trade

The "basic conditions which led to the widespread tightening up on imports by so many countries in 1947 have not yet materially improved," says Dr. Henry Chalmers in his review of foreign trade trends in 1948. On the contrary, quite a number of countries tightened their import controls last year, while Canada and the British West Indies "stand almost alone" in announcing a relaxation of restrictions effective in 1949. Yet it was during 1948 that the recovery program was launched, and extensive tariff concessions provisionally put into effect by 22 countries that had participated in the Geneva trade negotiations.

Dr. Chalmers does not underrate the importance of these developments. But he does emphasize the fact that considerable time will be required before the benefits of tariff concessions will be fully realized, since present conditions do not permit relaxation of import controls and exchange regulations. The recovery program likewise has not been in operation long enough to correct the conditions that have made necessary drastic restrictions on imports, although ECA loans and grants have eased dollar shortages of participating European countries and also other areas, particularly Canada. But for the help given by the ECA, Dr. Chalmers notes, restrictions on imports of many less essential goods would have been more severe than they now are and would probably have extended to various essential products.

Particular emphasis is placed on the handicap to trade of unstable currencies. The unsatisfactory monetary situation has increased the pressure for bilateral trade balancing between countries whose currencies are not freely convertible—a practice that retards a trade expansion commensurate with the progress made by individual European countries in expanding productive capacity. The intra-European payment plan put into effect last year is designed to break the stranglehold of bilateral trading agreements, but in practice it has not proved to be as effective as had been hoped. Indeed, some critics maintain that it perpetuates the bilateral system of trade and has resulted in creditor countries being forced to take commodities they did not want.

Of course, the ultimate objective of all trading countries is to stabilize their currencies. For, as Dr. Chalmers points out, "so long as unreal exchange ratios between the currencies of different countries continue, they hinder progress toward the fuller interaction between their economies which is essential to the restoration of freer and more normal international exchange of goods." That helps to explain why the Secretary General of the OEEC (Organization of European Economic Cooperation) is urging Marshall Plan countries to stabilize their currencies this year and to strive to maintain such stability by restricting imports and increasing exports. While the immediate effect of such a program would be a further tightening of import controls, it would, if successful, lay the foundation for a gradual, sound expansion of international trade in the years ahead.

Liberals And Labels

In a speech at Los Angeles Friday evening Justice William O. Douglas spoke out against "the shameful practice of branding as a Communist everyone who espouses a liberal reform or promotes a program for the underprivileged." Justice Douglas has spoken in this vein and with these words before. But we are glad of the repetition. Americans need to be constantly reminded that ours is a society based on the freedom to disagree and that dissent, in consequence, is not a sign of disaffection. It is wholly appropriate that a member of the Supreme Court, into whose custody we have put so much responsibility for guarding our freedoms, should remind us that we ourselves have that same responsibility, too.

This is especially true today. From the totalitarian extremes on both sides come two streams of propaganda with the same message. If you are not for us you are against us; the burden is that there is no middle ground; if you are against them you must be one of us; if you are in favor of measures they profess to support you must be one of them. The effect, and the intention, of this propaganda is to undermine the liberal position, to divide the people and to conquer them. The perpetrators of this divisive propaganda would like nothing better than to have everyone adopt their tactic of smearing all liberals as Communists or Fascists. For it destroys their best enemies, the proponents of democratic change through free expression of ideas.

Veterans' Pension

I am a wife of a veteran of World War II and greatly disturbed over the proposed veterans' pension bill, which has been reported out favorably by the House Veteran's Committee (with some committee members protesting against Chairman Rankin's tactics).

It is estimated this proposal will mount in cost until it will reach the staggering sum of six billion dollars a year by 1990, and will, in the aggregate, amount to almost half of the total expenditure for the last war.

It is no justification that similar pensions are enjoyed by veterans of the Spanish-American War. They did not have a GI Bill of Rights, and all the other benefits accorded the recent veterans by the Government in the fields of housing, employment, education, etc. There is no need for this bill either, because in certain isolated cases some veterans have been unfairly treated. Surely these can be remedied by a less drastic and far-reaching application. Nor is the fact that some older veterans of World War I are now unemployed; an extension and strengthening of our social security laws would help these men or their dependents, as well as all the needy and aged in this country.

Under the new rules adopted by Congress, this pension bill is certain to be brought to the floor. Then Congress will really be "on the spot." Will Congressmen dare to "vote against the veteran" though their conscience and intelligence warn them to vote against any proposal destined to so burden the American taxpayer?

A Congressman would, in my opinion, be voting not only against the veteran but against all the American people, in approving this legislation. To show Congress that veterans are not to be "bought," and that they are citizens first and veterans second, I call upon all veterans, individually and through their organizations, to write Congress of their overwhelming opposition to this veterans' pension bill.

Global Boondoggling

According to Robert Marjolin, in 1953 western Europe will still need a subsidy of three and one half billion dollars. If this rate of recovery is maintained aid must continue until 1960. At that time western Europe should be on its feet, provided that rearmament has not wrecked the economies of the Marshall Plan countries; there has not been an economic crisis in either the United States or western Europe; Congress continues to make substantial funds available; Britain, France and Holland do not either lose colonial possessions or dissipate their strength in colonial wars; a revived and remilitarized Germany does not decide to make a meal of France, Benelux and Britain.

After 1½ billion dollars of American cabbage, the Greek government has moved away from any pretense at democracy and is now a limited dictatorship, whatever that may mean.

In Asia having lost all the valuable parts of China and the friendship of the Chinese people, we are now indirectly financing the Dutch imperialistic adventure in Indonesia. From all this fantastic global boondoggling, a great moral truth is beginning to take shape: "He who goes about pouring sand in rat holes, cannot expect to get reward, satisfaction, or even thanks from anyone, including the rats."

D. C. Sales Tax

No Congress has even come close to passing a Nation-wide sales tax for the good and sufficient reason that such a tax would be a complete reversal of United States tax philosophy based upon taxing according to the ability to pay.

Yet the Congress is ready to impose upon the District of Columbia a type of taxation which it is unwilling to legislate for its constituents. A tax bearing most heavily upon those least able to pay is popular only when there is no recourse to the ballot box.

Congress should increase its payments to the District to an amount commensurate with the value of the Federal Government benefits from D. C. civic services.

Let us have self-government first and then if officials who are responsible to D. C. voters decide a sales tax is necessary, I will oppose it, but pay it cheerfully if I am overruled by the elected body.

To The Rescue

It is because of people like George Holland (letter published February 17)—who like their newspapers to be tamely quiet, lulling their consciences into a happy satisfaction with the status quo—that conditions such as segregation, police misconduct, and special (and everyday) causes become such problems that it is necessary for a newspaper to campaign "all out."

I contend that The Washington Post IS a great newspaper because it refuses to let sleeping dogs lie. To quote Mr. Holland, "Justice must prevail and will prevail, but it can never do so by force." Therefore, we need more newspapers following the lead of The Washington Post in bringing to light wrongs, prodding our consciences and giving us information with which to provide justice peacefully, instead of forcefully.

Reply To Dewey

Governor Dewey's Lincoln Day speech reveals clearly why he was defeated and why the Republican Party has failed since 1932. He lays great stress on the survival of his party. Actually of much more importance is the survival of those basic principles which have made America great. Governor Dewey does not seem to understand that the American fundamentals of personal liberty, self-reliance, industriousness and thrift will eventually be destroyed by such socialistic measures as he favors.

Segregation In Washington

We were glad to read your February 13 editorial criticizing the statement of the Federation of Citizens Associations concerning the segregation report. It seems to us, however, that the main onus of responsibility for the maintenance of segregation in Washington should be ascribed to organized local business interests, rather than to the Federal Government, as your editorial suggests.

During the Wilson Administration, as the report points out, the Government itself, under the pressure of Southern Democrats, was clearly responsible for the introduction of segregation into the departments and bureaus. There is little doubt that such actions greatly accelerated the growth of other local discriminatory patterns, and led to the complete lapse of civil rights ordinances set up during reconstruction times. However, during the past 10 years, and especially since the executive order of September 3, 1941, issued by President Roosevelt, the Federal Government has made great progress in the upgrading of colored employes, and has now abolished segregation in the vast majority of cafeterias and other public places within its jurisdiction.

The federation statement claims that outright repeal of segregation laws (this use of the word "laws" is rather curious, since the only laws since the Civil War have been to forbid segregation in the District rather than to encourage it) would not work. This argument is no longer tenable, since the Washington pattern is now a vastly different one from that of the Deep South or even the border States. The recent actions of the Federal Government have created a dual standard of race relations in this city, under which Negroes can enjoy their full rights as American citizens while working for Uncle Sam during the day, but are denied them after hours.

The federation has completely ignored in its statement the argument of the report that segregation in Washington is a national as well as a local problem. Yet, until home rule is restored, the administration of the District is the direct responsiblity of the Nation as a whole. Congress has in the past always deferred to the sentiments of local groups and refrained from passing legislation which seemed counter to expressed opposition of organized business interests.

If it should consider, however, that such bodies as the Board of Trade and the Federation of Citizens Associations have ceased to be representative of enlightened public opinion, and if public policy should require a change on the basis of national and international interest, it might well take steps to introduce civil rights legislation for the District and the integration of the public school systems. The fact that the Department of Justice recently took the unprecedented step of filing a brief in the covenant cases, should have clearly demonstrated that public policy, as the Government now understands it, is antagonistic to the maintenance and extension of official segregation.

Your editorial welcomes the federation's statement that spokesmen from that group declared themselves willing to discuss the facts of segregation with District Negroes, and that it seeks a better understanding between the races. ADA will be glad to take up that challenge and to arrange for such discussions to take place at the earliest possible opportunity. Public discussion of racial problems in Washington is the only means by which the many misunderstandings which exist in the minds of both white and colored residents can be analyzed and overcome.

Menace Of Food Fogyism

By Malvina Lindsay

Diet And Destiny

EDUCATING the peoples of the world to choose their diets on the basis of health rather than what Grandpa liked is one of the projects of the World Health Organization. No wonder that in the short time of its existence it has not achieved this and the other health miracles to which it has set its hand—thus providing the Soviet Union with an excuse for pulling down its iron curtain against the disease germs of the world.

For even the American people who throughout most of this century have been lectured on the merits of milk and spinach, and who have available most of the food they need, are making diet progress slowly. Few as yet seem to realize how greatly food affects the destinies of themselves, their nation and the world.

True, American meals of today are very different from those of 40 years ago, as a recent report of the National Industrial Conference Board shows. In 1909 the American table was dominated by meat, bread and potatoes. Now bread intake is down about a fourth, potatoes a third. Milk drinking has increased enormously, and the average citizen now has an egg a day, while in the year 1909 he ate 284.

HE HAS harkened to the nutritionists and now eats more leafy vegetables. His biggest diet change is in citrus fruits and tomatoes, of which he eats more than twice as much as in 1909. This should make happy the noted nutrition authority, Dr. Henry C. Sherman, who recently on receiving a medal from Columbia University, reemphasized his credo that vitamins A and C and calcium are keys to better health and longer life.

However, not so good is the American record on sweets, consumption of which is increasing yearly despite warnings of dentists. And the average American has nearly doubled since 1909 his intake of coffee, tea and cocoa—possibly because of the office snack habit. What is more, the lack of enriched bread in children's diets is causing concern to nutritionists.

Though much of this diet change is to the good, the average American family is likely to lack on its table the food it needs. This was recently shown in results of a year's diet experiments on 64 families above average in income and education, and regarded by their neighbors as healthy. The study was made by the Ellen Richards Institute of Pennsylvania State College and the Home Economics Institute of Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

At the beginning of the study tests showed the average health level of the families to be 79.6, or below par, or Class II. At the end of a year's balanced diet the average was in Class I, with some individuals reaching 90 and gaining as much as 14 points. Children improved most, teen-age boys next, men third, with women at the bottom of the list—possibly because they are too bored with food preparation to eat adequately.

THE FOOD ignorance and lassitude of these privileged American families shows what a great task the World Health Organization faces in its nutrition work. It is first trying to find out—particularly in the vulnerable areas of the world—what foods people are eating, what are available to them, and what relation their diseases have to their diets. Finally it must educate them to eat what they need, even against long tradition and habit.

Both the World Health Organization and the World Food and Agriculture Organization operate on the realization that badly fed peoples are breeding grounds for epidemics, social unrest, political revolution, war—all of which span oceans and continents and penetrate behind atom bombs and iron curtains. However there cannot be proper eating unless there is food to eat, and the World Health Organization is attacking this basic problem by making malaria control one of its chief programs. Malaria, which strikes 300 million people yearly and kills three million, is a big agent in cutting down food production in the heart of the agricultural world.

About 60 per cent of the world's gainfully employed are working in agriculture. The most basic service the World Health Organization can provide with or without the Soviet Union—is to prevent the disease and nutritional ignorance that enfeeble those who must produce food for a hungry world.

Saint-Gaudens Statue

Your editorial on February 12 stated that Washington had no Saint-Gaudens statue. There is one in Rock Creek Cemetery, the memorial erected by Henry Adams to his wife, but bearing no inscription of any kind and hidden within a circle of evergreens. It is often called "Grief" and sometimes, more fittingly, "The Peace of God." Saint-Gaudens gave it no name but said it was intended to symbolize "the soul facing the last great mystery."

An English traveler called it the finest thing he saw in America. People go and sit in silence on the granite bench before it, finding in its calm repose peace of mind and inspiration.

Washington Calling

The Air Force's Show

FLASHING across the Washington sky these days are all sorts of mysterious shapes. Flying Wings, superduper jet jobs, round-the-world bombers, streak across the Capital and the gaping Congressman has a feeling of being whirled along in the revolution of the Air Age.

Childs

It doesn't matter, of course, if there is only one of these spectacular jobs straight off the designing board of a poetic designer. Wrapped up in a press release or a speech telling how much faster than the speed of light it can travel, one makes as big a jolt as a hundred.

In the rivalry between the three services for funds and favor from Congress, the ability of the Air Force to startle and surprise is the subject of bitter recrimination from both the Navy and the Army. That rivalry rarely has been more acute than it is today, 19 months after the services were theoretically unified by law.

This is the real significance behind the drafting of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to serve as a kind of umpire over the disputes and differences that separate the three branches of our national defense. The hope is that General Eisenhower will establish the pattern of an impartial chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Only on the urgent plea of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal did General Eisenhower finally consent to come to Washington on this assignment. He had begun to establish himself as the practical, working head of Columbia University and gradually he was freeing himself of the constant demand for public speeches and appearances.

But the urgency of the task outweighed any personal desires. The hope is that General Eisenhower can make the difficult and often unpleasant decisions that have long been postponed.

BECAUSE vital decisions have been postponed, increasing uncertainty and uneasiness have grown up within the services. The effect of delay and of ever more acute competition for congressional and public favor has been hardest on the Department of the Army.

A foot soldier slogs through the mud; he doesn't flash across the sky in a guided missile aimed at the moon. That conscientious soldier, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff of the Army, had come to feel himself pretty much boxed in by the spectacular competition. According to his friends, he had begun seriously to wonder whether he could continue to serve effectively as Chief of Staff.

In a speech delivered in Boston on February 4 General Bradley spoke his mind with exceptional frankness. As has been previously reported in this column, what he said then was what he often has said with the utmost earnestness in Joint Chiefs of Staff sessions:

"Because too many Americans are searching for an easy and popular way to armed security through top-heavy trust in air power at the sacrifice of our remaining arms—we are in danger of reckoning our safety on fantasy rather than fact. (Good gosh, did you see that Flying Wing? It nearly clipped the dome off the Capitol!)

"I DO NOT deprecate the vast capabilities of air power as a priority weapon for attack against any aggressor state. Nor do I deny that the threat of instant retaliation through an air offensive is our greatest deterrent to war today.

"But I must part company with those enthusiasts who ascribe to air power limitless capabilities in winning an instant decision. Air power, like every other weapon, has gaping limitations for war as we shall know it for many years to come. However crippling as air attack can be, I am convinced beyond any reasonable doubt that should this Nation be forced into still another conflict, we shall once more be forced to gain the inevitable victory over our dead bodies—those of our soldiers on the ground."

To show off its newest surprises the Air Force recently put on a big show at Andrews Field, near here. President Truman and influential members of the Senate and House were honored guests.

Senator Mallard Tydings chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, gave a remarkable demonstration of the dizzying influence of such potent propaganda. Getting his planes mixed up, Senator Tydings, in an interview, made claims for the B-36 bomber which apply to a new bomber scarcely off the drawing board.

Continuing research and development in the air are essential to national security. But it is also essential to realize that promise is not performance and to confuse fantasy and fact is extremely dangerous. To equip every Congressman with a jet-propelled broomstick and a jet-propelled imagination is hardly the way to get balanced rearmament.

House Committee Is Urged To Put Strings on ERP Aid

By the United Press

Merwin K. Hart urged Congress yesterday to tie strings to the spending of Marshall Plan money.

He said all countries which get such economic assistance from the United States should be bound to agree to go no further in nationalizing their industries, and to waive all further claims to German industrial plants.

Hart, president of the National Economic Council, a private organization representing some business and agricultural interests, testified to the House Foreign Affairs Committee. It is considering a $5,580,000,000 authorization for the second instalment of the European Recovery Program.

Farmer Representative Heard

The committee also heard from John C. Lynn, a spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation, who said the aid program has "saved several countries from economic collapse." Lynn explained that farmers have a great interest in Europe's recovery because that continent normally takes a large share of American farm exports.

Hart expressed the belief that "left-wingers" in the Government are driving the United States to socialism by such measures as the Marshall Plan. He said it would be a "fatal mistake" if Congress permitted any ERP funds to be used to "subsidize socialism" through such movements as the proposed nationalization of the British iron and steel industry.

Noting that he had urged such a restriction last year, Hart said Congress rejected it on the theory that the United States should not interfere in the internal affairs of any nation.

Calls Attitude Insincere

"That attitude is obviously insincere," he said, "when one considers that the admitted reason for refusing to include Spain in the Marshall Plan is that the Administration does not like the present form of government in Spain.

In other words, it was all right for the Administration to interfere as it has been doing for many years in the government of Spain, but it is not all right for us to attach the slightest condition to our loan to Britain and other Marshall plan countries."

Hart also suggested that before authorizing any additional aid Congress make a thorough study of the cost of the proposed North Atlantic defense alliance.

"Our resources are not unlimited," he said.

Lynn, of the Farm Bureau, had several suggestions for changes in the present aid program. He recommended that Congress eliminate the present requirement that 25 per cent of the wheat furnished under the program be in the form of flour. He also asked that technical assistance be given to European agriculture, and that agricultural programs be sponsored for European youth.

Mansfield Convinced Irish Vote Was Rigged

By The Associated Press

A Congressman agreed with two Irish-Americans yesterday that the February 10 election in Northern Ireland was "rigged."

Representative Mansfield (D., Mont.) said it was rigged because "a lot of Irishmen eligible to register were not allowed to do so."

Charles T. Rice of New York and Thomas K. Buckley of Boston told the House Foreign Affairs Committee the election was dishonest and that the government in Northern Ireland is undemocratic.

They represented the American League for an Undivided Ireland. They argued that Britain is using American foreign aid funds to help maintain a "police state" in the six Northern Ireland counties.

Asks Aid Bill Amendment

The league asked for an amendment to the $5,580,000,000 foreign aid bill the committee is considering that would deny funds to Britain as long as a dollar is used in that way. The league has made the same stand before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Rice said an election in Northern Ireland February 10 was "bogus and dishonest." In four of the six counties, he said, there was a majority in favor of union with the Irish Republic.

No Yes or No Referendum

But Representative Kee (D., W. Va.) brought out there was no yes or no referendum on that issue.

Buckley said the Northern Ireland government is "founded on a false pretense." He said "tyranny is forced on the people," and he doubts Congress or the taxpayers intended that American money should be used to support it.

Rice and Buckley both noted that Ireland has said she will not join the North Atlantic defense pact as long as the country is divided.

Matter Of Fact

Krupp-De Wendel Axis

BERLIN.—For two years American policy-making in Germany has been distracted and enfeebled by an inner conflict. Common humanity and the menace of Soviet aggression have both demanded that western Germany should be rebuilt and restored to political independence. But our French allies, for natural historical reasons, have struggled to keep Germany in a state of economic and political peonage.

No doubt it has been necessary to make substantial concessions to French sensibilities. But it is time to realize that this road, if followed too far, may lead to a sort of Krupp-de Wendel axis. No worse outcome could be imagined; yet the danger is real enough.

To be specific, not the least extraordinary spectacle of the Berlin municipal elections was the campaign of Dr. Karl Adenauer, leader of the Right wing of the Christian Democratic Party. Adenauer is the personal representative of the owners and managers of big industry in the Ruhr. And in the moment of Berlin's greatest peril, he came to the beleaguered city to speak on a single seemingly irrelevant theme—the need for a Franco-German understanding.

Another episode that fits into the pattern was the visit to Paris of Hermann Reusch, head of one of the great Ruhr combines, the Gutehoffnungshuett. Reusch, who was warmly received in the highest French circles, had a deal to offer. The owners of Ruhr industry (now temporarily expropriated) would give their French opposite numbers of the Comite des Ferges a 30 per cent stock interest in the Ruhr. Ruhr industry would then be reestablished with no nonsense about socialization. And the new Franco-German joint ownership of the Ruhr would be accepted as a substitute for the "internationalization" the French talk so much about.

ADENAUER and Reusch are by no means alone. Indeed a majority of the Right wing leaders of the Christian Democrats, together with the chieftains of the other reactionary German parties, now maintain intimate relations with French officials and politicians. They represent the old German class, which can only climb back into the saddle with external help. Thus they alone are willing to accept the French program for Germany, in order to restore themselves to power.

The wise French Foreign Minister, Robert Schuman, does not appear to have countenanced these ambitions of the German extreme Right. But the practical fact is that Schuman is not in control of French policy toward Germany on the operating level. The French military governor here, General Koenig, is an out-and-out Gaullist, which means an envenomed opponent of the government he is supposed to represent.

Gaullist influence is also powerful among other French officials involved in German affairs. And General de Gaulle is known to have many contacts and to carry on a continuous correspondence with Germans of the Adenauer stripe. General de Gaulle and his sympathizers forget that these Germans represent the very worst in the old Germany, and all too humanly regard them as the hope of the future because they are compliant.

With these facts in mind, one can understand the violence of French opposition to socialization of the Ruhr. What is less easily grasped, however, is the underlying political situation.

IN BRIEF, if the French are too long permitted to obstruct the rebuilding of a healthy Germany, there can be only one result. All Germans will assume that their only hope is to woo the French. Dr. Adenauer and his colleagues will then be able to take charge in Germany, as the men who can best wring aid from Paris. The sequel will be the triumph in Germany of the class symbolized by the Krupps, and a tremendous simultaneous reinforcement in France of the class symbolized by the De Wendels, Schneiders and Creusots.

There are many reasons to believe that this was precisely the solution—exactly the victory of the "free enterprise system"—that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had in mind. Indeed his advisers openly advocated the French solution for Germany, seemed inclined to pull down the French Center government, and did not conceal their bitter opposition to anything savoring of German socialism.

But here, as in Italy, the effects of the American election ought now to be felt. A good way to begin would be to remove from positions of influence in the Ruhr the kind of American who instinctively approves of a Krupp-de Wendel axis. And a good way to that end would be to cut the ground out from under Dr. Adenauer by giving decisive American support to the forces of social progress in Germany.

This does not resolve the conflict between the urgent need to restore this shattered land to a measure of health and decency and the automatic French effort to keep Germany weak and unhealthy. For the present, the conflict can only be handled by firmly holding concessions to the French within the bounds of reason.

In the long run, however, something bolder and more fundamental must be attempted. The United States must take the lead in constructing a security system powerful enough to soothe French fears of German as well as Soviet aggression. Meanwhile the French, whose more hysterical leaders charge the Americans and British with seeking to rearm Germany, might do well to remember that the Russians are actually doing so already.

State Officials Split Sharply Over Vast Aid-to-Needy Plan

By The Associated Press

State officials split sharply yesterday over President Truman's plan to aid the Nation's needy with a vast new "home relief" program.

Members of Congress also were divided on the Administration's proposal to expand the Social Security system by adding 20 million workers to the old age insurance rolls and increasing the benefits through more payroll deductions.

An Associated Press poll of governors and welfare directors showed the major "home relief" dispute centered around the sliding scale of Federal contributions which the local governments would be called on to match proportionately.

Under the proposal, the largest Federal grants would go to those States having the lowest per capita income. The maximum payment toward which the Federal government would contribute would be $100 per month for husband and wife, and $20 for each additional family member needing aid. Participating States would put up from 40 to 75 per cent of the cost, depending on their per capita wealth.

There was no estimate of how much the "home relief" program would cost.

The other phases of the projected social security expansion are expected to boost the current $1,800,000,000 in payroll taxes for old age and survivors insurance to about six billion.

To pay for that, the administration has proposed doubling the payroll tax to 2 per cent next January 1. The self-employed who would be added to the rolls under the expansion would pay a 2¼ per cent levy.

House Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) conceded that Congress may not bring in all the persons Mr. Truman wants covered in the new program. But he told a reporter "there is no question but the major part of the program the President recommended will be adopted."

But Representative Taber (R., N. Y.) said "I'm not in favor of taxing the people generally to pay any more gratuities to anybody unless it is a direct obligation of the Government."

To this, Representative Woodruff (R., Mich.) added: "These do-gooders who want to take on the troubles of the whole world are not only determined to do that but they are apparently determined to put everybody in the United States under obligation to them, regardless of costs."

Woodruff is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which will open hearings Monday on the Social Security expansion plan.

The Nation-wide poll of State officials also showed a divergence of views. Here are typical reactions of some of those available for comment on the holiday.

Alabama—Gov. Jim Folsom said he is "100 per cent" for the Truman plan and that he will ask the Legislature when it meets in May to put up the State's share "whatever it costs."

Arizona—Gov. Dan E. Garvey reported he is "heartily in favor of extension of social security benefits." But he said he wants to study the "home relief" plan "to see how it applies to Arizona."

California—Social Welfare Director Myrtle Williams said she favors any "good legislation to help the aged, blind or needy," but that it is up to the Legislature to decide whether the State could afford such a program.

Florida—Gov. Fuller Warren—"It's very desirable, but I don't believe the State can afford it."

Idaho—Bill Child, director of public assistance, said the idea is "essential" and would "eliminate the gross discrimination in benefits to those eligible for old age and survivors insurance and others needing relief."

Kansas—Frank Long, social welfare director, said the proposal would be welcome since the State could save $1,716,000 a year on its own "general assistance" program costing $3,432,000 annually.

Louisiana—Gov. Earl K. Long said "I'm for it. We are ready and able to put up our share of matching funds for this program."

Maine—Gov. Frederick G. Payne commented: "This phase of the proposed Truman program has a definite trend toward socialism." He said such matters should be left to the States and municipalities.

Michigan—C. J. Maxey, State welfare director, said: "The idea seems like a good one—we're always glad to get Federal funds. The State of Michigan would be willing and able to put up its share for the cost of the program since, at first glance, it looks as if the State's share would be less."

Cabinet Pay Boosts Favored

as $2500 by its present terms; other increases would run $5000, $7500, $10,000 up to $12,500, with varying amounts in between.

Miller was reported to have the backing of Representatives James H. Morrison (D., La.) and A. S. Herling jr. (D., Fla.) in urging approval for the pay plan in his bill.

Chairman Murray said he was in favor of practically all the provisions of the bill except for the pay boosts proposed for some assistant secretaries, many of whom would get pay increases around the $7000 mark.

Urging a sharp cutback in the scale of proposed increases, Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) said after the meeting: "I just think it's a poor time to be adding large increases to Government expenses. I'd be willing to give most of the officials a $2500 increase, and some of them more. I favor the $25,000 for Cabinet officers and $20,000 for undersecretaries, but I think the others should be considered individually and the pay fixed for each one."

Siding with Davis, Representative John Bell Williams (D., Miss.) said he favored "reasonable increases" but "I'm not in favor of giving the bureaucrats a free ride at the expense of the taxpayers."

The tentative decision to fix salaries of undersecretaries at $20,000 a year was a change from the original bill which proposed a salary of $22,500. Since the salaries of a number of undersecretaries is now $10,000 or $10,330, one member said the decision for a $20,000 salary was aimed at giving these officials a pay increase greater than the amount of their present salaries.

Cabinet officers now get $15,000 a year, the Undersecretary of State gets $12,000 and other undersecretaries get $10,000 or $10,330.

McGrath Proposes Adding 48 Senators

Topeka, Kans., Feb. 22 (AP).—Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) said tonight he will propose he will propose to Congress that three Senators instead of two be elected from each of the States.

The chairman of the Democratic National Committee said he will present this "challenging" proposal to the Nation's lawmakers this session as a means by which the Federal Government "may more efficiently meet its growing responsibilities."

In a speech prepared for a Washington Day meeting of Kansas Democrats, McGrath said increasing the membership of the United States Senate by one-third would accomplish these ends:

Speed up the legislative process.

Make political organizations more alert.

Enable each State to be recorded on important issues.

The resolution to amend the Constitution and provide for the three Senators would have to be passed by Congress and adopted by the Legislatures of three fourths of the States to become law.

McGrath said the Senate frequently does not place a State on record on important issues. Quite often, he said, the two Senators from a State take opposite views on major legislation.

A senatorial election every two years, he said, would create a "healthy situation" and make political organizations more alert to the Nation's wishes.

Three-Senator Plan Cooly Received Here

By The Associated Press

Senator McGrath's chances of getting his three-Senators-for-every-State plan through Congress looked poor last night.

Opposition was expressed by Senators from each party.

Some Congress members pointed out that under the McGrath plan some of the least populous states would have three times as many Senators as they have House members. Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming have only one representative apiece now. Several other States have only two.

House Prices Not Expected To Increase

By Conrad P. Harness
Post Reporter

Chicago, Feb. 22.—No further rise in housing prices in the Washington area was foreseen here today by several Washington builders attending the annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders.

Of seven builders queried, all predicted a leveling off of new homes this year. No drop in home costs was forecast, however, because they said some building materials and services are still rising in price. These cost increases, builders said, have been offset by a better flow of materials and higher productivity by labor.

Biggest hurdle facing local builders is financing construction so the buyer can purchase the home with a low down payment and low monthly carrying charges.

Clarence W. Gosnell, builder of large home projects in Virginia and the District of Columbia, said some lending institutions were now demanding a 1 per cent premium from builders in return for mortgage financing. This premium must be passed along to the buyer. Harry Boswell, jr., an official of Boswell-Miller Construction Co., in Prince Georges County, Md., said builders could obtain scarce GI financing at 4 per cent provided they paid a 2 per cent premium to the lending institution. This added expense is then passed on to the buyer, although the low interest rate would mean a large saving to the buyer over a period of a long-term mortgage.

Boswell said most builders were not stockpiling materials for a heavy spring building program because they were uncertain as to demand for housing and ability to finance.

Of six builders questioned on their expected 1949 housing output, all but one said his firm would keep up to 1948 volume.

Robert Tiffey said his firm would build between 40 and 50 homes, the same as in 1948. Allison N. Miller, of W. C. and A. N. Miller Development Corp., builders of Sumner, Wesley Heights and Spring Valley, reported his firm would complete 40 to 50 homes this year, or about the same as 1948.

S. Ernon Briggs, Bethesda builder, said he expected to erect 50 homes, the same as in 1948.

William S. Banks, president of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, said his firm, Banks and Lee, is planning immediate erection of apartments to rent under rentals asked by owners of post-war apartments.

He said his rental goal was $60 for a one-bedroom apartment, $70 for two bedrooms. If his first project is a success, he added, his firm will build over 1000 units in Maryland and Virginia. Banks declared he hoped to achieve the lower rental rate by a slight reduction in room size and economy in design.

Boswell reported his firm was also planning similar lower rental apartments in Maryland. The District of Columbia FHA office has announced it will no longer approve new apartment projects for insured mortgage financing, unless rents are around $70 or under.

All builders hit a Government policy which they said exhorted builders to erect more homes on the one hand, while on the other hand cautioning bankers to cut down the volume and amount of money placed in home mortgages.

Housing Bill Aims at Aiding Middle Group

A bill aimed at giving middle-income families a chance to build or rent low-cost housing was introduced yesterday by Representatives Douglas (D., Calif.) and Buchanan (D., Pa.).

Buchanan, a member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, said the measure would make possible the building of homes for sale or rental to private individuals or groups at monthly charges as low as $50.

Mrs. Douglas said the principles of the bill have been indorsed by veterans and labor organizations "and for the first time by leaders of the real estate industry."

Buchanan said public housing program now care for the 10 per cent of the population at the bottom of the economic ladder, and Federal Housing Administration operations help those who want the finer type of house.

The Douglas-Buchanan measure, he said, is designed to help especially those who now are faced with eviction from public housing projects because their incomes have risen to a point to make them ineligible.

The bill would make it possible for a group of such evictees to acquire financing for the building of a housing unit of their own.

The Government would guarantee the mortgages up to 90 per cent and the mortgages could run up to a maximum of 60 years.

Buchanan estimated that this new measure would "help solve the housing needs of 90 per cent of World War II veterans who today cannot find a home."

Bank in Illinois, Held Up 3 Times, To Give Up Ghost

Virgil, Ill., Feb. 22 (AP).—The Virgil State Bank, pillaged by holdup men three times in the past four months, has decided to call it quits.

Directors today called a stockholders' meeting for March 24 to vote on proposed liquidation because of the "recent succession of robberies and the evident necessity of continued protection outlays."

Protection outlays have included a burglar alarm system and an armed guard who holds the front door at all times.

The bank was robbed of $4090 on Octotber 20, $2000 November 13 and $1917 January 14.

"The bank is solvent," the directors statement said.

Virgil, about 48 miles west of Chicago, has a population of less than 500.

dency he made him his military aide.

Paying his respects to the pollsters, Mr. Truman said he recently finished reading a book about them. He quoted the author as saying that if he ever "found himself in agreement with the Chicago Tribune and some columnists or broadcasters" the author would think something was wrong with him.

The President delivered his talk in his usual rapid-fire pace in the dining room where several hundred reserve officers and their guests had gathered to honor Vaughan as the "Minute Man of 1949" for his contributions to national defense.

Although the President did not mention Pearson by name, the commentator later made this observation on the President's talk:

"If Mr. Truman is trying to discourage the right of fair comment, then he, too, has another think coming. The men he has on his staff are his business—even though the taxpayers have to foot the bill.

"But when his staff members accept medals from a military dictator whose principles this Government has denounced, then it's the public's business and should be Truman's."

The President, in his talk, also praised Rear Admiral Robert Dennison, his naval aide; Brig. Gen. Robert Landry, his air aide, and his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham.

He also had words of praise for other officers who served under him as President, including Gens. George C. Marshall, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Omar Bradley.

He told of the time he went to see General Marshall just before the last war, asking that he be given actvie duty. When he told Marshall he was 56 years old, he said Marshall informed him:

"'You're too damn old—you'd better go back to work in the Senate.'"

He said years later, Marshall told a presidential secretary he would "say the same thing today, only I'd be more diplomatic about it."

Earlier Maj. Gen. Carl R. Gray, Veterans administrator, and others paid tribute to Vaughan.

The toastmaster, Col. Clarence Barnes, president of the Reserve Officers Association, spoke of some of the "unkind things" that have been said about Vaughan.

Brig. Gen. Arthur E. Evans, executive director of the association, said Vaughan "has been the target of more than his fair share of indignities."

Maj. Gen. Edward F. Whitsell, adjutant general of the Army, referred to the importance of Vaughan's work as military aide, asserting his difficult job is "not all parades and balls, Drew Pearsons and decorations."

Martin Urges Business Aids To Bar Slump

Warning of "a possible business recession," Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts last night said the Government should start encouraging business and stop demanding more taxes.

In a speech at a Washington Birthday celebration arranged by the Fairfax County Republican Committee in Fairfax, Va., the House Republican leader said the United States "simply cannot afford the luxury of a depression."

"Today, when unemployment is spreading in industry, the planners in Washington are still tilting their lances at the windmills of inflation," he said. "The economic weather has changed abruptly, however, during the past three months. We have today almost three million unemployed in this Nation. Prices are falling in many lines.

"Instead of pressing for more business controls, for Government owned steel plants, for more taxes, more spending and more bureaus, the Administration should be devoting itself to constructive measures to encourage business, expand private investment, and to hasten new business ventures which will provide jobs."

During the two years of the Eightieth Congress, when Republicans were in control on Capitol Hill, Martin said, "this country enjoyed the highest level of prosperity and business activity, and the highest level of employment, ever experienced in our peacetime history . . .

"Today, in millions of American homes, as the final tax returns for 1948 are being prepared, there is a wider appreciation of the work of the Eightieth Congress in its tax reduction program. Everyone, as he makes out his tax return and realizes the tax cut given by the Eightieth Congress, must conclude it was a pretty good Congress."

If the present Administration "has its way with its fabulous new plans for Government spending," Martin predicted, "the tax reduction bill passed by the Republican Eightieth Congress will go down in history as the last tax cut ever given the American people in the twentieth century."

Martin renewed his demand for reductions in excise taxes to at least their prewar levels and for reduced Government spending and "less interference" with business.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

AFTER 12 YEARS amid the leaky-roof arenas, the wrestlers trooped back into Madison Square Garden last night with top billing. The great delivery from exile was accomplished by sweet-scented, ill-tempered Gorgeous George whose box office lure finally crumpled the barriers that had kept the grunt and grimace trade out of the Garden ring.

The Gorgeous One wrestled unspectacularly for years under the prosaic name of George Wagner and was just another one of the workaday grunters until he discovered show business. He acquired a blond coiffure, a supply of talc, perfumery sprays, some regal robes, and a valet, and set himself up as a male prima donna of the mat.

POVICH

It is suspected that the guy can't wrestle a bit, but there he was getting his name in the papers and drawing crowds in the hinterlands and commanding appearance money the like of which promoters hadn't guaranteed in years. Television brought the Gorgeous One's pure corn into the home, and it apparently took root because the wrestling business was never so good.

The Garden, restrained by New York laws, must bill the wrestlers as exhibitionists. Their offerings can't be advertised as contests or matches, but that is of no moment.

IT IS FITTING enough that Gorgeous George, the man with the built-in disinfectant, was the featured exhibitionist in wrestling's return to the Garden. Television was always the nice way to watch a wrestling match. The coaxial cable can't transmit smell, at least not as yet. And with the Gorgeous One providing airwick, even last night's Garden fans were delivered from pure b. o.

Ever since the wrestling business discovered it was starving with its unexciting shooting matches and turned to showmanship, it never has made much difference whether the wrestlers could wrestle. The Act was the thing, and Gorgeous George has come up with a new one. I am presuming, of course, that he defeated Ernie Dusek at the Garden last night. It wouldn't quite do for Dusek to knock off the industry's big drawing card, despite the fact that Dusek could roll George on his back at the slightest whim to do so.

A few years ago one branch of the wrestling industry attempted to revive flagging interest in its shows by creating Bronko Nagurski as a "champion." Nagurski retained his "title" one night in Griffith Stadium in a match with Chief Whitefeather, the 45-year-old Indian trouper, who found himself in a tremendous struggle with himself to keep from pinning Nagurski to the mat.

THE GARDEN DIDN'T televise last night's show, but they'll get around to that as soon as it is discovered that video won't affect the gates. In other communities television has made wrestling fans, although a squawk has been heard that the kids are getting too steady a television diet showing the villain always the winner over the clean, upstanding hero type.

Hero types are a drug on the wrestling market, it seems, and the meaner, the fouler, the rassler the bigger the drawing card the promoters have. They can't afford to get their choice villains knocked off too often, lest they run into a lack of outstanding villains.

But there is some alarm among parents at the consistency with which villainy triumphs over virtue on video. They're threatening to shoo the kids off to bed lest wrestling on television wreck the character-building program in the home where the kids are taught you can't win with foul tactics and that in the end, virtue must triumph. That's not what they see in wrestling.

THE BUSINESS is a far shout from the days of the late Joe Turner, who won the world middleweight title in the days of shooting matches and presumed that he was supposed to win every time he crawled through the ropes. But he once related he did find a bit of villainy somewhat expedient in a match at Norfolk, Va.

"Down there, the Greek people of the community, great wrestling fans, were upset by a heavyweight who called himself The Terrible Turk," recited Turner. "The fellow was a Greek, but he disavowed it. He was winning a lot of matches in Norfolk, and they asked me to go down there and knock him off. Offered me $500, a lot of money in those days.

"I thought it was going to be a soft touch. Then I discovered this fellow could really wrestle. He was giving me a hard time of it, and if I didn't pin him, I was wrestling for nothing. We were in there for almost an hour, and I was beginning to wonder. But I moved him to the edge of the ring, and rolled both of us off it. We hit the ground and rolled underneath the ring, out of sight. That was my chance. When I got through with that Terrible Turk's chin, and they lifted us both back in there, I had a nice, groggy Terrible Turk to flatten."

Colonials Expected to Beat Hoyas At Armory

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Despite its 53-49 loss earlier, George Washington will be favored over Georgetown when the skidding Hoyas make their last home appearance of the season in the twenty-eighth renewal of the intense intracity basketball rivalry tonight at the Armory.

George Garber's Colonials currently are playing their best ball of the season and riding the crest of a five-game winning streak, their longest of the season.

Georgetown has dropped eight of its last 10 games and now has an 8-11 mark for the year. But the Hoyas can clinch the area's Big Three championship with a win tonight. And the Georgetown jinx over GW is a very real factor any time the schools meet in any sport.

But There's That Old Jinx

Last fall's football victory was the first scored by GW in the 58-year series. In basketball, the Colonials have found triumphs almost as scarce. Georgetown holds a 23-4 bulge.

GW seemed plagued by that ancient jinx in its first Armory meeting with the Hoyas this season. The Colonials, catching fire early, sprinted to leads of 13-1 and 18-4 and held a 32-24 halftime lead.

But GW started its inevitable tightening up and Georgetown passed them after 10 minutes of the second half and clearly held command in the exciting closing minutes, winning by 53-49.

The Colonials vow it won't happen tonight. Since losing a close game to Navy, they've overcome South Carolina, Duke, North Carolina, Quantico Marines and Temple.

Impressive at Temple

Saturday's win over Temple, 56-47, was an impressive one. It was the first Convention Hall outing the Philadelphians lost in five appearances. On the same bill, La Salle trimmed Georgetown, 62-45. And Temple holds a 54-36 victory over La Salle.

Len Small and Bill Cantwell were the big boys for GW in the Temple game but the entire team performed creditably.

GW supporters are heartened by the team's showing in two other return games this season. N. C. State first walloped the Colonials 66-37 then had to hang on to win 60-59. Virginia beat GW, 67-53, at Charlottesville but was defeated, 62-50, here later.

In the first GW-Georgetown meeting, Vin Leddy scored eight straight points in the second half and was instrumental in leading the Hoya comeback.

Only change in the playing casts will be the absence of Georgetown's John Kelly who recently quit and enrolled at Iona College in New York. Kelly was good against GW, playing a fine floor game and collecting seven points.

Making their last Washington appearances for Georgetown tonight will be Capt. Ray Corley and Tommy O'Keefe, set shot artists, and Leddy.

In other games tonight, American U. travels to Penn States in an attempt to score its second straight win over the Nittany Lions and Catholic U. meets Washington College at Chestertown, Md.

Pantos Gets 24 Points As High Man In Playoffs

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Wilson's Tigers beat out Coolidge, 32-26, and Central's Vikings humbled Eastern, 40-29, last night as the Interhigh basketball playoffs began before 3,536 fans at the Armory.

The Tigers and Defending Champion Vikings will clash in the finals Saturday afternoon at the Armory.

In the first game last night, the Tigers had too many reserves for the plucky Colts, and wore down their rivals in a torrid second half.

In the second game, the Vikings had too much Jimmy Pantos. The Ramblers had every one of their regulars guard the Central ace at various stages, but he managed to break away for 24 points anyway.

Barrett Has Hot Hand

Wilson quickly put Coolidge in the hole by racking up the first 10 points of the evening. The Colts, unable to break inside the Tigers' man-for-man defense, and leary of shooting from outside, didn't score their first point until Ken Luxenberg let go with a set shot after seven minutes.

Kenny's score seemed to spark the Colts, who cut their deficit to 17-11 three minutes before intermission. Coolidge Coach Julian Colangelo then inserted Jimmy Barret, a curly haired reserve, who'd lost his regular position to Luxenberg earlier in the season.

Barrett had a hot hand, rifled in three circus shots, and Coolidge walked off at the half, trailing by only 20-18.

In the first moments of the second half, Barrett sent in a 15-footer from the corner to tie it up. But the Tigers opened up a 23-21 lead after two minutes of the third period on two foul shots by Sherry Jones.

Second Platoon Goes In

At that point, Wilson Coach Hank Bristor called his trusty second platoon into the game. For the next 8 minutes, it played the Colts first team to a standstill.

Although Coolidge managed to go ahead, 24-23, at one point, the Wilson first-stringers found a 2-point lead when they came back in with 6 minutes left.

The score was 26-24, Wilson, when Coolidge's Don Eslin tied it on a set shot. However, Jim Young and Don Scott, a pair of strong 6-footers, stationed themselves under the back boards, and kept Wilson in control of the ball the rest of the way.

Leo Speros put Wilson ahead on a foul shot, and in the waning minutes, Jones added a field goal and three free throws to ice the game.

Speros Scores 10 Points

Speros had 10 points to pace the Wilson club, which finished first in the regular season's play. But he had timely assists from Young, who set up the plays from the pivot slot, and Bucky Runnels, who sparked Wilson's second platoon.

Central went ahead 5-0 in the first two minutes of the second game on tap-ins by Jack Stringer and Franny Gleason, and a foul shot by Bill Dunker. After that, the driving, feinting Pantos was in full command, and Eastern never caught up.

Jimmy had 5 points in the first quarter as Central took a 12-7 lead. He scored all six Viking points in the second quarter, as Central held an 18-15 halftime lead.

He had seven of Central's 9 points in the third quarter, as Eastern trailed, 27-19. He added

Third Army Sluggers Win 3 More Bouts

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Two Washington boxers were defeated but the Third Army, this time without tanks, plowed ahead last night as the Army's world-wide boxing tournament went through its second round before approximately 5800 fans at the Fort Myer Riding Hall.

In the bantamweight class, Pvt. Joe Thompson, of 368 H st. sw., put up a game battle against the Third Army's Bernie Donell but lost by a split decision.

Featherweight Ed Brazerol, lanky Pfc from 1406 Good Hope rd. se., had even less success in his match with the Third Army's Jose Galaz. Brazerol suffered a cut mouth in the first round and by the third was in such wobbly shape that Referee Eddie LaFond had to stop it. The end came at 1:50 of the third.

Third Army sluggers came off with victories in all three of their matches, the first three on the program. That gave them a record of seven straight triumphs and a wide lead for the team trophy.

The only knock downs in the early bouts came in the night's first scrap as Malcolm Davis, a veteran of 16 years of flyweight competition, from the Third Army took a unanimous verdict over the Fifth Army's Walton Marriott.

Davis was down twice for no count in the third round. In the second, Marriott, taking a stiff left in the face, sat out a nine count.

Flyweight Malcolm Davis, Third Army veteran who took a unanimous decision over Walton Marriott in the first bout of the night, achieved the victory despite a broken left hand.

Post's Benefit Pin Tourney Swings Into Its Final Week

Seven more days and nights of bowling competition remain in the third annual Washington Post Tournament. The event, staged in cooperation with the Metropolitan Washington Duckpin Operators Association for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, officially ends next Tuesday, March 1. By that time Cochairman Hap Newman of Ice Palace and Julie Singer of Greenway hope to have between 10,000 and 15,000 entries—a new record.

The Post tournament offers the lowest entry fee in local history—or, for that matter, in the entire country. It's a mere 50 cents, with one half going to the Police Boys' Club and nearby county boys' recreational activities and the other half to the prize fund. Scratch for men is 128 and for women 118. Full handicaps prevail at all 27 alleys.

Columbia Bowling Alleys set a new high for one night last night by securing 119 entries to skyrocket its field of participants. The Merchants League gave a nice boost with 61 entries, through the efforts of Manager Doc Gartrell and President Mark Waldron. Alma Wellington, with 116-156-108—382-63—445 is tops for the Columbia bowlers in The Post event. She bowls with the Bureau of Investigation League. W. R. Hicklin, of the Men's Methodist League at Columbia, did himself proud with 387-75—462.

Penn Recreation hit its peak for a single night as 149 entered. Biggest boost came from the Premier Cab League there, which went in 98 per cent. Jack Royer, loop president, announced. Penn's latest top scores include a 361-96—457 by Marvin Goldberg of the Jewish War Veterans League, and a 411-45—456 by Stu Burger.

Brookland, through Monday, had 458 entries, and Manager Karl Gochenour has set a goal of 1000 before it all ends next Tuesday. Harold Lewis' 389-54—443 in the Brookland Commercial; Margaret O'Brien's 330-48—378 and Ruth Wilcoxin, 296-81—377 in the Ladies Sodality League were the best of the latest scores from Brook[illegible]

Lions Whipped By Caps, 10-2

The Western Division leading Indianapolis Capitals completely outclassed the Washington Lions last night in an American Hockey League match at Uline before 775 spectators, 10-2.

It was Washington's twenty-second defeat in its last 23 starts, and found the Caps pouring in three goals during the first period, four in the second and three more in the final.

Terry Sawchuck, Indianapolis' rookie goalie, was eyeing a shutout until 8:08 of the final stanza when George Robertson cashed a neat shot from the left side of the net on set-ups from Pat Wilson and Paul Mundrick.

Harry Frost was assisted by Wilson and Phil Vitale in scoring the Lions' final goal at 12:13.

Garner Set Down For Derby Riding

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 22 (AP).—Jockey Willie Garner was suspended today for the rest of the Santa Anita meeting for his ride on Olympia in the $100,000 derby.

The stewards said Garner interfered with the rest of the field by cutting his mount across from the No. 13 post position to the rail in Saturday's big race. Olympia was odds on favorite.

Mikan Has 48 As Lakers Win

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Big George Mikan set a Basketball Association of America scoring record for Madison Square Garden with 48 points today to lead the Minneapolis Lakers to a 101-74 victory over the New York Knickerbockers.

The Lakers' total of 101 also set a new all-time team scoring mark for the Garden among both collegians and pros. The previous high was 97 set by Rochester of the BAA and Bowling Green College, both earlier in the season.

Want Him for New Indianapolis Team

National League Offers Ed MacAuley Of St. Louis 'Biggest Salary' in Pro Game

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 22 (AP).—Ed MacAuley, St. Louis University star, was told today the National Basketball League is prepared to pay him the highest salary in professional basketball—if necessary—to sign him to a contract next season.

Doxie Moore, commissioner of the pro loop, came here to talk with the 6-foot 8-inch All-America center who will graduate this spring.

Moorse said he also sounded out Eddie Hickey, St. Louis University basketball coach, on whether he is interested in a National League coaching job. Hickey told him, Moore, said, that "he is very happy in St. Louis and has a contract here, but that as you get older, that money looks awfully good."

Moore said MacAuley promised not to sign a pro contract without first contacting the National League.

"There are several clubs in our league that are willing to go all out to get MacAuley," Moore said. "We want him in the National League. If there is competition and bidding starts, we're prepared to pay him the highest salary in professional basketball."

Moore said the NBL hopes to have a club at Indianapolis next year and added that MacAuley would provide a good starter for a new club.

The commissioner said his loop is not interested in a common draft or "any understanding with the rival BAA. "We tried a hands-off agreement with the BAA two years ago and it didn't work," he said.

Later today C. D. P. Hamilton, president of the St. Louis B. A. A. club, announced the Bombers will make McAuley their No. 1 choice in the B. A. A. draft.

Hamilton said he hoped to sign McAuley, and added:

"However, Moore's remarks might make it more difficult to sign Ed. We purposely have refrained from talking to him because we don't want anything on the boy's mind except the job of beating the Oklahoma Aggies and the others (on St. Louis University's schedule.) We'll talk to him when the season's over.

Caps Run Into Upstart Rollers

The Caps, who finally mastered the trick of beating Baltimore, may have trouble extending a five-game winning streak over the much improved Providence Steamrollers tonight at Uline.

Although the Rollers made their move too late to climb out of the Eastern Division cellar, they've had fun sweeping their last four from those Bullets the Caps find so pesky.

And the New England upstarts took two straight from the Rochester Royals, Western Division leaders.

With only 11 games remaining and the Eastern Division championship all but clinched mathematically, the Caps are expected to substitute freely tonight and the rest of the campaign.

Leo Katkaveck, Matt Zunic, Sonny Hertzberg, Dick Schulz and Dick O'Keefe will be seen a lot from now on to take the pressure off Capt. Bob Feerick, Bones McKinney, Freddie Scolari, Kleggie Hermsen, Jack Nichols and John Norlander.

Since its last appearance, Providence has added four new men. Halbert and Mel Riebe were acquired from the Boston Celtics in a deal for George Nostrand and Buddy O'Grady and Gifford Roux were purchased from the St. Louis Bombers.

BAA Charges 'Muscling In'

Indianapolis, Feb. 21 (AP).—Maurice Podoloff, president of the Basketball Association of America, testified in Superior Court today that "someone is trying to muscle in" on the Indianapolis Jets professional hardwood franchise.

Podoloff took the stand as court action began on a suit against the local BAA club by George Glamack, former Jet player and now center for the Hammond Buccaneers of the rival National Basketball League.

Glamack is attempting to force the Indianapolis team into receivership in an effort to collect an alleged $50,000 in damages.

The 6-foot 6-inch former University of North Carolina ace charged he signed a four-year contract calling for an annual salary of $11,500. He said the contract was signed October 1, 1947, and that he was discharged by the club November 29, 1948, after he had played only a year for the Jets.

He said the club would operate better under a receivership and suggested Frank Kautsky, a former owner. The club now is owned by Paul A. Walk.

Robert H. Orbison, defense attorney, charged the club doesn't owe Glamack "one nickel."

Podoloff said "someone is trying to muscle in" on the team, "but I don't think it's Kautsky." He added:

"That, we (the BAA) would not allow."

Rochester Beats Warriors, 92-86

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 22 (AP).—The Rochester Royals protected their first place margin over Minneapolis in the Western Division of the Basketball Association of America by tripping the Philadelphia Warriors 92-86 tonight.

A sellout crowd of nearly 4300 saw the Warriors lag behind by 10 points through most of the game, then rally to deadlock the count with less than five minutes to play. The Royals retaliated by pulling away at the end.

Radio and Sports Scribes Will Clash Tonight Bergman and Haight in 'Battle of Statues'

UNLESS THE BASKETS are lowered several feet and the game is played with a tennis ball, Washington fans may witness the first 0-0 tie ever played in basketball history tonight.

Pot shots should be standard equipment because some of the largest pots in town (led by Walter Haight) will be in action when the Sportscribes tackle the Radio Guys in an alleged prelim to the Georgetown-George Washington game at National Guard Armory. Action (?) starts at 7:45 p. m.

The Tongue Twisters are slight favorites mainly because they keep in shape hurrying from AM to FM to TV, while the Typographical Errors get only light work between after-hours clubs.

Neither team has reported being approached by "fix" gamblers. To date no betting on the final outcome has been made, although a few side bets are down. A sizable sum has been wagered on Haight's floor-covering ability. A dime will be placed under each of Haight's shoes and betting is even money that he can't move off them during the first quarter.

For sheer speed, however, Haight is believed to have more than a match in the person of the opposition's Dutch Bergman, slated to become the game's most stationary guard of all time.

In fact, Bergman will be scouted by Leo Paulin, manager of the Sportsmen's and Outdoors Show. If Bergman strikes a pose with arms extended at the opening whistle and maintains it until the game's end, Paulin plans to pay him for remaining in that position as a perch in the wild bird exhibit.

If the Radio Guys can stop counting their money long enough they will have the following players on hand: Steve (NBC) Douglass, Jim (ABC, etc.) Gibbons, Bill (WOL-WOIC) Brundige, Ray (WMAL-TV) Michael, Bob (WNBW-WINX) Wolff, Dutch (NBC) Bergman, Roy (WWDC) Morgan, Dean (WMAL) Luce, Tony (W-Something) Howard.

If the Sportscribes get back from the small loan offices in time they will have: George (Star) Huber, Eddie (News) Cook, Carroll (Times-Herald) Hall, Dave (News) Slattery, Tony (Times-Herald) Neri, Larry (Times-Herald) Evans, Tony (Times-Herald) Pallozzolo, Walter (Post) Haight, Jack (Post) Walsh, Maurit (Times-Herald) Fitzgerald, Bill (Post) Ahlberg.

The game should be well covered but, to tell the truth, you could weave a basket before they could make one.

Stadium Okayed

Navy-Irish Game Stays In Baltimore

Baltimore, Feb. 22 (AP).—A lot of rumors that the Navy-Notre Dame fotball game next season will be played elsewhere than in Baltimore were laid to rest today.

Coming out of a meeting with Mayor Thomas d'Alesandro and the Baltimore park board, Capt. Howard Caldwell, Navy athletic director said:

"We are satisfied that the stadium situation is cleared up for us and the Notre Dame game definitely will be played in Baltimore on October 29."

Capt. Caldwell explained "Notre Dame's only concern earlier was whether the Baltimore stadium would be available for our game beyond doubt."

Baltimore expects to start rebuilding its stadium within the next few weeks. The Navy official was promised the seating capacity of about 60,000 will be up to maximum for the Irish game.

Mims, Edwards Renew Rivalry in Benefit Monday

The fourth renewal of a torrid local rivalry will be staged at Turner's Arena next Monday night as Garland Edwards and Holly Mims are matched in the nine-round feature.

The Metropolitan Police Boys Club will benefit by a percentage of the gate.

In four bouts the two middleweights have split exactly even. Mims evened the count at one draw and a win apiece two weeks ago when he handed Edwards his first loss in 15 outings on a close decision.

A compromise between the fighters caused the unusual 9-round distance. Mims won his most recent meeting with Edwards on a fast finish in 10 rounds and he favored that distance. Edwards, who tired badly at the end, favored only eight rounds.

12 Terps May Upset Tar Heels

Trackmen of the University of Maryland, paced by a mile relay team which has rung up four victories this year, will lead this area's assault on Southern Conference records as the annual event is held Saturday at Chapel Hill, N. C.

In all, 12 outstanding varsity trackmen will represent the Terps as they attempt to wrest the title from the host North Carolina team. Maryland will also enter a freshman relay team, as will Georgetown. Four varsity entries from Navy may complete nearby representation.

Because of the number of its candidates, and because it nosed out Carolina in last week's invitational meet at College Park, Maryland is conceded a strong chance of taking team honors. The Tar Heels, with Olympic star Bill Albans in their lineup, cannot be overlooked and strong competition also may come from Duke and Virginia Tech.

Maryland's relay outfit, whose best time was a neat 3:24.3 in the Milrose games, should have little trouble repeating last week's triumph over Tar Heels hopefuls. Composed of Paul Ostrye, Mario Salvanelli, George McGowan and Ed Matthews, it failed to win only on one occasion this season, finishing second in the Philadelphia Inquirer games.

Matthews, two-time Conference 440 champ, will also run in the Chapel Hill 660. Salvanelli is down for the 70-yard high and low hurdles in addition to the relay.

Other Terps to see action are Tyson Craemer, Herb White and Lindy Kehoe (2-mile run), Bob Palmer (1-mile run), Carl Rubach (70-yard hurdles), Bill Alexion (60-yard dash), Jim Umbarger (880-yard run), and Tom McHugh (shot-put.).

Navy's featured entry will be Bud Knapp, winner of the Maryland Invitation 880 in 2:01.3.

Gaithersburg Plays In Title Game Tonight

Gaithersburg and Poolesville High will clash tonight for the Montgomery County Class B title at Rockville. Poolesville won its way into the final with a 32-27 victory over Richard Montgomery on Monday.

In the girls' final it will be the host Richard Montgomery sextet against Poolesville.

round, he said. X-rays will determine the extent of the damage today.

By far the most action of the night came in the middleweight battle as James "Creeper" Chandler, touted as an easy winner, lost a unanimous decision to Albert Smith.

Chandler, a Fifth Army man from Chicago, started out well and appeared able to finish off his Idaho opponent at will. But he was suddenly tired in the second round and by the final session he was helplessly taking everything the bull-like Smith could offer.

The night's second TKO came in the light-heavyweight scrap, with Alex Wilson, another Fifth Army stalwart, finishing off the Sixth Army's Sylvester Stuart in 2:10 of the second round.

Stuart took a six-count with glasseyes, said he was ready to go, then collapsed into the ropes without another glove laid on him.

Finally, in the last bout, came the only real knockout. Howard Williams, a 225-pounder from San Francisco, used a million punches but needed only a straight right to the heart to stop Harrell Wilson at 1:15 of the second staza.

GW May Lose Tim Swett

Tim Swett, George Washington's football line coach, is being considered for the University of New Hampshire's head coaching job, Carl Lundholm, athletic director of the Durham, N. H., school said yesterday.

Lundholm said that Swett will be called up for an interview this weekend, and the appointment of a new coach will be announced around March 5.

Swett is only 29, and has been a line coach and scout at G. W. for a year.

The New Hampshire job has been a stepping stone for young coaches in recent years. George Sauer held the job for five seasons before moving to Kansas, thence to the Naval Academy. William (Biff) Glassford, who resigned two months ago, moved on to the Nebraska head coaching post.

In 1947, New Hampshire was undefeated in eight games, and last season, won five out of eight games.

Swett, a native of Oklahoma, was a star center and guard on the G. W. football teams in the early forties. He was athletic director at Sidwell Friends School here for three years before joining the coaching staff at G. W. under Bo Rowland.—HERB HEFT.

Bulova Keeps Swiss-Import Profit 'Secret'

By the United Press

Abraham Carnow, treasurer of the Bulova Watch Co., refused to tell the Senate Finance Committee yesterday how much his company makes by importing Swiss watch movements or how much it spends for advertising.

Under questioning by Senators Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) and John J. Williams (R., Del.), he insisted the sums were "business secrets" that "a man prefers to keep to himself."

Carnow testified in favor of a House-approved bill to extend the reciprocal trade agreements act to 1951, but without restrictions voted by the Republican steered Eightieth Congress.

Criticized by Goss

The bill also was defended by CIO Secretary-Treasuer James B. Carey, but was criticized by Albert Goss, master of the National Grange. Carey regarded it as a safeguard to the United States economy. Goss said reciprocal trade agreements are a "trade promotion" policy that has hurt some businesses.

Carey did not appear in person. His statement was read for him by CIO research director Stanley H. Ruttenberg.

Millikin asserted that the Administration has no policy to protect domestic producers.

Carnow, who also is president of the American Watch Assemblers Association, denied that increased imports of Swiss watches by his company and others had wrecked American watch makers.

Bulova, Gruen Watch Co., and others import Swiss-made movements and encase them in the United States. American watchmakers, including Hamilton, Elgin and Waltham, contend that has hurt their business.

5 Million Profits

Carnow testified that Bulova had profits of 5 million dollars last year, but he refused to say how much was made on its importing operations and how much on its Woodside, N. Y., plant where entire watches are made.

After Carnow said that Hamilton and Elgin had increased profits last year, Millikin said the witness "is very tender with his own situation, but very free to discuss the details of other people's business."

Gruen President Benjamin S. Katz testified that the marketing of Swiss-made watches actually expanded the market for domestic manufacturers.

January Deposits In Mutual Banks Set High Mark

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—The Nation's 532 mutual savings banks reported today a January gain of 115 million dollars in total deposits.

This increase, continuing the trend of the last two months of 1948, brought the aggregate to $18,515,000,000.

William L. Maude, president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, said the 586 million dollars received from depositors in regular accounts was the highest on record. But he noted also that the amount withdrawn during the month also was large, exceeded only in July, 1948.

But the 80 million dollars excess of regular deposits over withdrawals in January, Maude said, was greater than for any 1948 month except December.

Life Insurance Sales Drop 2 Pct. Under '48 Mark

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Life insurance sales last month were 2 per cent under January, 1948, the Life Insurance Agency Management Association of Hartford, Conn., reported today.

The association said new insurance sold last month totaled $1,821,000,000, as compared with $1,849,000,000 in January, 1948.

Ordinary life insurance sales of $1,129,000,000 were 15 per cent under last year. Industrial life insurance sales gained 8 per cent to 357 million dollars. Group life sales of 335 million dollars were 78 per cent above January, 1948.

Total January sales, while under last year's figures, were 2 per cent greater than in January, 1947.

Japanese Textile Survey Approved

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—A proposal to send a joint Anglo-American textile survey mission to Japan has been approved by three United States cotton industry associations.

William C. Planz, chairman of the Textile Industry Committee on Foreign Trade, today said two remaining committee members would soon present the proposal to their respective boards of directors.

The committee, formed several weeks ago, consists of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association; Cotton Textile Institute, Inc.; Association of Cotton Merchants of New York; the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and the Textile Import Association of the United States.

Planz declined to identify the three organizations already on record as favoring the mission to Japan.

Bids Asked by C.&O. On $5-Million Issue

Cleveland, Feb. 22 (AP).—Bids were invited yesterday by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway on an issue of $5,150,000 par amount of second serial equipment trust certificates of 1949.

The railway said proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase 725 70-ton all-steel hopper cars, 150 caboose cars and 10 freight locomotives, at an estimated cost of $6,507,838. The bids will be opened noon March 1.

Business Outlook

U. S. Gets More Music as RCA, Columbia Needle Each Other

By J. A. Livingston

COLUMBIA Broadcasting System and the Radio Corporation of America are doing the unusual. They're competing fiercely. They're not playing footsy-wootsy with one another as Twentieth Century corporations are supposed to—according to those economists who insist that capitalistic competition is dead. Not only is Columbia raiding National Broadcasting Co. for radio stars, but now Columbia Records, Inc., and RCA-Victor are engaged in a fight to determine who is going to dominate the market for phonograph records.

Livingston

RCA - Victor will make its bid in the record war on March 31 when it introduces a new record player. Its literature to dealers and distributors breathes fire: "RCA-Victor's new 45 rpm is the phonograph of the future. Just as the disc replaced the old cylinder record . . . So must the new 45 rpm replace all other kinds of records eventually—that's inevitable!"

Edward Wallerstein, chairman of the board of Columbia Records Corporation, does not share RCA-Victor's confidence in RCA-Victor. He promises to keep faith with the 600,000 American families who in the last eight months have bought two million individual LP records—the equivalent of more than 10 million conventional shellac records.

"We give them our profound assurance that they can continue to buy LP records with complete confidence. For these records have so clearly made an important contribution to music-loving America that they are certain to outlast any confusion of a 'record war'—a 'war' which Columbia Records has not initiated, and in which it cannot be defeated."

ONE certainly emerges: Americans are going to get more and better music in less space and at less cost. Both the 45 rpm. and the 33 rpm. records afford a richer tone—less distortion—than the old 78 rpm. records. And each provides more music to the square inch. The RCA-Victor job is only 6⅞ inches, can fit in any bookcase. When lined up in albums, the RCA records look like the 25-cent pocket books. The Columbia 33 rpm. comes in 7, 10, and 12 inch sizes, hence requires more height and depth than the average bookshelf affords.

The LP record provides five times the quantity of music as the conventional record. The space in the average console will accommodate classical collections of most families. A symphony on a 12-inch Columbia LP record now costs $4.85. The equivalent cost on the Victor 45 rpm would be $4.30 for a four and $5.25 for a five record album. A comparable shellac album today costs $6 to $7.25 in either Columbia or Victor.

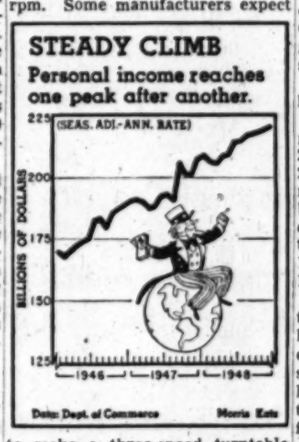
Columbia's 12-inch LP record apparently was designed to appeal to devotees of the classics. Symphonies, concertos, operas, etc., can be played straight through with only a stop every 25 minutes for turning the record. Ultimately, if the records are printed on only one side for automatic dropping, the playing can go on for several hours. Says Wallerstein: "No longer do musical works have to be chopped up or 'jigsawed' to fit the record."

The RCA-Victor job is aimed at a mass market. Nonclassical records outsell classical records three to one. In dollars, the ratio is 65 per cent to 35 per cent. The RCA-Victor record player will appeal to persons who don't want more than one piece on a side of a record or who don't customarily go in for album records.

WHO WILL win the record war depends on who sells the most new phonographs. RCA-Victor will concentrate on 45 rpm. jobs. Expensive console models will contain two separate phonographs—one for 45 rpm. and one for 78 rpm. Some manufacturers expect to make a three-speed turntable which will play all types of records. If ultimately most manufacturers swing over to three-speed jobs, then RCA-Victor may be forced to alter plans. It would be all alone with a main-line one-way phonograph in a three-way market. That might not hurt RCA-Victor record sales, but it would probably retard sales of instruments.

All this leads to doubt, confusion, and indignant letters to editors: Why can't the record companies get together on their plans, instead of discombobulating the public? But such confusion is the essence of genuine competition. Buyers have to make a real choice, which will determine—in large part—which records they'll tend to buy.

To be sure, buyers can hold off—to see how the war develops. But that also is a part of competition. That's a calculated risk which Columbia, Victor and other record and phonograph manufacturers assume. It's part of the war—to see who can hold out longest.



Phone Income Gain Reported by New England

Boston, Feb. 22 (AP).—The New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., today reported net income of $7,148,000 for 1948, equal to $4.59 per common share. This compared with the 1947 net income of $6,663,000, or $4.26 per share.

The annual report said that although higher in dollars than in 1947, the firm's 1948 earnings on invested capital fell from 4.05 to 3.98 per cent. This drop was attributed to increased capital obligations occasioned by expansion to meet service demands.

Record breaking expenditures of $96,500,000 were recorded in cross construction including new buildings, long distance operation, and changeover to dial mechanisms. Special facilities were also provided to form a network of local television circuits to link stations with regional Bell system networks.

Steel Earnings Rise

Portsmouth, Ohio, Feb. 22 (AP).—Portsmouth Steel Corp., today reported 1948 net earnings of $4,511,550, equal to $3.54 per common share, compared with $3,944,969 and $3.03 in 1947.

Raleigh Cigarettes Pack Coupons Again

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 22 (AP).—Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. announced today that coupons, redeemable for merchandise premiums, again are being packed with Raleigh Cigarettes.

The premium plan was introduced in September, 1932, and discontinued in November, 1943, because wartime shortages made it impossible to offer quality merchandise, the company said.

Hogs Recover Day's Losses; Beef Prices Up

Chicago, Feb. 22 (AP).—Hogs recovered all their Monday losses today while cattle continued to advance and sheep were fully steady. Only vealers retained a downward trend at weak to $1 lower levels.

Generally hogs were 25 to 50 cents higher, with buyers paying little attention to the fact packing plants were closed for a holiday. Choice lightweight hogs sold as high as $21.75, and most good to choice butchers up to 220 pounds sold from $21 to $21.50. Heavier weights ranged downward to $16. Sows were $15.75 to $17.50 and a top of $18.

Cattle prices mostly were strong to $1 higher with a load of choice fed steers getting up to $28.25. A load of choice fed heifers reached a new high for the month at $26.25. Medium and good steers moved out at $22 to $26. Good beef cows topped at $18.75, sausage bulls at $24, and vealers at $30. Odd head in the latter division merited up to $31.

Choice handyweight lambs could be quoted up to $25.50, but the run consisted mainly of four loads of Colorado wooled lambs grading good at $25 to $25.10. Choice light slaughter ewes sold up to $12.50.

Salable receipts included 4000 hogs, 5000 cattle and 1000 sheep.

Salable hogs 4000; barrows and gilts 230 lbs. and down and sows, 25 cents higher; butcher weights, 240 lbs. and above, 50 cents up; most good and choice 170-220-lb. butchers, 21-21.50; top 21.75 on choice lights; heavier weights down to 16; sows, 400 lbs. and up, 15.75-17.50; few choice light sows up to 18 and better.

Salable cattle, 5000; steers strong to 50 cents higher; spots up more; heifers 30 cents to 1 higher; cows opened steady to strong, closed slow and weak; bulls 25-50 cents higher; vealers weak to 1 lower; top 28.25 for load choice 1287 lb. fed steers; next best price 28; several choice loads, 26.85-27; medium and good kinds predominated in run at 22-26, including 1546-lb. Nebraskas at 24; load choice 1047-lb. fed Angus heifers, 26.25; odd head choice 1075-lb. heifers sorted from load 28 steers sold up to 27; good beef cows to 18.75; canners and cutters 14.50-16.50; good heavy sausage bulls up to 24; most vealers 30 and down; odd head to 31.

Salable sheep, 1000; fully steady; four loads Colorado wooled lambs grading good but not choice 95-104 lb. 25-25.10; choice handyweights quotable to 25.50; outside buyers paid to 25.50 for handful choice light slaughter ewes.

Building Permit Value Drops to New National Low

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Building permits issued during January dropped to the lowest dollar volume in 20 months, Dun & Bradstreet said today.

The total of $222,489,796 for 215 cities reporting was 19.3 per cent under the December level, and lower than for any month since May, 1947, when the aggregate was $215,336,472.

In January a year ago, the valuation of permits in the same cities totaled $286,513,248.

Panic Selling

French Gold Boom Slips To 10% Loss

Paris, Feb. 22 (NYHT).—Gold suffered a wave of panic-selling in the Paris market, and ended today with losses ranging to more than 10 per cent of franc value.

There was every indication in the Bourse, that gold was being unloaded at an unprecedented rate.

The more popular gold coins led the decline, suggesting that a great hoard of peasant gold was being thrown into the market. The more austere gold ingot suffered least.

The English gold sovereign, which began the day at 5875 francs, ended it at 5200. The French Napoleon went from 5000 to 4500. The Swiss gold franc and the American $20 gold piece did little better, the first falling from 4675 to 4300 and the second from 22,800 to 21,000.

In comparison, gold ingots were almost strong. The kilogram dropped from 657,000 to 635,000 francs.

American and British currency, which have been dropping, rallied somewhat. On the black-market, the dollar went from 395 to 400, and the pound from 1175 to 1225.

The market has been acting up ever since the new government loan was announced a month ago.

The Napoleon reached 6025 and the dollar 500 when the break began on January 28. Since that time the Napoleon has tumbled to its present level at 4500, and the dollar to 395 yesterday and 400 today.

WHAT IS THE GOVERNMENT'S POLICY

In Regard to Enforcing the Civil Aeronautics Law?

Many members of Congress, as well as departments of the government, including the National Defense establishment and the Department of Justice, have been approached by a group of irregular operators of aircraft.

The ostensible purpose of this solicitation is to "save these carriers and to allow them the right of free enterprise." Actually, their purpose is to enlist the aid of the government departments to continue their present operating procedure which, in many instances, is in violation of the law.*

Under the Civil Aeronautics Act there is equal opportunity for all, provided the applicant is able and willing to meet the requirements established by Congress in the public interest.

The transportation of passengers is a responsibility of profound public importance. The passenger depends upon his Government to regulate all transportation companies in such a manner as to afford him the highest degree of confidence and safety when he purchases a ticket.

The principal complaint of these irregular carriers is that the Civil Aeronautics Board has, in endeavoring to execute the law and to protect the public, established requirements which they are either unable or unwilling to meet.

Therefore, before lending support either as a public servant or a passenger, insist that these petition-bearers give an honest answer to the following questions:

1. "Do the members of your group conduct their operations at all times in accordance with the law?"

2. "Are you required to operate under the same safety standards as the regular certificated airlines?"

3. "In the maintenance of aircraft, are you required to follow the same rigid standards of inspection observed by the regular certificated airlines?"

4. "Are your pilots required to have the same amount of experience as that required by the regular certificated airlines?"

5. "Are your pilots constantly checked as to proficiency on the equipment which they are operating?"

6. "In the event of an accident, do you carry sufficient insurance to protect the families of your passengers?"

7. "What is the comparable safety record of your group and that of the regular certificated airlines?"

Unless these questions can be answered to your satisfaction, it is to your interest to refuse to support these operators.

No group deserves the support either of the Government or the public if they are unable or unwilling to comply with the law. We believe in equal opportunity for all, but we also believe in one standard of law enforcement for all and one standard of safety regulation for all.

"IRREGULAR CARRIER" (as used herein): An operator of large aircraft, similar to those used by the scheduled airlines, but who has no certificate of convenience and necessity from the government authorizing him to operate. The irregular carriers operate merely under an exemption, issued by the Civil Aeronautics Board, which contemplates infrequent service and not regular scheduled operations.

* If there is any doubt on this point, the records of the Civil Aeronautics Board will reveal the facts.

Private Industry Pays Better in Long Run Than Federal Service

Does it "pay" to remain in the Federal service over a long period of years? Tens of thousands of Federal workers would like to have the right answer to that question. There is no such thing, of course.

But if you're looking for money—the answer appears to be a firm "no." The staff of the Hoover Commission made several significant studies which were considered in making its personnel recommendations. These surveys plainly showed that Uncle Sam doesn't offer the financial rewards to older, long-service employes found in private industry.

A study of white-collar employes revealed those in Government are better off in their first 15 years of service and up to 35 years of age, but progressively worse thereafter.

A survey of engineers showed those in Government were better off financially during their first five years of employment. By the ninth year, salaries in private industry began to outstrip those in Government, and after 40 years they were from 15 to 70 per cent greater than those of Federal engineers.

A third study, of college graduates, showed they were better off in Government while they were under 30, but the money advantage was clearly with industry from 35 on.

The studies were one reason why the Hoover Commission is insisting on higher salaries and better promotion opportunities for the long-time career employes and officials. Why Congress hasn't provided these before is one of those mysteries. Perhaps the explanation of the general attitude of Congress is in this statement which was made recently by Representative Jensen (R., Iowa):

"I do want to pay a public official enough so that we can get good people, but I do not want to make it so inviting that too many will try to get on the public payroll and at the public trough. We have too many at the trough now, in my estimation, because of the fact that we have made it too inviting."

BITTERNESS among members of the House Appropriations Committee was brought out in a speech made the other day by Representative Wigglesworth (R., Mass.). Wigglesworth was boiling because Chairman Cannon abolished the investigating staff which had been built up by the Republicans.

Wigglesworth credited the staff with saving Uncle Sam about 10 billions in the past two years, a most generous claim. He went on to say that the staff was abolished "without allowing any minority member to question, to debate, or to offer to amend any one of the half dozen resolutions that were adopted in the full committee."

"I regret the action taken because it is likely to cost the people of this Nation literally billions of dollars . . . In my judgment, it was unworthy of the traditions of the great Committee on Appropriations."

On the other hand, the Democrats say the Republicans used the investigators to play partisan politics (the GOP brand). Wigglesworth said the committee needed a permanent, nonpolitical skilled staff to produce results. That's all too true.

RETIREMENT: A subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee has okayed the Miller bill. That measure would permit former employes who had 25 or more years of service and who were laid off since July 1, 1945, to retire immediately on a reduced annuity regardless of age.

NOTES: Civil Service has issued a new order which makes it easier for a jobless career employe to get a temporary job . . . The Federal Career Employes Association will meet tonight at the YMCA, 18th and G sts. nw. Permanent employes are especially invited . . . The Postal Supervisors now have two full-time representatives here who are: J. H. Wakefield, secretary, and Jesse V. Horton, legislative representative.

ITEMS: C. C. McDaniel, formerly of Veterans' Administration and Government Printing, has been appointed an enrolling clerk in the Senate . . . AFL's American Federation of Government Employes is sponsoring legislation which would make it illegal for a Federal official to tell any subordinate he could not join or actively participate in a union of his choice. The bill is aimed at the Navy order which prevents supervisors in grades CAF-9 and P-3 and above from active union participation . . . Some of the VA employes in the Munitions have been threatened with disciplinary action if they visit the canteens during working hours.

AFGE: The executive council of the American Federation of Government Employes has given President James Yaden a firm vote of confidence. Yaden's legislative plans and his successful membership drive were indorsed by the council.

Among the AFGE's legislative goals are the fixing of per diem salaries by the Labor Department instead of by local wage boards; a new pay raise for Federal workers and an increase in the travel allowance from $6 to $10 a day.

Silver Spring Survey Asked By Council

Maryland U. Asked For Expert Opinion On Incorporation

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

The last barrier to a governmental study of populous Silver Spring was removed yesterday by the Montgomery County Council.

At its regular meeting in Rockville yesterday, the council adopted a resolution asking for the survey, which it is estimated, will require five months.

Municipal experts of the University of Maryland's bureau of public administration have agreed to conduct the survey if requested by the council.

Whether Silver Spring can best thrive under the county government, as at present, or whether it should incorporate and become an independent city will be the main question to be studied.

Council members approved the resolution unanimously with little discussion after it was introduced by Councilman J. Douglas Bradshaw.

President Frederic P. Lee of the council said he believed the project to be of "considerable importance." He added: "Anything that will throw light on the problems facing the county's municipalities will be helpful."

Some opposition was expressed by Acting County Manager I. G. McNayr, who said Bethesda residents "might follow immediately with a similar request."

Leaders of the Silver Spring Hospital Association appeared before the council to request approval of announced plans to sell 1½ million dollars in bonds to help finance a 200-bed general hospital at Forest Glen rd. and Georgia ave.

Group spokesmen said a survey last year showed the county needs 200 more hospital beds. President Ralph D. Boyd, of the association, said the need is becoming more acute. He predicted a population increase of 20,000 by 1960. Present population of Silver Spring, he said, is about 60,000.

Boyd said approximately $200,000 in cash and pledges has been collected by the hospital group. Another $400,000 is expected in Federal funds under the Hill-Burton Act, another spokesman, Dr. Claude Mitchell, declared.

McNayr reviewed plans for widening Wisconsin ave. at East-West hwy. and Glenbrook pkwy., disclosing that condemnation proceedings were getting under way. He estimated the cost at $75,000 to $125,000.

In an afternoon executive session, the council clarified its views in respect to its controversy with the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and appointed three persons to the county personnel board established by the charter.

A second hearing, on extending the District rent control law, will be held at 10 a. m. Monday, also in Room 445 Old House Office Building.

The hearings will be conducted by the House District Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.). Persons who wish to testify at either hearing were asked to notify William N. McLeod, jr., clerk of the House District Committee, and if possible to prepare a written text of what they will say.

Red Cross Rejects Blood Gift Of Multiracial Fellowship

The Interchurch Fellowship of Washington reported yesterday that its Brotherhood Week offer of blood to the District Red Cross had been declined, because of a Fellowship stipulation that it be accepted on a nonsegregated basis.

The offer was made Monday by Glenn D. Everett, vice president of the Fellowship, which includes American Indians, Catholics, Negroes, Jews, Nisei, Protestants Seventh-Day Adventists, Mennonites, Chinese-Americans and Asiatic Indians among its members.

The offer was declined by Nat C. Wilson, manager of the District Red Cross, according to the Fellowship.

A spokesman for the Red Cross said the offer was turned down because of a Red Cross requirement that blood be segregated to give both doctor and patients the opportunity of choice.

A request by members of the Fellowship for the use of the Red Cross bloodmobile to collect blood for other distribution was also denied by Wilson, the Fellowship said.

The group offered more than 12 gallons of blood to the Red Cross with the stipulation that it be accepted as "human blood" without other designation as to its origin.

The policy of the District Red Cross is to record the color of blood donors and their race, as American Indian, Japanese, Caucasian or "all other."

The Fellowship yesterday extended its offer to any hospital or service institution willing to accept "human blood."

Everett, Washington newspaper correspondent and vice president of the Fellowship, said "scientists have conceded that if the labels were to wash off the bottles of blood they would not be able to determine the race or religion of its donor."

"In Brotherhood Week, it seems to us that this scientific fact should be emphasized. From 75 to 100 members of the Interchurch Fellowship from all walks of life, representing all races and creeds, stand prepared to demonstrate their belief in brotherhood by making a group donation to any organization ready to accept it for what it is—human blood," he said.

The District Red Cross blood bank has collected 16,423 pints, more than 2000 gallons, from donors since it started operations.

Dr. Kenneth R. Nelson, physician in charge of technical direction of the blood center, said six weeks ago that the Red Cross has "just been scraping along, supplying pressing needs."

The interchurch fellowship is headed by the Rev. Robert W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, 11th and R st. nw. It was founded in 1944.

It also sponsors interracial worship services and a "Units for Unity" lecture series at All Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Other officers of the Fellowship include Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, who is chairman of the executive committee, and Mrs. Gilbert A. Bell, treasurer.

The Rev. Orris G. Robinson, pastor of the Calvary Methodist Church, and Mrs. Grace Lorman, director of the Phyllis Wheatley YWCA, serve on the executive committee.

Church Play Slated

The Anglican Players, a new little-theater group at Ascension and St. Agnes Episcopal Church, will appear in "The Torch Bearers" in the parish hall of the church, 12th and Massachusetts ave. Thursday and Friday at 8 p. m.

Brotherhood Week Features Hymn Sing

Two special programs bring Brotherhood Week to a climax here today.

Major event of the day is listed for the Departmental Auditorium, Constitution ave., between 12th and 14th sts. nw., at 8 p.m. when the United States Army Band and Chorus will present a program of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish hymns.

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, Minister of the Universalist National Memorial Church and chairman of the Washington Area Conference of Christians and Jews will be the speakers of the evening.

The other activity of the day will be a meeting of the Women's Activities Committee of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at 2:30 p.m. in the Hotel 2400 during which former Representative Clare Booth Luce will speak on "Brotherhood is Freedom." Gilbert Harrison, national chairman of the American Veterans Committee, will also address the meeting.

Soldier Dies After Accident

A 28-year-old Andrews Air Base soldier, Technical Sergt. Walter McLain Iliff, died last night at Physicians Memorial Hospital at LaPlata, Md., two hours after he was injured in a traffic accident on the Morgantown Bridge in Maryland.

Maryland State Police reported that Iliff of Potomac Heights, Md., was injured in an accident in which a truck was involved.

4 Arrested In Theft of Kosher Meat

Arrest of four men solved a kosher meat theft, police disclosed yesterday.

The Capital Kosher Meat Co., 901 1st st. se., reported to police Monday that 435 pounds of kosher meat, including frankfurters and salami, valued at about $200, had been stolen.

Detectives Ralph M. Shoemaker and Andrew J. Gerber of the Fifth Precinct by 11 a. m. Monday had locked up several men and recovered most of the stolen meat.

The stuff was hot, all right. When the detectives went to a house at 131 H st. se. they recovered some of the salami which was sizzling in a frying pan, they said. More of the stolen meat was found in a trunk at 207 Virginia ave. se.

Police charged Raymond Moore, 18, of 1124 6th st. se.; Walter Dudley, 19, of 131 H st. se. and Clarence Thomas, 20, of 207 Virginia ave. se., with housebreaking and grand larceny, and Aurelius Thomas, 22, a brother of Clarence, also of the Virginia ave. address, with receiving stolen property.

The four were held for action of the grand jury when arraigned in Municipal Court yesterday before Judge Walter J. Casey. He set bond of $500 for Aurelius Thomas and bond of $1000 each for the other three men.

Club to Present Comedy

A three-act comedy, "January Thaw," will be presented by the Catholic Club of the Chevy Chase Drama Group Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at Gonzaga Auditorium, 27 I st. nw. Admission will be $1.20, including tax.

D. C. Trolley Is Taken for One-Man Ride

Daniel H. Napper, 25, is a man, police say, who believes his weekly streetcar pass entitles him to special service.

Police and Capital Transit officials contend, however, that the $2.75 pass does not entitle a patron to appropriate streetcars for personal runs.

Napper was seen around the Capital Transit carbarn, 5th st. and Kenilworth ave. ne., at about 4 a. m. yesterday. Police said he asked several passersby the best and quickest way to get to 7th and P sts. nw.

Apparently Napper solved his problem. A short time later a streetcar was discovered missing from a siding in front of the carbarn. A police lookout was broadcast.

Police Pvts. Richard G. Long and Harry Q. Barbour of the Fourteenth Precinct found the streetcar stopped at 34th st. and Benning rd. ne.—six blocks from the barn.

Its operator had stopped to permit an automobile to make a left turn and had jammed the brakes so hard the controls had locked.

When asked why he had taken the streetcar, Napper, according to police, replied:

"I was headed for 7th and P sts. and that's the fastest way I know how to get there."

In Municipal Court yesterday, Napper pleaded guilty and said he had been drinking and didn't remember what happened. Judge Walter J. Casey referred the case to a probationary officer and set sentencing for March 16.

Area News in Brief

License Tag Traps Suspect in Holdup

Elmer H. Irwin, 21, was described by police yesterday as the unluckiest man of the month.

According to police, Irwin held up Harry V. Haley, 29, night attendant at the Spur Distributing Co., a filling station at 1230 New York ave. ne., about 11:30 p. m. Monday. Haley was relieved of $24.

Police Pvts. Carl A. Dudley and Joseph L. Costello of the Twelfth Precinct were cruising in the area in a scout car at the time.

As Irwin drove his car into the filling station the policemen noticed the rear license plate on his car was partially covered. They made a "U" turn and returned to the station just as Irwin was driving away.

Irwin, of 6101 Queens Chapel rd., Hyattsville, Md., waived preliminary hearing before Judge Walter J. Casey in Municipal Court yesterday and was released in $2000 bond for action of the grand jury.

Beauty Visits Patients

More than 200 servicemen yesterday got a 15-minute eyeful of BeBe Shopp, Miss America of 1948, when she visited Walter Reed Hospital's Recreation Hall.

She was greted by Post Adjutant Maj. Darwin M. Hill. She told patients that Walter Reed Hospital is the 125th service stop she's made since last September.

3 False Alarms Probed

Thirteen pieces of fire equipment whizzed through downtown Washington streets three times late yesterday—all three times in response to false alarms.

The alarms were from boxes at 9th and E sts. nw., sounded at 5:36 p. m.; 7th and E sts. nw., sounded at 5:47 p. m.; and 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., sounded at 6:02 p. m.

Jailed in Radio Theft

Thomas Clark, 21, of 1462 Rhode Island ave. ne., was given a 45-day jail sentence yesterday by Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey.

He was convicted of stealing a radio from the house of his stepfather, Oscar L. Brown, 713 North Carolina ave. se. Police told the court that Clark sold the radio for $3.

1-Room House Burns

Fire yesterday destroyed a one-room house occupied by Mrs. Julia Stewart, in Glen Echo Heights, at the corner of Waukesha and Wisioming rds. Damage was estimated at about $1000 by Cabin John and Glen Echo volunteer firemen. Mrs. Stewart was away at the time. Firemen said the blaze probably started from a kerosene stove.

New Treatments Described Here To Foot Experts

A flexible foot cast for the treatment of body aches and the use of splints for bunions were described yesterday at the closing session of the Middle Atlantic Pediatry-Chiropody Association's three-day meeting in the Shoreham Hotel.

Dr. Ralph W. Dye, Sandy Lake, Pa., said that pains in different parts of the body frequently result from abnormal foot positions. By forcing the feet into a natural position with a "flexible cast" of adhesive tape, Dr. Dye said the cause of certain body pains can be removed.

The new bunion treatment was explained by Dr. Sydney Fayne of the Long Island University College of Pediatry. He said thin splints would replace the thick corrective pads now used. The patient would wear his shoes over the splints, causing less inconvenience and speding the cure.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife Is Bothered About Husband's Interest In Another Woman, Beautiful, Extravagant, Dignified, Married; Wife Admires Her, Too

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My trouble is another woman. My husband is really fond of her and pays her the attentions I feel I should be given at parties. I can understand his feelings, because I also feel attracted to her, much to my surprise.

She is married, beautiful, well groomed and has a distinctive air of dignity. I truly would like to be like her in many ways; but I hear that at home she is somewhat different. She goes through money like mad, and whatever she does is done in "utmost" fashion or she won't do it.

We are together constantly, as we move in the same social circle, and I enjoy her company as long as Matt isn't there. When he is, I feel entirely left out; and I am sure he senses it, because at the end of the evening he tries to "make up" to me, as if he felt guilty for paying Mrs. X so much attention.

Husband's Air Is Adolescent

I THOUGHT at first I was jealous over nothing, but if he feels that way, there must be some "drift" that ought to be stopped. I truly think they look at each other unnecessarily long and give other signs of knowing each other too well. I doubt that Mrs. X really wants Matt, but I think she just likes to have men at her feet.

My husband asks who will attend parties to which we're invited, and if I don't mention this couple he looks disappointed, which truly hurts me. Once I tried to discuss it with him, but got no place. Now he has invited them to spend a couple of weeks with us in our mountain cabin, and I don't think I'll enjoy the trip at all. I will be a bundle of nerves.

However, I wasn't consulted when he asked them, so there isn't much I can do. How can I fight Mrs. X? I would like to keep the friendship, if it's worth it; and also, it would be hard to break relations with them, as I would have to stop seeing the whole crowd, and I can hardly venture that, as they are the only people I know in this new community. Please advise me. G. F.

What's the Report on Other Husband?

DEAR G. F.: In all probability you've sized up Mrs. X correctly. She "goes through" men as she goes through money, burning incense to herself; and just now she is concentrating on Matt, a newcomer to her circle, as a routine exercise in vanity. Incidentally, she is "vamping" you, too,—because admiration is "the breath of life" to her.

What about Mr. X? Doesn't he notice or care that his wife and Matt are drinking deeply of each other's eyes at parties? I dare say that sort of thing is old stuff to him, and that he isn't worried in the least, because he knows—as dutiful mates of flirtatious "charmer" wives usually learn—that the lady flirts because she has nothing to give, hence nothing to fear. By which I mean, she isn't vulnerable, emotionally.

When she searches a "new" man's eyes for the expected, namely: homage, hope and challenging question, she isn't seeing the man so much as she is asking, like the auto-erotic queen in fairy tale, "Mirror, mirror on the wall, who is fairest of them all?" And the poor bedazzled male, who thinks her interest is vested in him, signals back with flattered fervor that she's tops—and where do we go from here?

Signify Sweetly You're No Dope

I THINK Matt went too far in booking the X's for a lengthy visit, without clearing the idea first through you; and if Mrs. X has bone-bred manners back of her facade of charm, she won't accept—in the sense of making plans—unless and until you urge the invitation; and there is no reason why you should, if the prospect is deeply disturbing.

There are things you can do about it. You are entitled to let Matt's suggestion die of neglect. Or, if Mrs. X seems r'aring to go, you may tactfully tell the X's that personal agenda overlooked by Matt, say dental work, will keep you in town indefinitely. And it doesn't matter if they don't believe you. Indeed, so much the better if they realize you are suavely refusing to be a dope.

However, be honest with Matt. Tell him serenely, "I'd die for you sweetie, within reason; but I balk, I really do, at going to the mountains to chaperone you on a two-weeks' date of sorts with Mrs. X. And don't pretend that's not the plot in your master mind, for I've been reading my crystal ball." M. H.

Leaders Discuss Juvenile Courts

MRS. DERMOT MORRAH, one of Britain's "untrained and unpaid" juvenile court magistrates, met with American women experts in the field of juvenile delinquency at an informal luncheon yesterday under the auspices of the National Staff of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Morrah explained that these British magistrates are all experienced in the field of social work but they are not trained in legal matters. Chosen through the Home Office, these magistrates come from all social groups. The system is an outgrowth of the old tradition of having "landed gentry" act as magistrates, she claims.

No one under 21 years of age can be committeed to prison in England, Mrs. Morrah explained, and the problem of what to do with unruly boys who are sure to upset the "remand homes" where they can be sent, is sizable.

In juvenile cases in England, there is "a finding of guilt" rather than a conviction, said Mrs. Morrah. Juvenile courts in that country get criminal cases, children brought to the court for care and protection, children brought by their parents because they are out of control and truancy cases. The magistrate can permit the child to return home under "condition not to associate" with certain people or on condition that he pay bit by bit from his money in compensation for property damaged, etc.

Or the child may be sent to one of a number of kinds of homes—many of them training schools for sailors, farmers or mechanics—which are often run by private social agencies with some state assistance.

"Most useful of the homes to which the youthful offenders may be sent are the probation hostels," according to Mrs. Morrah. These are usually for children over school age who are permitted to work at their regular employment but who have some supervision from a probation officer.

Mrs. Morrah, whose husband is a member of the London Times editorial staff and editor of "The Round Table," arrived in this country late in January and will make a four months tour before returning home. She is visiting juvenile courts while she is here.

Among the women members of the Federal and local government who attended the luncheon at the Roger Smith Hotel to meet Mrs. Morrah were Judge Nadine Lane Gallaher, temporarily assigned to the Juvenile Court; Capt. Rhoda Millikin, chief of the woman's section of the Metropolitan Police; Judge Lucy Howorth and Col. Mary Agnes Brown of the legislative section of the Veterans Administration; Miss Mary Cannon, chief of the international division of the women's gureau, Department of Labor; Miss Caroline Ware, School of Social Work, Howard University; Miss Gagny Johnson, labor analyst, Department of Labor; Dr. Katherine Frederick, Civil Service Commission.

The luncheon, one of a series of informal meetings to help women with specialized training get together with women from other countries engaged in similar professions, was arranged by Dr. Phoebe Morrison, American Association of University Women Associate in International Relations.

Delaware to Lead Parade At Benefit Fashion Show

By Peggy Preston

IT'LL BE first come, first served at the fashion show-luncheon to be given March 1 at the Mayflower by the Woman's National Democratic Club.

However, it isn't a question of what hour you get there, but what State you come from. Seating will be according to the date on which your State, or territory, entered the Union. Hostesses have been appointed to preside at the various "home" tables, and guests can indulge in regional chit-chat to their heart's content.

NUMBER ONE SPOT goes to the sturdy State of Delaware, which led the parade into the Union on December 7, 1778. Mrs. Arthur Baker will do the honors at this table. Other women named as table chairmen include Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Hugh Peterson, Georgia; Mrs. Philip Owen, Connecticut; Mrs. Joseph Casey, Massachusetts; Mrs. E. K. Wheeler and Mrs. Minier Hostetler; Miss Sara Marcum, South Carolina; Mrs. William A. Disque and Mrs. C. Demaine, Virginia; Mrs. Edward Foley, jr., New York and Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, North Carolina.

Hostess at the District of Columbia table will be Mrs. Edward C. Shields; for Alaska, Mrs. W. L. Bartlett; Hawaii, Mrs. Oscar Chapman; and Mrs. Addison Bomberger will represent Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

ADDING FURTHER to the spirit of competition will be a contest for the best table decorations. Mrs. James A. Murray originated the idea and has sent her chairmen scurrying around in search of centerpieces that will be representative of each State. They've called on the Library of Congress, the Chamber of Commerce and various Government bureaus for suggestions and no one is telling what will appear on which table, because prizes will be awarded for the most original and beautiful decorations.

Then there will be the fashion show, of course, following luncheon. It will comprise the spring collection of New York Designer Nettie Rosenstein, noted far and wide for her luscious designs.

BUT RIVALING THE FASHIONS will be the audience, which promises to be one of the most representative of the season. Mrs. Truman will be seated at the head table, with Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, club president; Mrs. Max Truitt, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Lorton Sims, chairman of the benefit.

Among those who have made reservations are Signora Tarchiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador; Senora de Dillon, wife of the Ecuadorian Ambassador; Mrs. John W. Snyder, Mrs. Julius A. Krug, Mrs. Walter F. George, Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. Kenneth Royall, Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Mrs. Francis Biddle, Mrs. Paul Porter and Mrs. Leslie Biffle.

In addition are Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Mrs. Oscar R. Ewing, Mrs. Albert L. Cox, Mrs. Emil Schram, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Guy Mason, Mrs. Barron P. DuBois, Mrs. Key Pittman, Mrs. George F. Becker, Mrs. Frederick M. Gould and many more.

Mrs. Sims is taking reservations at her home, Decatur 1991. Proceeds will go into the repair fund for the clubhouse at 1526 New Hampshire ave.

TRYING on hats is an activity that delights any feminine heart. Miss Julie Halloran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roosevelt Halloran, is no exception to the rule as she happily pirouettes before a mirror in one of the hats that will be shown in the forthcoming fashion show for the benefit of the Women's National Democratic Club. Julie will be an usher at the affair, as will be her helper, at right, Miss Anne Devereux

T Shirt Variations

Due for renewed importance this year is the T shirt. Modern versions of the old favorite include jumper effects, dressmaker details, boxy, square lines for active sports, convertible collars, stripes and turtle necks. Of combed cotton, they come in all colors.

Second in Series Of Junior Dances To Be Held Friday

The second of the Junior Dance series at the United Nations Club will be held Friday evening. Miss Mary-Stuart Price, chairman, will be in the receiving line with the two vice chairmen, Miss Ann Muse Gillespie and Miss Jane Lingo; the treasurer, Mrs. Diana Taylor Hatch, and the coordinator, Mrs. Henry Williams Morgan, jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Washington, jr., will give a cocktail party before the dance. Some of the guests will go to the Candlelight Waltz at the Washington Club, others to the United Nations Club. Among those who are expected to attend the Junior Dance are Mr. and Mrs. John Walthall Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Cox, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howard, Miss Mary-Stuart Price, Miss Laura Belle Wyatt, Mrs. Isabelle Nunnally, from Farmington, Va., and Paul Salembier Devind, Clark Palmer Cole 2d; Graeme Smallwood, Gallatin de Knox and Marvin Ely.

Hat Collections to Be Shown

SEVERAL of New York's top-notch hat designers are due in Washington Thursday to be guests of honor at the monthly luncheon and meeting of the Washington Fashion Group.

The event will be held at 12:45 p. m. at the Washington Hotel, with Mrs. Marion Tolson, regional director of the Fashion Group, presiding.

Major attraction, after the designers themselves, will be their hat collections to be shown by models during the luncheon. Viewing their own creations over the luncheon tables will be Florence Reichman, Peg Fischer, Lady Northridge, Lenesta, Chanda and Braagaad.

Commentator for the show will be Mrs. Mary Kelley, director of the Millinery Fashion Bureau in New York.

The visiting designers will be introduced to radio audiences in Washington during their stay in town. On Thursday Nancy Osgood will interview Florence Reichman over WRC; Braagaard will be guest on Ruth Crane's "Modern Woman" program over WMAL; and a panel discussion will be presented over WOL by Chanda, Lenesta and Peg Fischer. Laddy Northridge will be heard in "People in Town," Hazel Markel's show over WTOP.

Opti-Mrs. Club Plans Fashion Show

SPRING suits and street wear, plus amusing accessories for Easter, will be emphasized in the annual fashion show presented by the Opti-Mrs. Club of Arlington, Thursday, February 24, from 2 to 4 p. m. at the Glebe Theater in Arlington. Proceeds will be for the benefit of the Optimist Club's fund for boys.

Prizes and a varied program of entertainment will add zest to the event which will feature fashions from Jelleff's. One prize will go to the woman wearing the most unusual, as well as most wearable hat.

This New Coffee Flavor Makes Early Morning Angels

It turns Bears into Dears...it's a wonderful, wonderful spirit-lifting success

It brings out the "angel" in the grouchiest early morning grouch! "What's in it?" people ask! The answer is Selecciones! (Pronounced seleck-see-o-nays.) That's Spanish for selected... some coffees selected mainly for perfecting body . . . others mainly for perfecting flavor.

1. Hand-selected from shade-grown, pedigreed trees.
2. Hand-selected at the peak of ripeness.
3. Hand-selected before and after curing.

TAKING a last-minute look at a letter to be sent to President Truman urging the President to take the offensive in the Cardinal Mindszenty case are Msgr. John O'Grady and Miss Mary C. Duffy. The letter was approved at the semi-annual board meeting of the Catholic Daughters of America yesterday

President Truman Urged to Intercede

Catholic Daughters Deplore Mindszenty Trial

On the first morning of the three-day board meeting of the Catholic Daughters of America yesterday, a letter was approved urging the President of the United States to take the offensive in the "unjust trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty."

National officers and directors of the CDA from 11 States and the District of Columbia are meeting for the semiannual board meeting in the Statler Hotel.

The organization, comprised of 200,000 senior members and 25,000 junior members in 45 States, Panama, Puerto Rico, Cuba and Alaska, protested the imprisonment and trial of Cardinal Mindszenty.

Calling the United Nations "a forum where the world conscience may be heard," the CDA urged the President and the State Department to make their protests public by sending them to the Kremlin, the Hungarian government and recorded on the Voice of America.

Miss Mary C. Duy, national regent, heads the group which will hear discussion on the CDA agenda on current legislation with aid to education, public housing and remedial legislation for the resettlement of displaced persons.

Problems of Aged Weighed

Talking of the problems of the aged, Msgr. John O'Grady warned the members to be alert to the danger of the wiping out of the present voluntary retirement system if the old-age benefits would be increased.

"I hope that after the discussion is over," Msgr. O'Grady said, "that the voluntary programs will have the power to hold on to their own systems."

Msgr. O'Grady, who has been interested in the pension system since 1916, said "it would have to be an expensive thing if it is to be an adequate system."

The 5-point plan for the CDA aid to the aged was approved by Msgr. O'Grady.

The 5-point program is:

(1) "Adopt" an aged institution or individual and act as liaison with activities in the outside world. (2) Arrange for social visits, not on a holiday basis, but as a year-around responsibility. (3) Have young people visit the old regularly. (4) Arrange for talks, motion pictures, educational and recreational activities. (5) Arrange for spiritual needs of aged confined in their homes or in nonsectarian private homes.

About 1000 guests assembled at No. 2 Scott Circle when the District of Columbia Chapter CDA was host to the visiting board members.

In the Receiving Line

Mrs. John F. Victory, State regent of Maryland, and Miss Cecelia Bryant, State leader of Virginia, and State officers were in the receiving line with local officers headed by Miss Mary Ellen Dashiell, regent of the local court.

Red and white carnations and blue iris arranged in silver bowls, decorated the clubhouse in keeping with George Washington's birthday. Juniors of the local group served as pages at the reception and the CDA Glee Club presented a musical program.

Diplomatic Golden Rules In Mauritania: Be Friendly Courteous—and Respectful

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

OUR NEWLY favorite author, Marcus Cheke, is much too enchanting to dismiss with a few cursory quotes. Mr. Cheke, his majesty's vice marshal of the Diplomatic Corps, authored a small, tome titled "GUIDANCE on foreign usages and ceremony, and other matters, for a member of his Majesty's foreign service on his first appointment to a post abroad."

Yesterday we set down a few of his many dictums on how the embryo diplomat should cope with parties in general and the local "Smart Set" in particular. Today we'll quote him on manners in the general sense. Remember that the mythical tyro diplomat is John Bull, his boss; His Majesty's Ambassador is Sir Henry Sealingwax. Mr. Bull is a mythical Third Secretary, stationed in an equally mythical Mauritania.

This is Mr. Cheke's first Golden Rule for the young diplomat: "Be overrespectful rather than overfamiliar." Cheke explains lucidly: "If he is faced, in any small matter, by two alternative courses of action—the one easy, but appearing somewhat overfamiliar—let him always plump for the latter rather than the former."

For instance, if he hesitates between ending a letter "Yours ever" and "Yours sincerely," let him plump for "Yours sincerely." If his wife is hesitating whether to appear at the beach picnic of the Counselor's wife (who has been most friendly to her) with or without stockings, let her (if she is unable to telephone and ask) wear stockings."

Don't Wear Green Pullovers

HOW ABOUT SUITABLE DRESS? "For his first morning's work in Mauritania, Mr. Bull may be in doubt as to what dress would be the most suitable for him to put on. It may be said here that he should avoid any apparel either slovenly or eccentric. He must bear in mind not only that His Majesty's Ambassador may wish to speak with him—but that he may receive a visit in his office from the President of the Chamber of Commerce or an official from the Mauritanian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, either of whom would resent being received by a young man wearing, for instance, a bright green knitted pullover."

Next, Mr. Bull must bear up under the strain of meeting his colleagues: "Nowadays his Foreign Service colleagues will begin to call him by his Christian name at once, and after a day or two, during which Mr. Bull may prefer to avoid giving them any name at all, he may return this vulgar compliment."

Courtesy to the Chief

MR. BULL'S relations with his Ambassador are full of pitfalls for the unwary. Mr. Cheke's next Golden Rule is the following: "On every occasion when they (the Bulls) meet Sir Henry and Lady Sealingwax at a party outside the Embassy—Mr. Bull must make a point of saying how-do-you-do to both of them, while Mrs. Bull must make a point of saying how-do-you-do to Lady Sealingwax.

Bull should accompany his Ambassador through crowds, take their cloakroom tickets and car. If the Ambassador offers him a lift in his car, "he must be careful to sit in the left-hand seat."

He must allow his Chief to enter first then, unless otherwise motioned, "would do well in order not to stumble over the Ambassador's feet, to walk around to the far side and enter the car by the other door."

Getting out of the car, "he should wait until it has moved off before he turns away."

Other fine points include: "If the Embassy staff have received invitations to some boring official function, one or some of them should accept and go, too, if their Chief is going, even if he has not expressed any wish on the subject."

Exacting Life in Washington

AS APPENDIX Mr. Cheke invited seasoned colleagues to jot down a few words about their experiences in foreign posts. Of Washington, an anonymous diplomat says, "If Mr. and Mrs. John Bull are fortunate enough to be appointed to Washington, they will find themselves at a post where there is a refreshing lack of excessive formality, but which is extremely exacting."

Everything in Washington is daisy, the sole difficulty being "It will not be long before Mr. and Mrs. Bull discover that although Americans are almost invariably extremely courteous and friendly to individual Englishmen and English women, Britain and British policy are constantly and loudly criticized by many sections of American opinion."

Mr. and Mrs. Bull must learn to take this criticism in good part and to meet it as occasion may require. "He (Bull) should also bear in mind the occasional merit of the reply courteous and may store away in his memory Lord Halifax's remark in 1941 when rotten eggs were thrown at him in Detroit, 'How lucky you are to have eggs to throw!' Above all, Mr. and Mrs. Bull should school themselves and remain masters of their tempers."

The author concludes on a happy note, "If they will throw themselves into the life of the embassy and of the country to which they have been appointed, and will show themselves appreciative of spending several years among a hospitable, warm-hearted and generous people, they will find that there is no country in which Englishmen and English women can make more varied and enduring friendships."

Theta Sigma Phi to Hear Authors

"Theta Sig Authors Night" will be the theme of the Theta Sigma Phi National Capital Alumnae Chapter dinner meeting in the Press Club east lounge Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. Bess Furman, Claire Sifton, and Jean Van Evera are the three members of the local chapter who will be featured in a symposium on authorship.

How an idea is formulated and executed, how you get writing assignments, how to approach publishers once you have an idea, what it means to take on an author's job, and helpful hints for prospective authors will be discussed by the three successful writers.

Bess Furman's "Washington By-Line," a lively behind-the-scenes account of her 20 years as a Washington newspaperwoman, has been acclaimed by critics since its release early this month. Excerpts from Jean Van Evera's book, "How to Be Happy While Single," which will be released in mid-April, will appear in both Cosmopolitan and Good Housekeeping. Claire Sifton's latest contribution, "Looking at Distribution," is a consumer education study for NEA.

About Calorie Count on Popcorn

There are approximately 66 calories in one cup of popped corn. If one tablespoon of butter or other fat is added to that for flavor, 100 more calories will be added to the total count.

I have an unpainted record cabinet and bookcase which I would like to paint myself in a gray antique finish. Some people, I believe, call it a platinum finish. Previously, I have used an antique glaze of raw turkey umber over white or ivory furniture, but I doubt whether an umber glaze over gray would produce the results I have in mind. Can you help me? Also, I should appreciate knowing whether a coat of shellac is necessary before starting the painting to prevent "bleeding through"? S. H. C.

You could use black color-in-oil in varnish for a glaze instead of the umber. Or, if you didn't wish to use black you could use any other dark color-in-oil mixed with varnish. To make the glaze with varnish, use one-fourth as much turpentine as varnish and add as much color as will give you the effect you wish. It is not necessary to apply anything to an unfinished surface before putting on the paint. If the surface to be painted has been varnished, shellacked or lacquered, the gloss of the old finish should be removed by sanding the surface before painting.

My house is on a slope and during a prolonged rain, when the ground gets thoroughly soaked, water leaks through the brick wall of my basement below the level of the ground on the side facing the slope. The other sides do not leak. To remedy this, is it necessary to dig up the wall on the outside and waterproof it? Or would it be practical to waterproof the wall on the inside? If so, what material should be used—waterproof cement or something else? And how thick should it be applied? H. W. A.

Rain water collects in a pool on the outside of the wall and leaks through porous concrete, cracks, or joints which are not tight. To permanently correct the difficulty, the water should be drained away before it has a chance to collect on the uphill foundation side. This can be done by throwing up a ridge of earth which can be covered with grass a short distance from the house so that the surface water is directed past both sides of the house. You could also waterproof the inside wall by covering it with iron cement mixed with water to the consistency of thick paint. Apply with a brush. Or, you could cover it with asphalt paint to waterproof it.

One on the Aisle—

Reality Shames Mellerdrammer

By Richard L. Coe

THE ALLIED WAR CRIME TRIALS may not have tracked down Martin Bormann, but by golly, Dick Powell and Universal-International have. What's more, they hanged him proper.

This is the substance of the cliche-packed melodrama at Keith's, though they call Hitler's old standby Martin Bruner. This thing is called "Rogues' Regiment," it's laid in Saigon (where Alan Ladd was heroic last year) and any stock situation has been meat to the writers' grinder.

But the wild unreality of this frankly low level picture seems almost logical when you watch Keith's short subject on the Berlin airlift, "Berlin Powderkeg." Here you have, on the same bill, a factual report of the four-power mess in battered Berlin and, believe me, the reality seems just as insane as the phony script Messrs. Buckner and Florey have smoked up for "Rogues' Regiment." If you want to whet contempt for our pathetic human race, this combination of false melodrama and cockeyed reality will do it.

"Rogues' Regiment" begins by showing you the cremation of Hitler and Eva Braun. Then you switch to our Army intelligence trying to track down the whereabouts of the third-ranking Nazi, whose name, for some woolly reason, they've changed to Bruner. Next you find Dick Powell joining the Foreign Legion at Saigon. Why he picked Saigon isn't clear. Presumably intelligence agents are joining everything all over the place and Dick just hit the right outfit of the French Foreign Legion.

Plus Viej Nam

This brings him into the mysterious East in a big way. He's in a railway carriage with a French officer who is killed avee un couteau in the back and that's the end of him. Another passenger is Vincent Price, and you know what an olly card he is, collecting antiques and hoarding all the delicious gossip of Saigon.

There's a German out to join the many other Germans of the legion, and there's a girl—Marta Toren—in a night club with one of those throaty voices (rather like an immature Marlene Dietrich). She turns out to be a foreign agent and naturally it's love at first sight and a home in Nebraska for her once they've tracked down the Nazi.

You also get involved in the Viet Nam business, a revolt against French colonial authority that seems to meet with wholehearted disapproval of Universal-International.

Those, mes amis, are just some of the things that go on in "Rogues' Regiment," and you can't say you haven't been warned. But, as I say, who's to claim this is cockeyed fiction when, right afterward, you're treated to a report by "This Is America" on the insanity of Berlin?

JACK CARSON and his "complete radio show" will be along to play a full week on the Warner stage beginning Friday, March 11 . . . The screen comic's pals that week will include Marion Hutton, who's just as natty a songstress as her sister Betty; Robert Alda, the screen's "Gershwin"; Dave "Tugwell" Willock, George Mann, Bob Sweeney and the Emerald Sisters . . . George Crouch, the Warner's zone manager, insists that this reversion to stage shows for the old Earle is for one week only . . . Carson will be the screen star, too, with his latest, "Flaxie Martin," as the week's feature, costarring Virginia Mayo, Zachary Scott and Dorothy Malone . . . It's four years now since the Earle gave up vaudeville and, under its new name, the Warner, had a live show on its stage.

"HAMLET" will be calling it a run at the Little next Tuesday night . . . Whatever statistics prove, here's "Hamlet's" Washington record . . . It opened at both the Little and the Playhouse October 20, staying 11 weeks at the latter and 18 at the Little . . . Adding the two runs together that's 29 weeks for "Hamlet," one more than "Henry V," which player its total at the 289-seat Little . . . Since the Playhouse seats 432, this also means a larger audience for "Hamlet," even without that one-week margin . . . So much for "Hamlet" statistics, except that surely the Laurence Olivier triumph should be listed in your own personal ones.

A "SNEAK PREVIEW" is plotted tonight for the Trans-Lux, where the current "Enchantment" will soon be followed by one of the year's better pictures, "Paisan." . . . Could this be a hint?

BURL IVES, who'll be singing some of his ballads in Keith's next, "So Dear to My Heart," will be along in the flesh Tuesday, March 1, at oCnstitution Hall . . . With his guitar and friendly personality, Burl will be doing a one-man show that night which promises to populate the huge hall for ballads ranging from "Little Mohee" to "Frankie and Johnny" . . . Tickets for this Pat Hayes event are at the Show Bureau, 1108 G st.

"ROGUES' REGIMENT." Universal-International release produced by Robert Buckner. Screen play by Buckner from a story by Buckner and Robert Florey. Directed by Florey. Photographed by Maury Gertsman. Music by Daniele Amfitheatrof. At Keith's.

Mild Weather Aids Midwest Snow Removal

Omaha, Feb. 22 (AP).—Mild weather gave snow removal in the Midwest a big lift today.

It also renewed the threat of flooding.

The weather bureau issued a new alert to residents living along the Nemaha River in southeast Nebraska. It also warned that the Nishnabotna, which flows through southeast Iowa into the Missouri, might also overflow with the renewal of thawing.

Severe temperatures in the upper basin of the Missouri have helped hold back the flood threat, Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, Missouri River division engineer and commander of Operation Snowbound, said today.

General Pick also set February 26 as the possible date for completion of snow clearance in South Dakota, Wyoming and Nebraska. He also said he hoped large sections of the North Dakota disaster area could be cleared by that time.

In Nebraska all but a nine-county area in the northeast section has been cleared. The State highway department said that for the first time since the week before Christmas, all State-maintained highways in Nebraska were open.

Kravchenko Seen 'Part' of Marshall Plan

Paris, Feb. 22 (AP).—A pro-Soviet Frenchman said today anti-Soviet writer Victor Kravchenko had been sent to France as part of the Marshall Plan.

Dr. Jose Aboulker made the statement in the trial of Kravchenko's one-million-franc ($3140) libel suit against a pro-Communist weekly newspaper, Les Lettres Francaises. Kravchenko is the Russian-born author of "I Chose Freedom."

Aboulker said he worked with American intelligence services during the 1942 landing in North Africa.

"I know the American secret services very well," Aboulker said, "and the freedom Kravchenko claims to have chosen is not freedom. Even if his intentions were honest at the beginning, Kravchenko is no longer a free man. He is a puppet. Het didn't choose to come to France. He was sent as part of the Marshall Plan."

Dog Poisoner's Strychnine Bait Alarms City

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Strychnine-treated hamburger, made to look like cookies with white icing, was discovered today scattered in a South Side area, and authorities rushed to alert some 3000 children. Eight detectives were assigned to the case.

Police said the meat cookies, each containing enough poison to kill three or four persons, had been spread by a dog killer.

Some 70 dogs were poisoned a year ago in the same area. Fifteen have died of poisoning since Saturday.

Capital Transit Driver Awarded Safety Prize

Clifton R. Walker, 36, for the past eight years adjudged the safest driver for Capital Transit, will receive the January "Driver of the Month" award from the District of Columbia Trucking Association today.

Police Inspector Arthur Miller, final judge of the competition, will present a wristwatch to Walker in his office at Police Headquarters at 3:30 p. m. Present at the ceremonies will be Frank L. Grimm, president of the truckers' group, Yvone K. Howatt, chairman of the truckers' safety committee, and Gordon Granville, director of Capital Transit's driver training program.

The first winner of the trucking association award, Walker was selected for his courtesy in helping an aged blind man to board his bus and transfer to another bus. Nominations were made by various employers of drivers.

O'Mahoney Would Enlist Business

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 22 (AP).—Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) suggested today the Government charter big business to control monopolies.

"If we don't want monopoly, then we've got to make up our minds these economic organizations must get their charter from the national government," the Senator said. He discussed monopolies in an address here before the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative Association.

The chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report said he was not against big business.

"I don't believe it should be broken up,' he said. "I want to give little business, the worker and the farmer a better break in our economic system."

The spangled, carefree night life of this town may have few certainties to it, but these are to be counted on: The contralto who used to be a soprano and the dancer who never had a lick of instruction in her life.

Rosanna

It's only time to sit back and take notice when that rare entertainer comes along who blandly volunteers that both these happenstances are part of her makeup. Such a one is Rosanna, the singing-dancing "Latin Atom" at the Kavakos Club.

These coincidences followed one of her performances the other night, and with them still another unusual revelation—like P. T. Barnum, she isn't so much concerned with what is said about her just so long as it's said. They call me everything," she laughs, shrugging her shoulders in true Latin fashion.

There can be little doubt that the lass is able to shake about as violently as seems possible.

This she does, she says, more or less naturally. "You've got to have it in you." She noticed it was in her some years back in her native Puerto Rico when, as a child, she danced atop her mama's piano.

Rosanna is singing and dancing this week as half of the Kavakos Club's double attraction, the other half being the southpaw fiddler, Johnny Long, and his band.

Featured with the 18-man Long aggregation are the semi-classical piano offerings of Junie Mays, the voice of blond Janet Brace, and the tuneful productions of Natalie and the Beachcombers. Weaving in and out of all this is Emcee Bill Brown, in a bit of hoofing here, a spot of juggling there, and plenty of jokes. Sample:

For this you have the word of Joseph S. Brito, who, as manager of the lounge, knows about such things. You can also take a look for yourself, provided seats are available.

Brito last week rounded out 10 years as manager of the Hi-Hat, and he's ready for 10 more. The anniversary fell last Thursday, and how did he celebrate it? Worked, as usual. It was "just another night" to Joe.

Memorabilia . . . The "King of the Banjo," Eddie Peabody, opened Monday at the Shoreham's Blue Room for a two-week engagement. Eddie has been strumming the banjo for 20 years, and what he doesn't know about it he's forgotten . . . Another Monday opening was that of the three Tunesmiths at the Blue Mirror—instrumentalists and showmen, these boys . . . Now that Olmsted's "State Week" program—featuring each week the food specialty of a State—is well under way, Co-owner Leonard J. Mitchell has been interviewing various New York importers to find out what is available in the wine line. The G st. restaurant is augmenting its wine list.—Robert P. Jordan.

Axis Sally Due to Take Stand Today

Axis Sally is about to begin an engagement in the most exacting role of her strange career.

Five weeks of legal wrangling and testimony have set the stage in District Court.

She stands accused of having tried to sell defeat to Allied soldiers, via Nazi propaganda airwaves, during the war.

Under questioning this week by her attorney, James J. Laughlin, she is expected to spin out the story of her life, from Portland, Me., to Berlin, Germany, to District Jail.

The defense theme will be that she broadcast purely entertainment programs, until the American consul allegedly took away her American passport. And until she fell under the spell of her love mentor, Dr. Otto Koischewitz, her boss in the German Overseas Broadcasting Services.

Then, from about August or September of 1943, on, the defense will try to establish she had no choice except to broadcast Nazi propaganda or face a concentration camp.

Manwhile, Laughlin is awaiting arrival in this country from Germany of three more defense witnesses, also former radio workers.

If the three witnesses arrive in time, Laughlin said, the defendant's testimony will be postponed.

U. S. Colonel's Trial in Vienna Due to End Soon

Vienna, Feb. 22 (AP).—The court martial of Lieut. Col. Walter G. Rishel, stemming from alleged activities in Hungary, is expected to end this week, possible Wednesday.

Rishel, 34, of North Platte, Nebr., was United States air officer on the Allied Control Commission in Budapest from March 1945 to September, 1947.

He was first informed of the charges September 28, 1947, the day he was being separated from the Army at Bolling Field in Washington, D. C. The charges included fraudulent writing, conversion of government property and manipulation of foreign currencies.

He was flown back to Vienna last May but was not arraigned until August 18. He pleaded innocent. The trial has been in secret.

Gen. Romulo Says Colonialism Must End in Asia

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Carlos Romulo, chief Philippine delegate to the United Nations, says the elimination of colonialism is the first condition of Asian strength and security.

In a speech for the British Broadcasting Corp. on results of the recent New Delhi conference, General Romulo declared:

"As long as parts of Asia are held in bondage by Western powers, the entire region will be unsettled, afflicted by recurrent strife and turmoil."

"Asia must be given the freedom to which it is entitled and for which it has fought ceaselessly for centuries," said Romulo.

City Attorney Bans His Campaign Pictures

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 22 (U.P.).—As Democratic candidate for mayor of Hagerstown, Edward Oswald is mighty pleased with his pictures which are plastered all over telephone poles here.

But as city attorney, he said he cannot permit it. It's against city ordinances.

So he's been going around tearing them down.

Atlantic Mark Claimed

Halifax, Feb. 22 (AP).—Trans-Canada Airlines tonight claimed a new tran-Atlantic record for one of its north star aircraft. The plane flew from Montreal to London in 10 hours and 11 minutes yesterday, shaving 19 minutes from the previous records, airlines officials said.

Unions' Negotiator Sees Strike Possible

Chicago, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—A leader of one million nonoperating rail employes indicated today he was dissatisfied with progress of wage-hour negotiations and said a strike might yet be called against the Nation's railroads.

George Leighty, president of the Railroad Telegraphers and head negotiator for 16 nonoperating unions seeking new cont acts with the railroads, said that "this is the crucial week" in talks with management representatives here.

"It could mean a strike," he said.

For the first time in the last two weeks, the railroads and the union negotiators held a joint meeting yesterday with three members of a presidential fact-finding board who have been considering the dispute as individuals.

The board members in a formal report last December recommended the establishment of a 40-hour week for the nonoperating employes, and a 7-cent hourly pay raise. Current negotiations are on adoption of the report's findings.

Leighty, entering another joint meeting today, charged that the railroads were sticking to the position they have taken in nearly two months of talks since the fact-finding board report.

Lustron Lays Off 400 Temporarily

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 22 (AP).—About 400 workers at the Lustron Corp. have been laid off temporarily while the plant retools, President Carl G. Strandlund said today.

About 250 of the workers affected have been turning out parts by hand. Dies and tools were being set up to handle these parts. About 150 other workers were laid off because their department was ahead of manufacturing schedules, Strandlaund said.

Soldier Vents $1000 Fury at Slur on Train

Cleveland, Feb. 22 (AP).—An Army corporal who smashed an estimated $1000-worth of furnishings on a Cincinnati-bound New York Central train was in jail tonight awaiting arrival of military police.

Corpl. John R. de Mille of Framingham, Mass., said he got angry when a fellow civilian passenger started "knocking the GIs."

A 5-foot 10-inch 200-pounder, De Mille was taken off the train earlier today after smashing windows in a pullman, a mirror, the cash register in the bar car and assorted ash trays and stands.

"I guess I must have been crocked," De Mille said. "I went to a wedding in Schenectady (N. Y.) yesterday and they gave me a fifth for a going-away present. I had four or five highballs on the trip.

"I'm a good guy, easy to get along with," he continued. "But this fellow kept knocking the GIs until he burned me up. I took out after him and he locked himself in the men's wash room. I got so mad I punched a hole in the window and then I really put one on."

It took most of the train crew to subdue the veteran, who spent seven years in the Army Air Forces, 59 months in the European theater.

De Mille boarded the train at Schnectady to report to Fort Knox, Ky.

Kippered Herring 'Varnish' Stirs Up Dither in Britain

Kippered herrings are a standard dish to most Britons. The agreement is over the "varnish" with a vegetable oil that makes them shine.

A man named Arthur Vizard started it last week with a testy letter to The Times. He said the practice of shellacking a kipper was not only unhealthy but deplorable, and somebody should put a stop to it.

The argument has spread from Land's End to John O'Groats. In some quarters, tempers are getting short.

"As we evidently cannot protect ourselves from the shopkeeper who dyes all our herrings, the police should be ordered to protect us," wrote Lord Dunsany to The Times.

Herring industry spokesmen said it improved the taste.

Washington's Birthday Gesture Is Wasted

Towcester, England, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Curator Cyril Carter raised the American flag alongside the British today at ancient Sulgrave Manor, home of George Washington's ancestors, on the edge of this Northamptonshire town.

Carter expected to receive American tourists honoring the father of their country on his birthday. But none came.

Tire Makers Vote To Return to Work

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Feb. 22 (AP).—State Labor Director R. R. Wade announced that union employes of the B. F. Goodrich Co.'s tire plant here voted today to return to work tomorrow.

The plant, which employs about 1000, was shut down February 14 by what union officials described as a spontaneous walkout. Full shifts returned two days later but the plant again was idled by another walkout the same day.

Margaret O'Brien Sheds Tears As Mother Weds Band Leader

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 22 (AP).—Tears streamed down the face of 12-year-old movie star Margaret O'Brien tonight as she watched her mother, Mrs. Gladys O'Brien, marry Orchestra Leader Don Sylvio.

Margaret stood quietly in her mother's hotel suite, her hands clenched and her eyes red during the five-minute civil ceremony.

Afterward she refused to kiss her new stepfather when photographers made the request. She wiped her eyes and smiled briefly for group pictures and then began weeping again.

N. Y. Audience Boos, Applauds Health Debate

Boos, hisses and wild applause alternated as Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, faced each other on the American Broadcasting System's "Town Meeting of the Air."

The audience first got noisy when Ewing asked Fishbein whether there were nine million persons under voluntary health insurance, as Fishbein had said earlier tonight, or "more than one million" as Fishbein had said in a recent magazine article.

When Fishbein replied that such insurance "has been growing at the greatest rate in history," the audience booed so loudly that the moderator admonished:

"We don't boo or hiss in Town Hall—grit your teeth."

But the audience got out of hand again after a doctor in the audience asked Ewing "what incentive a physician would have to do more than the bare minimum" under the compulsory insurance plan.

Detailing how a worker insured under the Government plan applies for medical treatment, Ewing said the only difference between the proposal and present methods "is that the bills for the services will not be sent to you personally."

Legion Pushes Bill For 1950 Bonus Vote in Maryland

Baltimore, Feb. 22 (AP).—An American Legion official renewed efforts today to get a veterans' bonus proposal before the voters at a 1950 referendum.

Governor Lane announced yesterday he would be forced to "veto anything for which funds are not provided." Two identical bonus bills pending in the Legislature at Annapolis call for a bond issue of 100 million dollars to pay Maryland veterans of World War II from $10 to $500 each.

John Zebelean, the Legion's legislative committee chairman, said the bills sponsored by his organization are intended to let the voters decide at a referendum whether a bonus should be paid.

"The bills in no way have to be considered in the budget now before the Legislature, and to indicate that they must is misleading to the public," Zebelean contended.

Key West 'White House' To Be Ready March 5

Key West, Fla., Feb. 22 (AP).—The little White House on the naval base grounds here has been extensively repaired. Redecorating is going on now, and the quarters are to be ready for occupancy by March 5.

Nobody has said so definitely, but apparently Mr. Truman will make his next trip here about that time.

The little White House is on the official records as "quarters A-B." President Truman has stayed there five times.

Detroit Elections Cost $1.23 a Vote

Detroit, Feb. 22 (AP).—On the basis of voter participation, Detroit's spring elections yesterday ran toward the extravagant side.

It cost $1.23 a vote, according to official estimate.

In nine contests for minor offices, only about 80,700 of Detroit's 868,000 registered voters took part. For this, the city spent $99,500.

Full Nationalization Urged in Argentina

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Nationalization of all public utilities still in private hands was proposed tonight by the fourth subcommittee of the Constitutional Reform Convention.

The proposal called for nationalization at the value of the original investment, less amortizations. It also declares mineral rights on oil, gas and coal to be the "inalienable property of the state." No mention was made of Standard Oil Co. holdings in northern Argentina nor of Shell Oil Co. holdings in the south.

Dinner Netted $11,000 For Virginia Democrats

Richmond, Va., Feb. 22 (AP).—The Democratic Party today was apparently about $11,000 richer as a result of last Saturday's Virginia Jefferson-Jackson Day celebration.

Exact figures won't be available until all bills are paid, a few late contributions are counted, and the books balanced, said J-J. Day Chairman T. Nelson Parker.

U. S. School Aid Democracy's Need, Educators Say

San Francisco, Feb. 22 (AP).—America must dig deep into its pockets for educational needs if it wants to survive as a democracy, top school administrators said today.

Dr. Willard E. Goslin, of Pasadena, president of the American Association of School Administrators; Miss Mabel Studebaker, of Erie, Pa., president of the National Education Association, and Dr. Worth McClure of Washington, executive secretary of the association, voiced support of U. S. Senate Bill 246, which would grant 300 million dollars to States for their public-school systems. They spoke at a group conference. The 3500 delegates to the convention split up into panel discussions today.

Fireworks Plant Is Destroyed by Series of Blasts

Canton, Mass., Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Three monster explosions blasted the Rockland Fireworks Co. to bits tonight and terrified residents in a 20-mile radius.

Apparently no one was injured but the explosions shattered windows in homes as far as six miles away. They rattled houses in Boston and scores of South Shore towns.

Fire Chief Harold L. Bailey of Randolph believed the blasts might have been set off in loose powder.

The three buildings of the company were completely leveled by the explosions and fire that followed.

Yugoslavia Tries 10 on Charges Of Revolt Plot

Belgrade, Feb. 22 (AP).—Ten persons are being tried on charges of trying to overthrow the Yugoslav government with the aid of an unnamed "foreign power."

None is prominent in politics. Few newspapers are reporting the trial, which began yesterday. Those that do carry meager details.

Dakota Woman Saved, 2 Months Snowbound

Omaha, Nebr., Feb. 22 (AP).—Isolated more than two months in her snowbound wilderness cabin in the Black Hills of South Dakota, an elderly widow has finally been rescued after her lonely vigil.

The courageous little woman, Mrs. Mary Watt, hale and healthy, was released from her snowy prison Saturday by a Fifth Army rescue mission and taken to Newcastle, Wyo.

Vets Housing Plan Urged By McCarthy

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) said yesterday veterans' groups should be given preference in buying three Government-owned housing projects to forestall a "clean-up" by speculators.

He so told a Senate Banking Subcommittee in support of his bill authorizing negotiated sale of resettlement projects known as Greendale, near Milwaukee; Greenhills, near Cincinnati; and Greenbelt, Md.

McCarthy's measure would permit the Public Housing Commissioner to negotiate a sale of the projects to veterans groups, without competitive bidding, at a fair market value.

The three projects were built by the Government in the depression '30s to provide housing for low-income families.

Legion Group Ready to Act

McCarthy said "the only opposition is on the part of several speculators who would like to buy the property, sell off the extra land and clean up on it."

Arthur Marcus of Milwaukee, chairman of the board of directors of the American Legion Development Corp., which was set up to buy Greendale, said the main purpose of the legislation is to speed the negotiations.

"If this goes through, we can start building in April," Marcus said. "We want nothing from the Government. We have the funds. We are ready to move now."

He said the corporation proposes to acquire the entire 3000-acre property just outside Milwaukee and its 635 homes, with the initial aim of constructing at once 1000 rental homes for families of moderate incomes and later an additional 2000 homes, the majority of which would be for rent.

Egan Approves Plan

Senator Wiley (R., Wis.) urged that the Government make an exception to the general rule of competitive bidding for sale of the three projects.

John T. Egan, Public Housing Commissioner, said the legislation would "be helpful to the department and it would not lose any money to the Government."

No witnesses from Ohio or Maryland were present yesterday. They will be heard later.

Poisoner's Hand Seen in Death of 12 or 13 Dogs

A dog hater is suspected of poisoning 12 or 13 pet dogs in Cheverly, Md., in the past seven months.

One Cheverly resident whose dogs have met with sudden death is Glenn W. Wagner, of 1703 61st ave.

Wagner said last night this first dog, a setter, was poisoned last July. He had bought the dog as a birthday present for his son, Bobby, 6.

According to Wagner, an autopsy on the dog's body at a University of Maryland laboratory showed it had eaten rat poison.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

We Start the Day With A Catty Remark

Paul H. Oehser, who has just written a history of the Smithsonian Institution titled "Sons of Science," doesn't like cats—except perhaps the kind that have been dead for a million years.

Paul says that I have found homes for so many stray cats that people are beginning to call this column the "District Feline."

PERSONAL NOTES

Citizen: I'd be glad to try to help you, but I'm sure you wouldn't want me to tackle an assignment like this for an anonymous correspondent.

KNOW-HOW

Mrs. Bruce M. Benton of 3421 14th st. nw. wonders whether we've heard about the FBI agent who came to a small town and was amazed to see evidences of unbelievably fine marksmanship.

Everywhere he went, he saw targets—with holes neatly drilled smack-dab through the center.

Determined to meet this fine marksman, the FBI man searched him out, and found he was the village idiot.

"I've never seen evidence of such superior shooting," said the agent. "Tell me—how do you do it?"

"It's easy," said the dimwit. "I shoot first, and draw the target afterward."

ONE MORE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BARGAIN

Ten-year-old Brenda Klein of 5534 Nevada ave. nw. and 9-year-old Elizabeth Posner of 3750 Oliver st. nw. were returning home from their music lesson.

It was getting along toward evening, and somehow the girls got on the wrong bus at 14th and Colorado, and were horrified to discover that they were riding off in a strange direction.

Up front, Bus Driver George Fagan of 455 Riggs rd. ne. noted the predicament of his two young passengers, and immediately took over in a manner that should earn him special commendation from Capital Transit.

Fishing in his pocket for some candy mints, George meanwhile began joshing the girls with a line of soft-soap that would have won the heart of any young lady.

Then, having calmed Brenda and Elizabeth to a point where they were enjoying their ride, he took them back to their transfer point and called Brenda's mother, Mrs. Sandor S. Klein (papa "Sandy" Klein works for United Press.)

"Don't you worry about the girls," George told Mrs. Klein. "They're a bit late because they got on the wrong bus, but I'm going to put them on the right bus, right this minute."

And he not only did, but an hour later he called again—just to check up, and make sure his two young passengers had gotten home safely.

And if that isn't giving the customer a big 13 cents worth, I don't know anything about bargains.

OUR BOYS USUALLY LOSE THEIR SHIRTS

Friends of Myron M. Cowen, Ambassador to Australia, are chuckling over this story:

In Brisbane recently, Ambassador Cowen spoke at a session of a United Nations commission. When he resumed his seat, it was with that sinking feeling that he was parking on something that shouldn't have been there.

There was no time to fret about how the plums got there; the important thing was to change quickly to another pair of striped trousers.

Having completed the change, Ambassador Cowen was pleasantly surprised when a gentleman he took to be a member of the Russian delegation approached, and said:

The Ambassador allowed as how that was mighty neighborly, and thanked the gentleman profusely. And that's all there is to the story, except that he adds ruefully that from that time to this he has seen nothing more of either the "Russian" or his pants.

If there is a moral in the incident, I leave it for other diplomats who deal with the Soviets to discover for themselves.

R. S. V. P.
(DON'T BOTHER TO DRESS)

So the cannibal said to the preacher
In a manner and tone so polite:
My dear wife says she simply insists, sir,
That we have you for dinner tonight.

David Kandel

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—John Golden, the veteran producer, wasn't at the Music Box Theater the night Paul Muni opened in "They Knew What They Wanted." As is his custom, Golden left the theater at 6 p. m., after the final rehearsal, and went home to dinner and to bed . . . "Once that curtain is up," said Golden, "there's no further need for the producer, the director, the playwright or the scenic designer. It's in the hands of the actors and the good Lord—in that order."

Frank Stanton, president of CBS, has been offered the presidency of a college . . . Gene Fowler's book about his newspaper days in New York will be called "Park Row."

In Bedford, Pa., one day, a man was acquitted in the William Tell slaying of his friend, from whose head he had tried to shoot a bottle. The last time a William Tell stunt was tried in New York, Peter Arno, the cartoonist, and John Ringling North, head of the Ringling circus, were the participants. Arno, who has a license for his pistol, suggested: "I'll bet I can knock an apple off your head." North submitted to the test and Arno, who later insisted that he had used a blank bullet, took aim and fired. The explosion caused North to flinch, and this movement toppled the apple from his head. "There," said Arno, returning the pistol to its hiding place, "I told you I could do it."

When King Peter of Yugoslavia arrived in the Cub Room of the Stork Club one night he was given the second-best table. The best was given to King Henry VIII—Rex Harrison of "Anne of the Thousand Days." . . . Desi Arnez, who sat nearby, was asked, "How's show business?" He pointed to King Peter, and said: "Both our professions seem to be dying."

Ed Riggs will become President of Henry Holt & Co., the book publishing firm. . . . One of the featured members of the cast of Clifford Odets' new play, "The Big Knife," said, "I was jobless in Hollywood the past five years and never realized I was stranded."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Office Row Stymies Legislation

By Drew Pearson

The old physical axiom that two bodies can't occupy the same space has stymied vitally important legislation in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. It's quite a joke on Capitol Hill, but not for the public.

"The bodies," in this case, are two quite animate Congressmen—Democrat Bob Crosser of Ohio and Republican Charles Wolverton of New Jersey, both of whom want to occupy the same office.

This office—next to the Interstate Commerce Committee's meeting room—has always been the private sanctum of the committee chairman. However, outgoing Chairman Wolverton, Republican, has refused to pack up and leave so Crosser, new Democratic chairman, can move in. Meantime, the white-thatched, 74-year-old Crosser, who gets about in a wheel chair, must shuttle up and down between the committee room and his old office on the first floor.

Crosser, however, has done little shuttling or legislating. While his temper has been mounting against Wolverton—and against Speaker Sam Rayburn for refusing to oust Wolverton—important bills on national health insurance, freight rates, and other matters also are piling up in the committee.

No hearings have been held (at this writing) on any of this legislation, though Congress has been in session almost eight weeks. Wolverton, who moved in when he became chairman two years ago, insists he has priority under a 1918 resolution giving House members the right to remain in an office they occupied during the previous session.

Meanwhile, the committee's legislative slag-pile gets higher and higher while the two prima donnas fight it out.

Snows Cause Bee Losses

All sorts of stories have been written about the tragic cattle and sheep losses of the West, but not a word about the plight of bees. However, their loss has been just as heavy.

Though bees hibernate through the winter, they must leave their hive every six weeks or so for a breath of fresh air. Western snow drifts have made this impossible, and, as a result, beekeepers in the snowbound States lost 50 per cent of their bees.

Note—Bees have been overproducing lately, and the honey industry has appealed to Secretary of Agriculture Brannan to take some of the surplus off its hands. The Western loss, therefore, will not affect the supply of honey nationally.

Alarm-ing Coincidence

A grating noise, as if a cricket were loose in the room, interrupted a group of Senators and Congressmen during a committee meeting the other evening.

Embarrassed, Congressman Wright Patman of Texas grabbed his wrist watch. The mysterious sound ceased.

"That alarm is just enough to wake me up in the morning without wakening my wife," apologized the Texas Congressman. "But the darn thing goes off every 12 hours."

Senator Lyndon Johnson, also of Texas, kidded the Congressman about his watch with the Dick Tracy trimmings. Then the group went back to work.

Then it developed that Senator Johnson had been the first to acquire a cricket-chirping watch, and Congressman Patman was so intrigued with it that he hunted up a jeweler who could order one just like it from Switzerland.

Warning on Civil Rights

A broad hint that Southern Senators will not help repeal the Taft-Hartley Act if civil rights are jammed down their throats has been given by Georgia's Senator Dick Russell. Since Russell represents the South on the Democratic policy committee, his warning is important.

A good many Southern Senators voted for the Taft-Hartley act in the first place, Russell has quietly reminded his colleagues. But they might now be willing to support Truman regarding the Taft-Hartley act if he in turn compromised for a softer stand on civil rights.
